"Hello, Uncle Franklin."

It was 1 o'clock in the morning. Washington was a seething fury, torn by debate over the President's reorganization bill.

But Franklin D. Roosevelt, the center of the maelstrom, laid aside his cares and midnight studies to greet his visitor, 11-year-old Joan Clark of Nahant, sister of Anne

'I Fought For Stalin In Spain'

Slaughter of defenseless foes, execution of Insurgent officers, use of explosive bullets by government troops and burning of dead and wounded enemies alike, are told today by Captain Alvin Halpern in the fifth article of his thrilling series. A Boston boy, Halpern has already told how he and others were disillusioned about the cause for which they fought, but were unable to escape Spain. He already has described his enlistment IN BOSTON by the Reds, and subsequent journey to New York, Paris and over the border into war-torn Spain, under cover of night.

By CAPTAIN ALVIN HALPERN

(Boston man who became a soldier and then Political Commissar, Motorcycle Division, 15th International Brigade, Army of Loyalist Spain.)

They put me in a machine-gun company—Company One, of the Lincoln-Washington battalion.

I had never fired a machine-gun, nor even had one in my hands, in my life.

Three days later, we moved up for the attack on Belchite.

Our guns were Russian heavy Maxims. Number 1 man in our squad was Larry MacDougal, a Scots lad, from Scotland, not from America. He was the gunner. I was Number 2—the loader.

Facing us at Belchite we found a line of concrete "pill-boxes" connected with one another by trenches and underground passages —a regular Hindenburg line.

Our heavy Maxims had steel shields for the gunners, and

POPE SAVES HIS STRENGTH FOR EASTER CEREMONIES

VATICAN CITY, April 14 (AP)—Pope Pius, conserving his strength for the elaborate Easter ceremonies in St. Peter's abandoned plans for participating in the Holy Thursday services.

Today's commemoration of the Last Supper was held with full solemnity in the Sistine Chapel, however, in the presence of 24 cardinals and other prelates and diplomats accredited to the papal court.

Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte, dean of the Sacred College, celebrated the mass and afterwards led the procession to the Pauline Chapel, across the sala reggia, or great anteroom.

He carried the Chalice reverently to the chapel, where it will remain overnight as a sign of the Church's mourning.

With this ceremony all the bells of Rome's more than 400 churches were silenced until they ring out their joyous welcome of the Resurrection Saturday.

'Still a Red' Is Retort Of Hicks

GRAFTON, N. Y., April 14—"I am a Communist. I expect to remain a Communist. But I do not expect my personal beliefs to enter in any way into my teachings at Harvard."

That was Granville Hicks' statement to a Boston Evening American reporter here today.

Against a background breathing the very air of early American democracy, the Communist editor and writer for the "New Masses" asserted his "right under the American system of government" to whatever political belief he chooses to espouse.

He had been aroused at dawn in his old farmhouse home on lonely Grafton Mountain near the Massachusetts line.

DIDN'T SEEK JOB

"I did not seek the Harvard appointment," he declared. "If I am a Communist, I cannot see that that should enter into it, any more than if I were a Republican or a Democrat. The Communist party is a recognized political party in America. You will find its candidates on your ballot, along with Republican candidates and Democratic candidates, when you go to the polls.

"I feel I am especially well-equipped to do the work in American history and literature that will be expected of me. In effect, I have been awarded a fellowship. Some fellowships are for study only. This fellowship, however, requires also that I render certain services to the university.

"I assure you, my political be-

Mercury at 79 Breaks Record

Rising to 79 degrees at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, the temperature here broke the all-time record high of 78 for this date. The old record was set in 1891.

In addition, the mercury set a record high for 1938, going one degree above the reading of 78 recorded on March 23, the weather bureau reported.

Thermometers rose 5 degrees in 20 minutes to set the record. It was 74 at 1 p. m. The day was said by the weather man to be the warmest since September 26 last, when 81 degrees were recorded.

ICC Bans Boost In Rail Fares

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission denied today an application by Eastern railroads for permission to increase passenger coach fares from two to two and a half cents a mile.

The commission said it found the proposed increase not justified.

Railroads had estimated the half-cent increase would have added $30,000,000 to their revenues.

Stocks Bid Up On Hint Of Inflation

President's Message Causes Demand For Commodities

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—Speculators—cautiously bullish—bought commodities and selected stocks today on what brokers said was an inflationary interpretation of President Roosevelt's message to Congress.

A mild flurry of buying in stocks followed the appearance of the message on news tickers. Demand converged on rubber, gold mining, steel and other industrial shares which figured as "inflation favorites" in the earlier phases of the New Deal price-raising and pump-priming drives.

Morning stock losses were wiped out and gains of $1 and $2 a share in leading issues were recorded in late dealings.

More pronounced was a wave of buying in major raw materials. Cotton, wheat, rubber and other key staples were lifted for moderate gains.

The President's proposal to finance the new spending partly through release of $1,400,000,000 in "sterilized" gold stimulated U. S. government bonds. Most treasury issues sold higher.

Traders, however, seemed in no rush to accumulate stocks. Brokers said many preferred to wait to see how Congress reacts to the proposals and for elucidation of the administration's aims in President Roosevelt's fireside chat tonight.

Raffles Robs Wellesley Girls

Steals $1000 in Gems On Beacon Hill

Police today revealed a robbery by a "Raffles" who invaded the exclusive Beacon Hill apartment of three wealthy Wellesley College graduates and fled with more than $1000 worth of diamonds and other jewelry.

Victims of the robbery were the Misses Florence Chapman, Eleanor Mowrey and Caroline Parker. All were classmates at college, graduating last June.

The crime was made known only after police had been conducting a secret investigation of the case for several hours.

It was discovered by the victims when they entered their bedrooms to retire. They had been in the apartment all evening, but had heard no suspicious sounds.

According to police the "Raffles" entered the apartment by means of a piece of celluloid with which he picked a lock.

The loot listed included several rings studded with diamonds, pearls, sapphires and other gems. Also stolen were a pearl necklace, a gold necklace, a string of pearls, three gold bracelets, a fraternity pin, and three Wellesley College class pins.

SEVEN BILLIONS MORE!

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—President Roosevelt proposed today a $7,000,000,000 recovery program, embracing $5,000,000,000 of federal spending and lending and a $2,150,000,000 expansion of lendable bank credits—basis for a theoretical $21,500,000,000 addition to private buying credits.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 14 — Frankly recognizing that the nation is heading into another real depression—unless current tendencies are halted—President Roosevelt today proposed to Congress the authorization of another elastic federal spending and lending program of some $4,000,000,000.

In a special message conveying the request, the President made a stirring plea for national unity in a time of emergency. The emergency, he said, is here, and it is up to every class of citizenship to submerge differences and pull together for the common good. Otherwise, he warned democratic processes of government are imperilled.

In addition to the outright spending and lending he proposed, Mr. Roosevelt informed Congress that the Treasury would proceed to desterilize $1,400,000,000 of its impounded gold. This, it is expected, will have to some degree an inflationary effect on the credit structure of the country.

The President's recommendations fell under three general headings:

1—Additional appropriations of $2,062,000,000 for direct relief expenditures.

2—Desterilization of the $1,400,000,000 in idle gold.

3—Loans from the Treasury amounting to $950,000,000, with authorization for the lending of still another $1,000,000,000 to

Parley Deadlock On Profits Tax Item

House and Senate Confrerees Put 'Off Action To Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, April 14 (INS)—The $5,330,000,000 tax bill was deadlocked in conference between the Senate and the House today on the vital issue of the undistributed profits and capital gains levies.

The confrerees met for an hour, but were in such hopeless disagreement adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

The deadlock was not unexpected after President Roosevelt's letter yesterday to the chief confrerees in which he pleaded on retention of New Deal tax principles, which had been knocked out of the bill by the Senate.

His unprecedented action stirred new charges that the President is still grasping for "dictatorial powers" and flaunting old-established American principles in his efforts to attain them.

The levies he insists on having retained in the bill are the capital gains tax and the undistributed corporate profits tax.

Both of these levies were drastically modified in the measure passed by the House; both were repealed outright in the bill now pending before the Senate.

STIRS NEW REVOLT

In view of the fact that the President's closest congressional advisors had already informed him that rejection of the two so-called "punitive" measures was "impossible," his extraordinary demand for their retention astounded all factions of the Congress.

Despite his move in writing letters to the House and Senate conferees on the bill, practically telling them how to handle the measure, rebellious leaders declared his wishes would be opposed as bitterly as they were on the recently defeated government reorganization program.

These leaders, many of them Democrats, declared the President's move might imperil the entire tax measure—an important and carefully prepared piece of legislation designed to aid business in the present slump.

Many predicted it would precipitate the bitterest fight of the session and possibly delay adjournment until June.

All were agreed the President's plea would fail to change the attitude of those already opposed to his personal opinion that the bill is bad and he would have to yield on the issue or accept the responsibilities of a deadlocked legislation.

The President's bombshell brought down upon Congress another avalanche of telegrams protesting any "interference" by the White House in the preparation of the bill it self.

PROTESTS POUR IN

These telegrams came from business men, legislatures and other groups from all over the country.

The deluge was similar to that marking the closing days of the "dictator bill" fight, the result of which was considered by many congressional leaders as a "repudiation" of the New Deal chieftain's administration policies.

Senator Burke (D.) of Nebraska said:

"The executive having made known his views on the tax bill through representatives of the Treasury Department in appearances before the House and Senate committees, under our system of government he should wait until Congress completes its labors upon the bill before vetoing it."

Senator Ashurst (D.) of Arizona, declared:

"I am against the corporate undistributed profits tax. Congress has usually had the courage of the President's convictions upon tax matters, but whether it will in this instance, no one can foresee.

"The question is, will Congress have the courage of its own convictions or those of the President? Time will prevent instance."

Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts asserted:

"The President has not changed my views."

Walsh has been an outstanding foe against the taxes the President favors.

Republican leaders scared the President as continuing dictatorial aims.

Senator McNary (R.) of Oregon, minority leader, declared:

"The President's letter is an interference with the legislative body, especially when he remained mute during consideration of the bill by the Senate and the House."

Brookline Woman Given Vice Term

For operating a disorderly house in an exclusive section of Brookline, Mrs. Kate Segal, 46, of High street, Brookline, was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction today by Judge Harold Williams in Norfolk Superior Court.

Police of the Dedham vice squad broke down the door of Mrs. Segal's apartment on the night of February 4 and arrested her for conducting an immoral establishment. Mrs. Segal pleaded guilty.

CIO Act Opens Greatest Union Labor Struggle

Lewis Closes Door To Peace; Calls His Own Convention

WASHINGTON, April 14 (INS)—Shattering the last hope for peace with the AFL, John L. Lewis today called a national convention for his CIO to establish a permanent organization.

His action presaged the greatest struggle for supremacy between union labor groups the country has ever witnessed.

The decision came at the conclusion of a two day conference with leaders of 39 international CIO unions. Date and place for the convention was left to a special committee.

POLITICAL FACTOR

Lewis announced the CIO now hopes to become a powerful political as well as economic factor in the nation's fabric.

He said the convention will draft a constitution, elect officers, adopt bylaws and change the name of CIO. He indicated the constitutional convention will be held probably in September.

Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray, CIO vice-presidents, were appointed to the committee to complete details of the convention.

Lewis emphasized that the convention was agreed upon without a single dissent.

"Our name will be changed, but not our symbols," he declared.

The militant CIO generalissimo refused to comment on what effect his action will have on any peace deals with the A. F. of L.

URGE WAGE LAW

The Lewis group adopted a resolution calling for immediate enactment of a wage-hour bill and for an amendment to the Wagner Act compelling all corporations receiving contracts from the government to comply with the act.

Julius Hochman, representing the International Ladies' Garment Workers—the largest CIO unit—did not vote at the conference, explaining his union's executive board would have to decide whether to go along.

The garment workers have hinted they might drop out of the CIO if it abandoned efforts to make peace with the AFL.

Gen. Johnson Says:

POWER GRABS

Congress Should Act

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, April 14—In Kipling's "Puck of Pooks Hill" series is a story about an old Jewish patriarch who came by a great treasure of gold which had been hidden in a well in the castle at Pevensy by one of the Conqueror's lords.

Hugh S. Johnson

It was during the revolt of the barons against John Lackland. If the King had gotten the gold there would have been no Runnymede — no Magna Carta. The old Jewish seer was aware of that. The charter of English liberty, which was also the well-spring of our Constitution, was forced out of King John because he couldn't govern despotically without money and the barons controlled that.

English Parliamentary control, which is democracy, began with a seizure by subjects of an all-controlling power — the power of the purse. As long as that remains in popular legislative control there never can be one-man government.

Charles I of England tried the dictatorship stunt. In his unfortunate history, there are perfect parallels for the power grabs of the past few years.

Speaking on the scaffold, of the liberty of the people, he said:

"But I must tell you that their liberty consists in having government. It is not in their having a share in government, that is nothing appertaining unto them."

The English people did not think so. They stopped the King in a struggle lasting 36 years which at last, put England and its colonies on the road that got Magna Carta—the power of the purse. The Parliament insisted on passing on all governmental action by refusing to raise or appropriate money for objects it did not approve.

This congressional power of the purse is the very heart and center of the constitutional system of divided powers.

* * *

During the "emergency" of the first New Deal, our Congress temporarily largely abdicated this power. It adopted the stupid device of "lump sum" appropriations.

The Constitution provides "no money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in consequence of appropriation made by law." Up to recently, Congress has appropriated item by item for all expenditures.

On April 8, 1938, it appropriated the staggering sum of 4.4 billions with little more itemization than that it should be spent as the President desires "for recovery and relief."

When Congress specifies the spending, the only power of the Executive over individual congressmen is his own prestige and the patronage of a few trifling offices. But when Congress turns over a treasure as vast as this to unlimited Executive discretion, it grants a very considerable power to make or break any member of Congress who doesn't vote as ordered.

States, cities, counties, governors and mayors, as well as senators and representatives, must come hat in hand to an executive officer and not, as the Constitution intended, to Congress, to get back even their just share of what is taken away from their own people in taxes.

It violates the spirit, if not the letter, of the Constitution. It broadly undermines both the authority and prestige of Congress. It concentrates in one man not only a tremendous power to benefit or burden one part of the country relative to others, but also strongly to influence the votes in Congress on all other matters and, above all, to influence elections, even in purely local affairs, in every community in the country.

A refusal of any more lump-sum appropriations would be of much greater importance in maintaining our form of government than defeat of the Reorganization Bill. Why? Because that defeat was reassertion of congressional independence in a single particular case. Defeat of further lump-sum appropriations would be a destruction of the evil that makes Congress dependent in any case.

Perjury Charged In Revere Still Quiz

Accused by Federal Commissioner Harry N. Guterman of perjury, a Revere contractor was held today in bail of $2500 for grand jury action on charges of possessing an unregistered still and carrying on the business of a distiller.

Commissioner Guterman found "probable cause" in the case of Lucio Tagliori of Larkin street, Revere, after a hearing on the charges. They arose when a fire, said by police to have been caused by a still in the basement of his home, destroyed it last month.

G. O. P. Is Target Of Farley Jibes

WASHINGTON, April 14 (INS)—Postmaster General Farley today contended the Republican party has "gone into a court of moral and political bankruptcy" and has named G. O. P. Chairman Glenn Frank receiver.

Speaking over a country-wide radio hookup in commemoration of the 195th birthday of Thomas Jefferson, he said the latter's great roots philosophy, was the same as President Roosevelt's.

He named Senator Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, Governor Aiken, Vermont and Colonel Frank Knox, Republican vice presidential candidate in 1936, for recent pronouncements which he likened to "the confession trial of Moscow."

Mystery Fleet' In Pacific Vanishes

MANILA, P. I., April 14 (INS)—Generally believed to be Japanese destroyers, the fleet of 22 vessels sighted off the coast of Mindanao in the Gulf of Davao, 600 miles from here, vanished as mysteriously as it appeared, it was learned today. United States and Philippine officials refused to make any official comment, but it was understood that two U. S. army bombing planes and two Philippine planes scouted the entire Davao Gulf region without sighting the mystery vessels.

G. A. R. Vets Hit Proposal for Lee Statue

General a 'Traitor' Delegates to Annual Meeting Are Told

The patriotic spirit which sent them to the Battle of Gettysburg still flared strong in the hearts of veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic today.

Its flame undiminished 72 years after, it spurred the aged Civil War "boys" to a tirade against the proposal by the government to erect an equestrian statue to General Robert E. E. Lee in the National Cemetary at Arlington, Va.

The bitter feeling existant for several years over this proposal broke into open protest as the 72nd annual encampment of the G. A. R. at the Hotel Bradford, when Cowrin H. Mosher of Los Angeles, national commander-in-chief, branded the Confederate General Lee a "traitor pure and simple."

With the attack on General Lee was a similar one on Confederate veterans for their determination to carry the Stars and Bars on an equal footing with the Stars and Stripes at the government-sponsored reunion at Gettysburg in June.

Commander-in-Chief Mosher declared that unless there is a stated agreement the Confederate flag will not be taken outside the Confederate quarters the G. A. R. will not attend the Gettysburg reunion.

The tirade occurred after Herman L. Bush of the soldiers' relief department, representing Mayor Tobin, made a speech in which he expressed regret at the resentment over the proposal of a statue to General Lee.

Woman Hits Deal On Farm Control

Other Letters Urge Change In Money Policies to End Business 'Fears'

How can the "recession" be checked and America put back upon the paths to prosperity? This problem was couched by William Randolph Hearst in his editorial letter of April 7, 1938.

In publishing the letter, the Hearst papers said:

"This paper invites its readers to write to the editor their suggestion as to what the President should do to dissipate the fear that is paralyzing industry and progress and imperilling the welfare of the nation."

MRS. EVA LEHMAN, of Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, in a letter to the Milwaukee Sentinel:

"You ask for people's opinions on the question of today.

"I don't suppose that an old woman almost 86 years old you think has much to offer, but I have seen old Wisconsin grow from the ox teams and log cabins and school houses and know what farm life as well as city life means.

HITS FARM CONTROL

"How can you tell a farmer what he shall raise or how he shall raise it, when he plows and sows not knowing what he shall reap? Drouth, hail or rain may destroy and he has to wait another year and go at it with a faith that it may be better this time.

"When you destroy what he has toiled for and import from other countries that which is needed to supply life, it is not a very good policy on a farm.

"In business, you cannot make wages so high and taxes so high that the product cannot be bought.

"A politician may wear patches on his pants to win his votes, but it don't grow broadcloth for the farmer unless he has money to buy with.

"Quit tearing down; put honest men in power with a knowledge of business, education, co-operation and common sense will mean success."

PAUL F. FRATESSA, of San Francisco, in a letter to the San Francisco Examiner: "Responding to your invitation to offer a suggestion to remove the fear which you indicate exists in the country, I would suggest the following:

"First: That the federal government stop borrowing money and in lieu thereof that President Roosevelt exercise the authority which he has been given by Congress to issue $3,000,000,000 of currency to be used in creating work for the unemployed and for loans to industry in distress.

"Second: That additional authority be granted to President Roosevelt to issue $7,000,000,000 additional, to be used during the next fiscal year.

"Third: That Congress pass legislation which will withdraw this currency from circulation, by taxation, if commodity prices rise above the 1926 level."

J. A. WATKINS, of Los Angeles, in a letter to the Los Angeles Examiner: "Mr. Roosevelt and the Federal Reserve Board have d'estatorial power over the money supply of the country.

"If Mr. Roosevelt as dictator over the volume of money, should expand the volume of currency per capita until the checking accounts of the banks had increased to 33 billions of dollars, there would not be an idle person in America who wanted work at good wages.

"Remember this: Money, like men, has work to do in carrying on the business of the country; and again remember that money, like men, is limited in the amount of business it can transact in 24 hours time."

Desert Slayings Clue Given Here

NEWBURYPORT, April 14—A member of a prominent family here, who is believed to have seen the killer sought by Texas authorities for the brutal slayings of a mother and her daughter, today declared he would go "to Texas and testify if necessary."

He is Chauncey Worcester, 47, who, with his mother, Mrs. Hester Worcester, 76, returned a few days ago from Arizona.

As a result of what the Worcesters told District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County, authorities believe the pair may be able to aid in solution of the mysterious murders of Mrs. Weston Frome, 46, and her daughter, Nancy, 23, former Bradford Academy student, on the Texas desert.

TELLS OWN STORY

Worcester said that he and his mother saw the car containing the Frome woman and her daughter three times. They also told District Attorney Gregg they witnessed that the women were being chased by a second car—the death race across the desert sands.

According to Worcester, the man in the second car was short, chunky with a round face and big eyes.

He said he passed what was apparently the Frome car on March 30 about 11 a. m.

"I saw a young girl and an older woman," Worcester said. Directly in rear of the machine in which the two women were, I saw a dark colored car.

"As we passed, the cars were stopped on the side of the road. The young girl was standing by the machine as if she was going to fix something. The car in the rear was pulled up a few feet in the rear of the girl's car. As I passed I saw the man getting out of the car in the rear."

SAW DEATH CHASE

Later, Worcester declared, he saw the car with the woman and the girl pass at "a very fast rate of speed." He said the other car was "directly behind it" apparently in chase. He said the car with the women turned down another road from that which he followed.

After reading the newspaper accounts of the murders, Worcester said he was convinced he had seen the Frome women.

"I'll go to Texas to testify if necessary," Worcester said today after it was revealed that two suspects had been taken into custody for questioning in Little Rock, Ark.

There was a strong possibility that Worcester would be asked to view the suspects.

The suspects were reported to have been seized in a car stolen in Texas and were said to have thrown a gun away to get rid of some evidence of a serious crime.

Details of what Worcester saw were sent by District Attorney Cregg to the Texas officials investigating the slayings.

Worcester said his mother would not go, even if summoned, because of her health. While en route home, Worcester's father, Dr. George W. Worcester, died in Washington. The funeral was held yesterday.

JOAN CLARK

Trappist Monks Wash Boys' Feet In Maundy Rite

Reporter Permitted To See Service of Silent Men

VALLEY FALLS, R. I., April 14—In the severe and plain study room of the Cistercian Monastery here today, 22 Trappist Monks washed and kissed the feet of 22 boys in the annual mandatum to the poor.

It was the Maundy Thursday ceremony through which the ascetics of this strictest observance order symbolize the washing of His Apostles' feet by Christ at the Last Supper.

This is only the second year that any of the public has been allowed to witness the ceremony and today the witnesses were a Boston Evening American reporter, the boys and fewer than half a dozen others.

SILENT FOR LIFE

There is only one other Cistercian monastery in the United States—at Louisville, Ky., and only one other in all America—40 miles outside Montreal, Canada.

Severity of the customs of the Trappist monks here at Our Lady of the Valley Monastery seems of the Middle Ages rather than something in modern America.

The men are cloistered within the monastery boundaries for the rest of their lives; they are sworn to perpetual silence, eat the plainest of vegetable food, sleep in bare cells on hard straw mattresses and spend most of their waking hours in religious meditation or in toil.

The day began at 2 a. m. for the Trappist in their annual observance of Maundy Thursday.

At that hour the monks and lay brothers, led by Father John M. O'Conner, prior of the monastry, proceeded into the chapel for two hours of mental prayers.

Then followed the canonical office and then the Black Mass for the dead.

Next the monks and lay brothers returned to make up their couches and eat breakfast, and this was followed by solemn high mass at 9 a. m.

The washing of the feet came after the mass, Father O'Conner again leading the procession from the chapel to the study room.

OLD MONASTERY BURNED

As 22 monks stood in front of the 22 boys, who had come from various parts of Rhode Island, lay brothers filed into the room, carrying tin wash basins of water with towels for each of the monks.

The monks then knelt, laved the feet of the youngsters in the water, dried them with the towels and kissed the feet.

The Trappists have been two score years at Our Lady of the Valley Monastery, which they constructed themselves.

Jury List Exhausted On Jaquith

Passers-By Face Call To Try Brookline Robbery Suspect

This unusual situation arose when Melvin F. Jaquith, 25, Coolidge street, Brookline, was brought to trial on seven charges of armed robbery.

Under the law Jaquith has 12 challenges on each charge.

He promptly began exercising his challenges, and entirely exhausted the criminal division's supply of prospective jurors.

Judge Wilfred D. Gray thereupon summoned additional veniremen from the civil division. Again, Jaquith went to work on them with his challenges.

With both the criminal and civil venires exhausted, the only thing that will be left for the court to do, Judge Gray indicated, will be to send officers out into the street to "pick up" additional prospective jurymen. The law requires this.

Jaquith is charged with the holdup, last New Year's Eve, of an oil company office in Stoneham, in which 7 employes were robbed of a total of $330.

$34,000 Harvard Scholarships

Fellowships and scholarships totaling more than $34,000 were announced by Harvard authorities today.

Charles W. Tainter, II, of the University of Nebraska, College of Law was named to the Brandeis Research Fellowship. The Law School fellowship for work under Professor Frankfurter goes to Edward F. Prichard, Jr., of Paris, Ky., Princeton graduate and third-year Harvard Law School student.

Those awarded law school grants include:

Loring P. Jordan, Jr., of Wakefield, and Bertha H. Putnam, former professor at Mount Holyoke. Rudolf E. Uhlman of Cambridge was awarded another law school scholarship.

Radcliffe 'Etc' Real Surprise

Girls' Views of Life In New Publication

"If you have a chassis
They don't need glasses."

That's one of the bits of poetry appearing in the first issue of "Etc," student publication at Radcliffe, that had university authorities there all of a dither today.

One article describes "Boston night life" as seen through the eyes of a Radcliffe student. Another poem reads:

"Boys in Law—inclined to paw;
Boys in Med—inclined to wed;
Boys in Biz—inclined to fizz;
Boys in Tech—inclined to

And another one reads:

ANTHROPOLOGY

"Hair on the chest

U. S. Agent's Speed Fine Dropped in R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 14 (AP)—A speeding charge against Edward F. Ronan, an investigator for the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit, was dismissed today by Attorney-General John P. Hartigan on the ground that law enforcement officers are often compelled to operate motor vehicles at unreasonable rates of speed in order to make arrests.

The federal officer was arrested here November 27 for driving at 45 miles an hour to Attleboro to intercept a truck carrying a load of soft sugar. He appealed from a $10 fine imposed in district court.

Reject Bill Aimed At Foreign Goods

A measure seeking to force merchants to segregate foreign-made merchandise on special counters was turned down by the House.

A motion to consider the bill, despite an unfavorable report by the committee on mercantile affairs, was defeated 80 to 40, over the protest of legislators from industrial centers.

Teacher, Officer Hurt in Newton

A teacher at the Boston Continuation School was injured in a Newton automobile accident today and a short time later a Newton officer, investigating the case at the scene, was also struck by a car.

The teacher, Charles P. York, 45, of Linwood street, Newtonville, was struck while crossing California street by a car, police said, was operated by Miss Allson Thorogood, 23, of Ridge road, Waban.

Miss Thorogood, according to police, drove to Newtonville square where she notified the police.

While talking to Miss Thorogood, Patrolman James L. Cunningham, 35, of River street, West Newton, was struck by a car police said was operated by John E. Lymer, 61, of Ash street, Waltham.

Joan today told the story of her 1 a. m. visit to "Uncle Franklin" at the White House. She is one of few persons ever to be received at the executive mansion at such an unheard of hour.

"LOVE BIRDS" TO HER

She consented, for the first time, to pose for photographs. At first she demurred—as she did when she left Boston with Anne and John for Washington last week, saying:

"You don't want me. All you want is the love birds."

In an exclusive interview today with the Boston Evening American, she stood on the bronze sea wall of the Clark estate and offered conclusions on the romance of her sister, the President, and a beautiful Nahant cottage, which is to be the scene of the Roosevelt-Clark wedding on June 19.

Her older sister was there, too. But she just listened.

Joan, dark-eyed, pert and yet carefully polite, stroked the head of her glossy dachsund and disposed off her first interview in two minutes flat.

Q—What of the stories about you visiting the White House, tip-toeing down the stairs at 1 a. m. and having a heart-to-heart talk with President Roosevelt, sitting on his lap?

A—I never sat on his lap! I just went down to see him. I like him. He's smart. He wrote his name in my autograph book and said I was one American who came to Washington without a set of demands. Uncle Franklin is swell.

Q—How do you feel about your big sister and John getting married? A—Wonderful. John's okay.

Q—Isn't this a pretty house? A—A VERY pretty house.

Q—What else did you and President Roosevelt talk about? A—This and that. So-and-so.

Q—What do you mean? A—This and that. So-and-so. It's a secret.

"FAIRYLAND" COTTAGE

Therein her elder sister, prowling about the beautiful olive-green swimming pool in front of the house, came over to intercept the conversation. She said she and Joan had decided to visit the semi-completed cottage (high on sea-sprayed rocks) to look things over. Both expressed delight and Joan had an inspiration. She said:

"It's fairyland by the sea."

With a toss of her curls she stepped into her sister's car and announced solemnly:

"The interview, Mr. Reporter, is over."

Roxbury Man Kills Self

With one end of a gas tube, police said, in his mouth and the other end attached to an open jet, John F. Barrett, 58, a lodger, was found dead today in his room in Dudley street, Roxbury.

Shift in Trains Made by B&M

Boston and Maine Railroad officials today announced rearrangement of its service on the Fitchburg division, effective with the institution of daylight saving time on April 24.

The new schedule in effect eliminates four trains between South Acton and Fitchburg, two in each direction, and provides seven new trains between South Acton and Boston. Four will be inbound and three outbound daily.

According to a statement released by the line, the rearrangement was occasioned by "the imperative need for economy and a desire to keep our passenger train service adjusted to present and prospective patronage."

Shocking Way To Go Fishing

Two-Volt Jolt to Get 18-Inch Trout

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—The Bureau of Fisheries got a shock today—officials heard of a new plan of fishing with electricity.

Franz Hager, its advocate, claims the method is more humane than hooks, seines or net. A three-horsepower dynamo furnishes the current to two long poles that have electrodes on them.

The fisherman, pole in hand, walks up and down the stream electrocuting the fish. Hager says it takes a two-volt jolt to get an 18-inch trout.

Ex-Army Athlete Dies in Air Crash

SANTONIO, Tex., April 14 (INS)—Second Lieutenant R. R. Hubbard, 26, former track star at West Point, was killed today when his army training plane crashed near Randolph Field, where he was a student flier.

WPA Clerks Pay Cut on N. H. Jobs

CONCORD, N. H., April 14 (AP)—Wages for 300 to 400 clerical workers on Works Progress projects in New Hampshire dropped to conform to the prevailing hourly wage in Granite State communities.

The WPA state office said workers who had been receiving about $70 a month would get $55 in the future.

Baby Sisters On Odd 'Diets'

One Swallows Quarter, Other Takes Fuel Oil

Two infant Dorchester sisters, one of whom swallowed a quarter and the other a quantity of fuel oil, today were recovering from the effects of their unusual diets.

Held for observation in City Hospital was 14-month-old Janet McDermott, who drank part of the contents of a can of fuel oil in the kitchen of her Arcadia park home.

Mrs. Martin McDermott rushed her tiny daughter to the hospital when she discovered the child had picked up the can left on the floor by a repair man.

Weight Perils Ill 'Fat Boy,' 6

Randazza, Gloucester Lad, Has Pneumonia

GLOUCESTER, April 14 (AP)—Six-year-old Joseph Randazza's 185-pounds, which brought him fame as Gloucester's "fat boy," threatened today to cost his life in a fight against pneumonia.

Stricken two days ago, Joseph was critically ill today in Addison Gilbert Hospital and Dr. George Doyle said "his extreme obesity might prove fatal."

The doctor explained the lad's temperature "shot up very fast, almost to 105."

Early today the hospital reported the temperature had fallen slightly, but his condition was "not very good." Doctors were using oxygen tanks.

Joseph once was described as the "world's fattest boy."

Report Lindy May Buy Brittany Isle

LONDON, April 14 (INS)—The London Daily Telegraph reported from Paris today that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh may purchase the Isle of Illiec off the north coast of Britanny near St. Gildas Island, where the American airman has been engaged in research work with Dr. Alexis Carrel.

Boy Stab Victim In Grave Condition

Mouseeh M. Mouseehian, 12, victim of a classroom stabbing at the Sherwin school, Roxbury, was still in a coma at City Hospital today, his condition described as "very poor."

Reginald Carter, 12, of Hubert street, Roxbury, said by police to have held the knife that wounded Mouseehian, was free on bail on an assault charge. The Carter boy told police he was sharpening a pencil with a jackknife when other boys pushed young Mouseehian against the blade.

'I'm a Communist, I'll Stay A Communist,' Hicks Reply

liefs will not influence this work.

"I have no objection to taking the Massachusetts teachers' oath, if such is required of me. May I point out to you that that oath pledges the taker to uphold and defend the constitution and government of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and of the United States.

"My whole effort in recent years has been to uphold constitutional government. As a matter of private conscience and personal integrity, I regard any promise—under oath or not—that I may make as solemnly binding."

NO PROPAGANDA AGENCY

Hicks was asked whether he really believes he can counsel Harvard students in American history and literature without his course being colored by his Communist beliefs.

"Well, if I know my Harvard boys," he replied, "my personal opinions or beliefs won't matter a bit.

"I might add, I never have used the classroom as a propaganda agency, and I don't intend to start now."

Hicks is the father of an 11-year-old daughter. He and Mrs. Hicks, a Framingham girl, both were clad in bathrobes when they greeted the reporter.

Hicks explained that since his ouster from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute he had been living quietly, writing and editing. His latest book, "I Like America," is about to be published.

Hicks has completed a biography of John Reed, American Red "hero" whose body lies near Lenin's tomb in the Kremlin in Moscow, and he is working on an edition of the letters of Lincoln Steffens.

Elks Denounce Hicks' Choice; Harvard Split

Resolutions condemning appointment of Granville Hicks, Communist propagandist, as a Harvard teacher were adopted by the Weltown Lodge of Elks at a large attended meeting last night.

The Elks, an organization which requires American citizenship as a requisite to membership and which displays the flag at all meetings, should be one of the first, the resolutions said, to denounce "the destructive and disloyal aspects of Communism."

It expressed hope that the Weltown lodge action would be followed by similar action by Elks lodges throughout the Commonwealth.

The resolution was introduced by Esteemed Leading Knight Willis Paquet, an attorney.

OTHER LODGES IN LINE

More than 500 attended the meeting at which Robert C. Mulcahy was installed as exalted ruler with other officers for the year.

Delegations were present from Boston, Winthrop, Cambridge, Waltham, Newton, Maynard, Medford and Framingham.

Addresses were made by Distrct Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex county and former Governor's Councillor James H. Brennan.

Other speakers were Middlesex County Commissioner Thos. Brennan, Representative Daniel Honan of Winthrop, John L. O'Brien, exalted ruler of the Cambridge Elks' lodge, and Chas. Harrington, newly named state insurance commissioner.

At the same time, Harvard students were charged by Cambridge police authorities with being already active in Communist activities—the enrollment of Cambridge school children in the Young Communist League.

MAKING LITTLE REDS

One 16-year-old boy was taken into custody at the Central Vocational school, where, police said, he was distributing Communist pamphlets and obtaining membership "pledges" for the league.

The boy, the police said, told them the local unit of the league was organized and is being directed by a group of Harvard students.

Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge declared:

"If we can find out who is behind this drive, they will be arrested."

Preceding the action of the Elks last night was the protest of the state convention of the Grand Army of the Republic.

SPLIT AT HARVARD

The G. A. R. veterans yesterday unanimously adopted a resolution denouncing Hicks' appointment. This, too, was followed by similar action on the part of various G. A. R. auxiliaries—the Women's Relief Corps, the Sons of Union Veterans and the Sons of Union Veterans' Auxiliary.

At Harvard itself, the student body was reported split wide open. Petitions to the faculty to rescind Hicks' appointment continued in circulation, but the newly organized Young Conservatives, supposedly organized to combat "radical" tendencies, came out with a statement saying the appointment on grounds of "academic freedom."

As a result of this, one student director of the organization, outspoken in his denunciation of Hicks' appointment, has resigned.

Brown Daily Loads Harvard's Action

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 14 (AP)—The Brown Daily Herald declared in an editorial today that in appointing Granville Hicks to his faculty "Harvard University has shown the world why it is the outstanding educational institution in America."

In addition to the editorial praising Harvard for ignoring the "fury of bigotry" in opposition to the Hicks appointment, the Brown student newspaper also published a front-page letter addressed to Mrs. James Cunningham Graham of Boston and State Commander Patrick S. O'Connell of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The latter suggests that Hicks be appointed to the Brown faculty for one year before going to Harvard and says Brown "guarantees" to return Mr. Hicks to Harvard as a respectable Republican."

First Drink at 15 Blamed by Girl For Downfall

Seized With 4 Robbery Suspects, Faces Sherborn Return

She took her first drink at 15 in a South Boston speakeasy—and that was what led to her downfall, 22-year-old Lillian Connelly of Codman place, Roxbury, told probation officials today.

Found in company with four youths accused by police of blazing a trail of robbery and shootings through Greater Boston, the girl was arraigned in Roxbury court today on two statutory charges.

Held in total bail of $600 for a hearing tomorrow, she sobbed bailed and taken home by an aunt.

"All the boys that I'm taking a rap," she said to Miss Elizabeth Kingston, probation officer.

IN LINEUP AGAIN

Authorities also said she would be sent back to Sherborn. The girl, police said, previously served only six months of a five-year term for breaking, entering and larceny before being paroled.

Meanwhile, the four youths were placed in the lineup again at police headquarters and viewed by various victims of recent Greater Boston holdups. None identified them. The four were seized with $5000 worth of alleged loot, guns and dope in a Roxbury rooming house.

VIEWED BY 60 VICTIMS

They are all held on charges of suspicion of armed robbery, save their names as John F. Durand, of Tuckerman street, James Callahan of Vinton street, Robert F. Galvin, of Champlain street, all of South Boston and Frank J. Sidorowics, of Morland street, Roxbury.

The girl was seized as she entered the house with Sidorowics after spending an evening at the movies.

The four have been viewed by more than 60 holdup victims.

Wage Bill 'Low' Of 25 Cents Seen

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—The House labor committee voted today to eliminate all differentials from wage-hour legislation now being drafted. Members predicted a graduated minimum wage, starting at 25 cents an hour, would be approved.

The committee acted on the wage differentials after rejecting the Ramspeck sub-committee's more flexible measure, which would have empowered an independent agency to impose a graduated minimum wage.

These steps made the legislation conform more closely to demains of the American Federation of labor. Chairman Norton (D-) of New Jersey said the committee would meet again today.

The DAILY MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Unless the President takes the offensive in his fight with Congress, it looks as if he is in for another bitter row over his spending program.

First warning of this was given by Congressman Jack Dempsey of New Mexico, to colleagues who were exulting over their Reorganization Bill victory. Referring to Roosevelt's proposal for a new $1,000,000,000 public works bill, Dempsey shouted:

"And don't think the President will get this new spending program through the way he wants it. We'll do him up in knots and earmark it the way we want it, not the way he wants it."

In other words, if Congress has its way the new spending program will become one gigantic piece of pork, with each Congressman grabbing off a new post office, a newly dredged creek, or a newly irrigated desert.

PORK CHAMPION—Congressman Dempsey, by the way, hasn't done badly for himself when it comes to pork. The entire state of New Mexico has less than one-fourth the population of the island of Manhattan, but at the last session of Congress, Dempsey secured so much New Deal money for his state that Representative Kleberg of Texas chided him.

"Jack, we're going to introduce a resolution whereby Texas slices some of its territory and gives it to New Mexico so you'll have more room to hold all your projects."

Note—Some Congressmen have turned sour on Roosevelt because they haven't got enough pork or patronage, but this was not the case with Dempsey. Dempsey was swept into office on the Roosevelt landslide supposedly as a New Dealer, but actually is millionaire president of the U. S. Asphalt Corp. with an economic and political philosophy about as close to Roosevelt's as J. P. Morgan's.

RECOVERY PLANS—Following her latest trip across the country, newswoman queried Mrs. Roosevelt at her press conference regarding economic conditions. The First Lady was non-committal, so one of the reporters asked:

"Did you hear any constructive plans for curing the recession?"

"Oh, I came back with a bagful of depression cures. However, the general run of people don't have any constructive criticism."

"What did you do with the plans you brought back?"

"I passed them along."

"To whom?" eagerly demanded a correspondent.

"Oh," said Mrs. Roosevelt with a sly chuckle, "I passed them along to people I think would be interested in them."

Note—Mrs. Roosevelt returned from her tour enthusiastic about the work of the National Youth Administration, and told the president that the NYA staff "was the by Smithsonian officials.

keenest group I have met in a long time. There is more imagination in their projects than in a great many other federal undertaking."

BUSINESS NEEDS—The last man to think the new $1,5000,000,000 loans-to-industry act will be a major recovery factor is RFC Chairman Jesse Jones—who was chiefly responsible for the legislation and will administer it.

"What business needs," the Texan remarked to a friend on the day the bill passed, "is not loans but orders. Any business that has collateral that the RFC will accept doesn't have to come to us for money. The banks will be glad to lend it."

Jones is well qualified to talk in this vein. Since 1934 the RFC has had the power to lend up to $300,000,000 to industry on easy terms. But under Jones' tight-fisted, banker-minded rule only $107,000,000 has been disbursed in the four years.

On the other hand, during this period, the RFC has lavished out several billion dollars to railroads, banks and insurance companies.

3 in Worcester Guilty of Arson

WORCESTER, April 13—All three defendants tried on arson charges in connection with burning the Cavedon Spinning Company were found guilty today in superior court in sealed verdicts.

They are Raymond Cavedon, 26, of Woonsocket, R. I., president of the concern; his brother, Emil Cavedon, 28, of Worcester, secretary-treasurer, and Luigi Coli, 56, night watchman.

When the verdicts were read the wives of the Cavedon brothers became hysterical.

"They're not guilty! You know they're not guilty!" they shrieked as court attendants led them from the courtroom.

Sentence will be imposed next Monday.

The factory was burned December 16, fireman reporting they discovered eight separate fires on an upper floor.

5 Banks to Pay $700,000

Approximately 35,000 depositors in the closed Federal National Bank and the four closed affiliates will be paid an additional 5 per cent dividend in liquidation as a result of a petition approved in federal court today.

Judge Hugh D. McLellan granted authority to Frederic S. Deitrick, receiver, to settle a claim between the Federal National and the four subsidiaries.

This will release approximately $700,000 to the depositors.

Already the Federal National depositors have received 25 per cent of their holdings. It is understood that when the final dividend is paid in 1938, depositors, trapped when the bank closed Dec. 14, 1931, will have received a total of about $15,000,000.

The four subsidiaries are the Inman Trust Company, Cambridge; Lawrence Trust Company, Brockton Trust Company and the Bancroft Trust Company of Worcester.

Vivid Easter Display Here

Blossoms From Many Nations Are Shown

Easter blooms from many countries, attractively massed into one of the city's most unusual floral displays, today filled the Tremont street showrooms of Penn the Florist and will be shown through the week for Easter shoppers.

Against colorful backgrounds of lilies and tulips in full blossom are effective groupings of the bright rhododendron, vivid kurume and Belgium azaleas, yellow genista, delicate pastel hues of French hydrangeas and huge masses of pink daphnes.

Rich blooms of orchids, rare anemones, and such spring favorites as iris, gardenias, snapdragons, sweet peas, pansies, hyacinths and jonquils are also on display.

Numerous varieties of cut flowers, also plants for the home and hardy rose bushes for outdoor setting complete the brilliant assortment.

Felons Call Whitney by 'Mr.' Title

Ex-Broker Greeted Like Visiting Celebrity In Sing Sing

OSSINING, N. Y., April 14 (AP)—Richard Whitney, the man who was able to borrow millions of dollars without collateral, apparently has won the respect of his fellow prisoners in Sing Sing.

Guards reported today that despite Whitney's expressed wish to become just another umber, he was being treated like a visiting celebrity by other inmates.

On the five occasions that they had to speak to him they addressed him as "Mr. Whitney," instead of the usual, "hey, you." Some of the more deferential prisoners touched their caps when they passed him in the corridors.

Guards chuckled over an incident that occurred this morning when a flustered waiter began bawling orders to a group of newcomers in Whitney's tier of cells.

"All the men who came in Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday—(pause)—and Mr. Whitney—please step out of your cells," he yelled.

Whitney was smiling wryly when he stepped out.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes said he had not yet talked to the former Stock Exchange president, who entered the prison three days ago under a 5-10-year sentence for grand larceny.

U. S. Seeks Fleet To Meet New Jap Threat

WASHINGTON, April 14 (INS)—The United States has demanded that Britain and France agree to removal of all restrictions on battleship construction, and is prepared to build a fleet of swift, well-armored "pocket battleships" to meet a new threat by Japan in heavy cruisers.

These two developments occurred today as the navy high command aped a determined program of national defense, calling for construction of two warships to every one Japan lays down.

Britain and France, it was learned, are seeking to hold the United States to an agreement not to build battleships in excess of 42,000 tons, armed with 16-inch guns.

The United States has informed the British and French that arms limitation, for the time being anyway, has palpably failed, and if Japan is exceeding the tonnages of former agreements and keeps her exact naval program secret, the United States has no intention of being shackled in any manner.

Britain and France do not want to build "super-battleships" in excess of 42,000 tons, despite the fact a strong suspicion exists that Japan is exceeding this tonnage. Nor do they want to see the United States or any other navy build 18-inch guns. Both prefer guns of 14-inch caliber.

President Roosevelt's Own Story:

ARTICLE NO. 20
ON HOLDING COMPANIES

(Editor's Note: "Except where it is absolutely necessary to continued functioning of a geographically integrated operating utility system, the utility holding company with its present powers must go," wrote President Roosevelt in sending to Congress on March 12, 1935, a report of the National Power Policy Committee.

(A bill to regulate holding companies had already been introduced in Congress. "I have been watching with great interest," wrote the President, "the fight being waged against the public utility holding company legislation. I have watched the use of investors' money to make the investor believe that the efforts of Government to protect him are designed to defraud him. I have seen much of the propaganda prepared against such legislation—even down to mimeographed sheets of instructions for propaganda to exploit the most far-fetched and fallacious fears."

("Unimpressed" by the propaganda, the President reiterated his recommendation for what opponents labeled a "death-sentence" for holding companies. The vigorous note which follows, written for his books by the President himself and never before published, makes the indictment more specific and traces its background.)

The public utility holding company device during the boom period before 1929 had assumed tremendous proportions. While, of course, the distribution of gas or electricity in any community as a supervised and regulated monopoly is justifiable in order to avoid uneconomic duplication of plants, there is no justification for an extension of that idea of local monopoly to include the common control by a few powerful individual interests of numerous utility plants scattered throughout many states and totally unconnected in operations.

Concentration Of Power

In 1925, holding companies controlled about 65 per cent of the operating electric utility industry. By 1932, thirteen holding groups had seized control of three-fourths of the entire industry, and more than 40 per cent was concentrated in the hands of three large groups—United Corporation, Electric Bond and Share Company, and Insull.

Even these three systems were not entirely independent. By the same period 11 holding company systems had obtained control of more than 80 per cent of the total mileage of natural gas trunk pipe lines.

Through the device of these pyramided holding companies, small groups of men with disproportionately small investment were able to dominate and to manage solely in their own interest tremendous capital investments of other people's money.

This concentration of power had become a form of private Socialism as dangerous as government Socialism.

There had been no attempt to build up systems as an integrated economic whole which might bring actual benefits of economy and efficiency by related operations and unified management.

The large and often unnecessary capitalization required the declaration of unreasonable dividends on the securities of the holding companies.

The consumer in addition to paying the high gas and electricity rates for these unjustifiable dividends, had to bear also the burden of paying rates high enough to pay for the many fees, commissions and other charges levied by the holding companies against their subsidiaries—for management, engineering, accounting, publicity, legal, tax and other general and special services.

The charges so taken by these holding companies from their subsidiary operating companies did not represent bargains freely and openly arrived at by the subsidiary companies in the competitive market. They were dictated by the few individuals who control the holding company.

New Property From Corporate Insiders

The holding companies acquired new property frequently from corporate insiders at exorbitant prices and issued securities on which interest had to be paid wholly out of line with the value of the securities acquired.

Transactions such as these discourage intelligent, permanent investors, and serve no useful purpose to the community other than speculation and easy profits for the few insiders.

We determined that only by federal legislation could security transactions and investments of holding companies be adequately supervised and controlled in the interest of obtaining lower rates, promoting greater and widespread use of gas and electricity, and affording sufficient protection to legitimate investors in utility stocks and bonds.

Attempts by state commissions so to protect consumers and investors from holding-company practices had been necessarily unsuccessful, because of the nation-wide form which the holding company assumed.

Electric Bond and Share Company, for example, had operating companies in 32 of the 48 states. Many holding companies had affiliations with banking interests, construction companies, coal mines, newspapers and other interests throughout the United States.

The state commissions' powers and funds were too limited to make thorough and effective control possible over these far-flung holding company operations.

Besides, by many devious legal and corporate devices, holding companies had always arranged to keep their organization and operations out of reach of state regulation. The only instrumentality for adequate supervision is the federal government.

The Democratic National Platform of 1932 stated: "We advocate regulation to the full extent of federal power of (a) holding companies which sell securities in interstate commerce . . ."

Vigorous Battle Waged by Companies

Much propaganda and misinformation had been spread by public utility interests concerning the effect of the legislation which had been introduced.

The fight waged against this legislation by the public utilities companies, largely with the money of their stockholders without obtaining the consent of the stockholders, continued for several months.

On April 28, 1933, I discussed the matter in a radio talk with the people of the nation.

In Congress the fight on the holding company bill continued, with the House refusing to accept a more drastic measure passed in the Senate. On August 21 the President addressed a leter to Representative Sam Rayburn urging that the House agree to a compromise offered by the Senate conferees. This was done, and on August 26 the measure became law with the President's approval.

The public utility holding act provides in general for the regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission of the financial practices of interstate holding company systems controlling gas and electric utilities.

The holding companies are now required to register with and make reports to the commission; and, with certain exceptions, cannot issue or sell securities or acquire securities or utility assets without the consent of the commission.

Inter-company transactions are strictly regulated and supervised. The act also calls for simplification of the corporate structure of utility holding companies and its confinement of their business with certain exceptions to an economically integrated system, beginning January 1, 1938.

Such a system is defined in the act as one whose assets are physically interconnected or capable of being so connected, and which under normal conditions may be economically operated at a single interconnected and co-ordinated system confined to a single area not so large as to impair (considering the state of the art and the area affected) the advantages of localized management, efficient operation and the effectiveness of regulation.

The holding-company industry has made a bitter and protracted legal fight against this legislation. As of December 1, 1937, only slightly less than one-third of the industry (on the basis of consolidated assets) had registered in accordance with the act.

It is expected by this act to prevent the many abuses which led to its adoption and which have caused not only great loss to investors in public utility stocks but increased rates to the consumers of gas and electricity.

WPA Workers' Pay Slashed in N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., April 14—Between 300 and 400 Works Progress Administration clerical workers received wage cuts today because the prevailing hourly wage in New Hampshire communities "does not justify" continuance of the WPA scale.

The State WPA office said employes who have been getting $70 a month would be cut to $55.

The number named is 25 fewer than appointed by former Mayor Mansfield. Of the 78 constables, 32 were re-appointed and 71 constables now employed will be dropped April 30 when their terms expire.

President Moves For Refugees Aid

Confers With Committee of Seven On Contributions For Project

WASHINGTON, April 14 (INS)—President Roosevelt moved today to translate into reality his proposal for concerted international action to evacuate political refugees from the Austro-German Reich.

Putting aside pressing economic problems, the President conferred with a non-sectarian committee of seven, on whom he is depending for estimates of the amounts American religius and philanthropic groups can contribute to the project.

Following the White House meeting, the group conferred at greater length with Secretary Hull, Under-Secretary Welles and Assistant Secretary Messersmith. Hull said the conference was preliminary. The conferees made no statement.

DISCUSS QUOTAS

Secretary of Labor Perkins and Immigration Commissioner Houghteling sat in at the second conference, Houghteling outlining the number of refugees United States immigration quotas will allow.

The State department meantime disclosed 27 of the 31 nations the President invited to form an international committee have replied, Italy, alone, rejected the proposal.

Unheard from so far are the British Commonwealths of Canada and Australia, Cuba and Switzerland, where a State Department note suggested the international committee hold its first meeting.

Responsible sources disclosed the conferees were told the immigration law and the requirement that the evacuations be privately financed would necessarily limit the number of refugees admitted to the United States.

PITIFUL PLEAS

The Department was reported in receipt of thousands of pleas, some of them "most piteous."

At the conference were: Raymond Fosdick, Rockefeller Foundation; the Rev. Samuel Cavert, Federal Council of Churches; Magr. Michael J. Ready, representing Archbishop Rummel of New Orleans; Louis Kenedy, National Council of Catholic Men; Henry Morgenthau, Sr., former ambassador to Turkey; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier.

Meanwhile the House immigration committee postponed hearings on bills proposing to provide asylum for political and religious refugees. Chairman Dickstein (D.) of New York, said the postponement was ordered pending reports from the President's conference and from government departments having to do with immigration.

Franco's Force Within 9 Miles Of Coast

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Border), April 14 (AP)—Hard-driving Insurgent forces under General Miguel Aranda today captured the village of La Jana, bringing the advance guard of their southern wing within nine miles of the Mediterranean coast.

La Jana is on the road between San Mateo, which fell to the Insurgents earlier today, and the coastal city of Vinaros, objective of the right wing of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's great eastern drive to cut government Spain in two.

Government defense lines in this sector were reported to be weakening.

A supporting Insusrgent column, driving eastward along a parallel secondary road, reached the outskirts of Cervera Del Maestro, due east of San Mateo and south of La Jana. This road reaches the seacoast at Benicarlo.

Dispatches from Andorra, tiny republic wedged between the Pyrenees borders of France and Spain, said an Insurgent column driving northward on the road from Lerida had reached the village of Tor, only three miles from the French border.

Japanese Fleet Off Foochow

SHANGHAI, April 14 (INS)—With the land forces of Japan falling steadily back before a relentless Chinese drive in the north, a great armada of 20 Japanese warships today reportedly appeared off Foochow, South China's metropolis of 450,000 people.

Concentration of the Japanese fleet in the mouth of the River Min May, it was believed, marked the opening of a southern offensive designed to divert Chinese forces from the north.

Simultaneously a huge fleet of 40 airplanes bombarded Foochow, causing a large loss of life and great property damage. The airplanes presumably came from an aircraft carrier attached to the naval contingent.

Large-scale activities against Foochow, capital of Fukien province, would amount to the first major Japanese operations in South China. Smaller movements have been carried out in the Canton sector, but Japan has not yet carried the war on a grand scale to the southern provinces.

Schuschnigg Move Hidden

Austrian Reported In Prison Camp

LONDON, April 14—The Nazi lid of secrecy today balked efforts of investigators to learn of the welfare of former Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, reported transferred to the big Nazi concentration camp at Dachau, Germany.

Schuschnigg had been reported in a dispatch from Vienna to have been taken along with a number of other political prisoners to the Dachau camp. It is expected that he will be tried at Liepzig, Germany, in June, possibly on "treason charges."

Meanwhile it was reported by the London Daily Herald that Franz Boach, Vienna editor and friend of Schuschnigg will shortly go to the United States to seek intervention of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago in behalf of the former chancellor. Boach is understood to be in London now.

Russ-Jap Fight Is Reported

SHANGHAI, April 14 (INS)—Issuance of visas for transportation across Siberia was suspended today, arousing rumors fighting has broken out between Soviet Russia and Japan's puppet empire of Manchukuo.

Belief was expressed the visas were suspended to enable the Soviets to rush troop concentrations to Siberia in view of the tenes relations between the U. S. S. R. and Japan.

Russian troops in Siberia would be within striking distance of Manchukuo, resources of which have become vital to Japan as a result of the protracted Sino-Japanese war.

700 in Pawtucket Accept Pay Cut

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 14 (AP)—Nearly 700 employes of J. and P. Coats, Inc., thread manufacturers, went to work today under an agreement to accept a 12½ per cent wage cut. The pay cut, part of a pact between company officials and organizers of the CIO, was accepted last night. Workers receiving less than $18 weekly will not be affected.

France Faces Drop In World Prestige

Nearly Bankrupt, May Slip to Second Rate Power, Says Knickerbocker

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1938)

PARIS, April 14 (INS)—France is virtually bankrupt. Capital and labor in France are at each other's throats with a ferocity almost approaching civil war.

France has practically lost all her allies, except England. With the approaching victory of Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Spain, she is surrounded by enemies. France now faces a "Greater Germany" with a population of 74,800,000.

France is about to slip from the status of a great power to that of another Sweden.

DAY OF RECKONING

Behind the picture is the fact, unrealized until now, that France has never yet paid for the great war. She ran her war finances on the slogan.

"Germany will pay all."

As the great economist Gide put it:

"The French government performed the feat of carrying on the most expensive of all wars without requiring the French taxpayer to contribute a single penny."

The statistics are that for the five years from 1914 through 1918 the French government's revenue was 26,000,000,000 francs, while its expenditure was 170,000,000,000 francs.

The difference of 144,000,000,000 francs was met by borrowing—85 per cent from its own citizens and 20 per cent from abroad, mostly from America.

Today has come the hour of payment for this prodigious feat of self-deception, and the 54-year-old Premier, Edouard Daladier, a widower with two sons, has assumed the colossal task.

WITHOUT PARLIAMENT

The plenary powers just granted by the Chamber and Senate, authorizing the government to take, by decree, all necessary measures to finance national defense, actually allow Daladier to govern altogether without Parliament.

His position now is technically differentiated from that of Hitler and Mussolini only by the fact he must obtain agreement of his cabinet and by limitation of his extraordinary powers to three and one-half months.

The 19th period the French Parliament has abdicated to its 24th government within the past ten years.

Daladier's own record affords a parallel commentary on the curious character of French parliamentary government. He has served as a minister in 12 governments since 1926, twice before as premier.

The almost unanimous votes in the Chamber and Senate for his plenary powers show the nation finally has realized the desperate state of affairs.

The question now is whether Daladier can become another Clemenceau. His needs are, first, to find one-quarter of a billion dollars to meet the deficit, and, second, to conciliate workers and employers, some of whom would like to take up arms and fight it out as the Spanish are doing.

Third, he needs to keep down the rising cost of living and increase production, and fourth, try to recover at least part of the 80,000,000,000 francs of French money hiding abroad.

Fifth, he must attempt to restore the French system of alliances, and, sixth, build up the French army, navy and air force in an effort to keep up with Germany and Italy and at the same time placate these two menacing neighbors.

Daladier's chief trouble is that his powers are only on paper. Like Hitler and Mussolini, he promises all things to all men, assuring employers they can increase production, hire more workers and safely bring their capital back from abroad, while at the same time assuring the workers they will not be deprived of any of their social benefits which are the chief cause of the present economic crisis.

NEEDS DICTATOR POWERS

He declares he will keep the cost of living from rising, at the same time declaring the workers must not be deprived of their increased wages.

These incomplete promises could only be reconciled by a dictator with real physical power, such as Hitler possesses in his S. S. police, and Mussolini possesses with his Black Shirts.

In Germany and Italy, if the government fails to satisfy the workers on the one hand and the employers on the other, neither dares to squeak because of the physical threat of husky uniformed youths ready to pound the virtues of self-sacrifice into individuals unwilling to put the nation's welfare ahead of their own.

At the same time Daladier faces these domestic difficulties he has got to struggle to keep France from slipping irrevocably into the rank of a second-class power.

This fate would be much worse than merely a loss of prestige, because it would finally mean loss of France's great empire of colonies.

FOLLOW BRITAIN'S PLAN

Daladier proposes to attempt a rapprochement with Germany and Italy, to appoint an ambassador to the hitherto vacant post in Rome, to support Britain's proposals to recognize Ethiopia's conquest by Italy and in general to follow British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of slapping enemies on the back while building guns.

Daladier has great powers, but even greater tasks. Whether he can accomplish them depends in part on whether he has grown in stature and wisdom since his second premiership ended in February, 1934, when a French mob and firing police drove his government from power.

Tugwell Takes Over N. Y. Planning Job

NEW YORK, April 14 (INS)—Rexford Guy Tugwell, former number one brain truster in the Roosevelt administration, took over his duties today as chairman of the city planning commission. He was sworn in by Mayor LaGuardia.

Tugwell accepted the $15,000 a year city job after obtaining a leave of absence from the American Molasses Company with which he had been associated since leaving Washington.

Seek to Refloat Ship on Boston Run

FISHERS ISLAND, N. Y., April 14 (AP)—A contracting firm took over today the task of floating the City of St. Louis, 371-foot cargo and passenger vessel, grounded on perilous rocks at Wilderness Point.

The crew of 46 men, under Captain L. C. Urquhart, escaped when the boat went aground while coming out of foggy Block Island Sound yesterday on a voyage from Boston to her home port of Savannah. There were no passengers.

Daladier Seeks To End Strikes

PARIS, April 14 (INS)—Leaving the task of governing France to Edouard Daladier, the nation's new premier, the French Senate and Chamber of Deputies began a six-week Spring recess today, after giving the government power to apply drastic remedies to French economic ills.

Wielding more power than any premier in France since the world war, Daladier immediately buckled down to the task of ending the wave of strikes, in which 150,000 workers still are idle.

Immediately the franc strengthened and stocks on the Bourse rose.

Curfew Silent—Worn Out

LOCKPORT, N. Y., April 14 (AP)—Curfew will not ring in this city any more. It's worn out. Chief Engineer Edwin J. Coyle said today curfew at 9 p. m. would be discontinued because the mechanism in the fire tower for ringing the hour had worn out.

Taft's Widow Gets $5000 Under Will

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 14 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Taft, widow of President William Howard Taft, was among the beneficiaries of the will of Mrs. Emma F. G. Bigelow which disposed of an estate valued in excess of $150,000.

The will, admitted to probate yesterday, left Mrs. Taft $5,000 and all Mrs. Bigelow's jewelry. Mrs. Bigelow was the widow of Colonel Charles Bigelow.

Britain War Minister Off for Visit to Duce

LONDON, April 14 (AP)—Leslie Hore-Belisha, Britain's war minister, took off from Hendon airdromes today on a trip that will take him to see the military defenses of Malta and talk with Premier Mussolini.

As the war minister's big plane headed toward Marseille, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told Commons Hore-Belisha would pay Il Duce "a courtesy visit" in the interests of the expected signing of the Anglo-Italian friendship agreement and the visit to Rome of Il Duce's present brother in the Rome-Berlin axis—Adolf Hitler.

Amid cheers, Chamberlain said it was hoped the agreement would be signed Saturday.

As completion of the agreement neared, Britain inclined toward closer ties with the United States and France.

MAY BUY U. S. PLANES

Reports were current in Paris that Chamberlain, after waiting for establishment of a stable ministry in France, would now take steps to bring France into the Anglo-Italian friendship framework.

Some sections of the British press predicted with little qualification that French Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet would meet shortly with British Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax for a discussion of Anglo-French policy.

At the same time, the press was jubilant over the Commons statement of Earl Winterton, undersecretary for the air ministry, that Britain was making inquiries about airplane purchases from the United States to bolster her Royal Air Force.

PROPOSE INTERCHANGE

The newspaper added:

"The United States would not do as much for a totalitarian state. She has clearly indicated that her great influence will be used on the side of democracy."

The Telegraph & Morning Post editorially suggested the United States could build fighting planes faster than Britain, but that Britain could construct merchant ships more rapidly and cheaply than the United States.

"Is it impossible to suggest an interchange of these essential services?" the newspaper asked.

ROME, April 14 (AP)—The foreign office announced today that the Anglo-Italian accord, designed to end two years of friction between the two powers, will be signed Saturday, April 16, at the Chigi Palace, by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and the Earl of Perth, Britain's ambassador. Drafting of the accord was completed today.

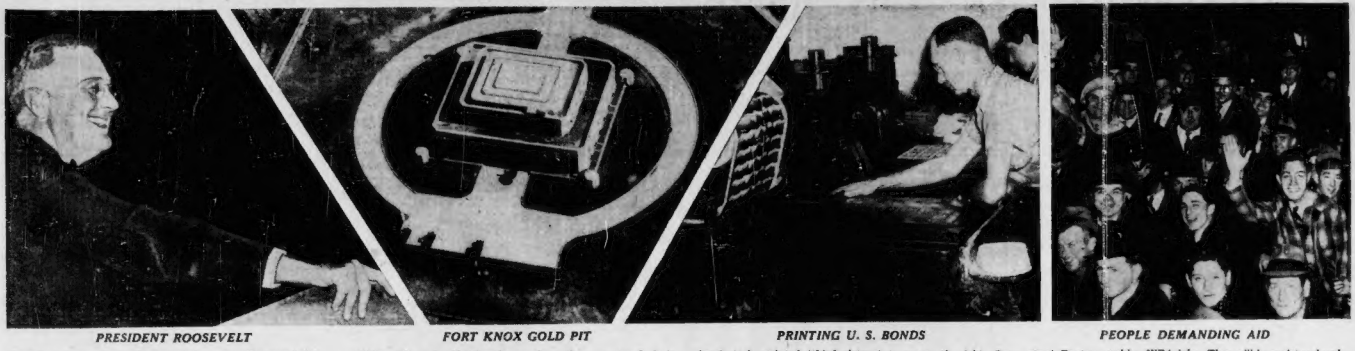
President Views Nation's Gold, Its Bonded Debt, Its People



PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT — FORT KNOX GOLD PIT — PRINTING U. S. BONDS — PEOPLE DEMANDING AID

President Roosevelt, in characteristic pose, who revealed today in a message to Congress his newest plans for a gigantic spending program. He aims again to revive business by providing jobs and relief for thousands so they can spend. It is proposed that some of the nation's vast hoard of gold buried at Knox, Ky., (second picture) be desterilized to back up the bonds to be printed (third picture) to secure the debt. One billion, 400 million dollars of this gold would be used under the President's plan. Photo at right shows people at 18 Oliver street, Boston, seeking WPA jobs. They will be registered and aided under the new Roosevelt plan if it is finally approved by Congress. International News Photograph Service.

Text of Roosevelt Message:

Tells Congress Fears Unfounded

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on business and relief aids follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

The prosperity of the United States is of necessity a primary concern of government.

Current events, if allowed to run undisturbed, will continue to threaten the security of our people and the stability of our economic life.

The national administration has promised never to stand idly by and watch its people, its business system and its national life disintegrate.

It is because the course of our economics has run adversely for half a year that we owe it to ourselves to turn it in the other direction before the situation becomes more definitely serious.

When this administration took office it found business, credit and agriculture in collapse. The collapse had followed on the heels of over-speculation in and over-production of practically every article or instrument used by man.

During the processes of over-speculation and over-production—in the twenties—millions of people had been put to work, but the products of their hands had exceeded the purchasing power of their pocketbooks, with the result that huge surpluses, not only of crops but also of buildings and goods of every kind, overhung the market.

Under an inexorable law of supply and demand, supplies so overran demand which would pay that production was compelled to stop.

Unemployment and closed factories resulted. Hence the tragic years from 1929 to 1933.

Cites Rise in Income, Spending

Starting in March, 1933, the Congress and the administration devoted themselves unceasingly, not only to re-establishing reservoirs of credit, but to putting purchasing power in the hands of the consuming public and actually securing a more equitable distribution of the national income. Thus the downward spiral was stopped—and not merely stopped, but started on its upward course—a trend lasting through four years and a half.

In 1928 the national income was eighty billion dollars; in 1932 it had fallen to less than forty billion dollars.

Since the low point of 1932, each year including 1937, has shown a steady increase in the income which the nation produced, reflected in increased wages and salaries, in increased dividends, interest and individual's income. In 1937 the total of our citizens' income had risen to sixty-eight billion dollars.

At the end of 1936 the efforts of the government to aid in increasing the nation's purchasing power and in stimulating business had become so well recognized that both the business community and the government felt that a large measure of the government's spending activities could be materially reduced.

But the very vigor of the recovery in both durable goods and consumers' goods brought into the picture early in 1937 certain highly undesirable practices which were in large part responsible for the collapse which began to unfold in the later months of that year. Again production outran the ability to buy.

None of People's Fear Realized

There were many reasons for this overproduction. One was fear—fear of war abroad, fear of inflation, fear of nation-wide strikes.

None of these fears has been borne out. There were other causes of overproduction, and these causes differed in each industry.

The net result of these causes and ill-advised practices was a repetition, on a small scale, of what had happened in 1927, 1928 and 1929 on a much larger scale. In other words, production in many important lines of goods outran the ability of the public to purchase them.

For example, through the winter and spring of 1937 cotton factories in hundreds of cases were running on a three-shift basis, piling up cotton goods in the factory and in the hands of middlemen and retailers.

For example, also, automobile manufacturers not only turned out a normal increase of finished cars but encouraged the normal increase to run into abnormal figures, using every known method to push their sales.

This meant, of course, that the steel mills of the nation ran on a 24-hour basis, and the tire companies and cotton factories speeded up to meet the same type of abnormally stimulated demand. The buying power of the nation lagged behind.

Thus by the autumn of 1937 the nation again had stocks on hand which the consuming public could not buy because the purchasing power of the consuming public had not kept pace with the production.

During the same period prior to last autumn, the prices of many vital products had risen faster than was warranted.

For example, copper—which undoubtedly can be produced at a profit in this country for from ten to twelve cents a pound—was pushed up and up to seventeen cents a pound. The price of steel products of many kinds was increased far more than was justified by the increased wages of steel workers.

Prices Higher Than in 1929 Boom

In the case of many commodities the price to the consumer was raised well above the inflationary boom prices of 1929. In many lines of goods and materials, prices are so high that buyers and builders ceased to buy and build.

One more, as in 1929, the economic process of getting out the raw materials, putting them through the manufacturing and finishing processes, selling them to the retailers, selling them to the consumer, and finally using them got completely out of balance.

The government of the United States, fearing just such an event, had issued warnings in April, 1937, against these practices of overproduction and high prices. The federal reserve system curtailed banking credit, and the Treasury commenced to "sterilize" gold as a further brake on what it was feared might turn into a run-away inflation.

The simple fact is that laying off of workers came upon us last autumn and has been continuing at such a pace ever since that all of us, government and banking and business and workers, and those faced with destitution, recognize the need for action.

It should be noted in fairness that since January 1, 1937, the President has recommended to the Congress only four measures of major importance to the business of the country.

1—Legislation to stabilize agriculture. A comprehensive law was approved by me two months ago.

2—Legislation to end serious loopholes in our personal income tax laws. This was enacted last summer.

3—Legislation to put a floor under wages and a ceiling over hours of labor in industry, and

4—Tax legislation to remove inequities from the undistributed profits tax, especially as they affect the smaller type of business. Both this measure and the third are still under consideration by the Congress.

Vital Things To Be Done Now

The record speaks for itself. No other measures affecting business have been proposed.

All the energies of government and business must be directed to increasing the national income and putting more people into private jobs; to giving security and the feeling of security to all people in all walks of life.

I believe that improvement in government and business practices must go hand in hand with recovery—that they should be, and will be, a definite aid to recovery.

While I do not wish in this message to over-emphasize some of the needs, I do want to say that I believe that we must be definitely aware of certain of them—the elimination of future tax exempt bonds of all kinds of government agencies; the subjecting of government salaries and wages of all kinds to federal and state income taxes; a serious undertaking to solve the railroad problem and the problems of monopolistic practices and price fixing.

These are no new subjects; nor have I anything to add to them except the statement that their solution will help and not hurt business.

At the same time, I must repeat what I believe the overwhelming majority of both houses of the Congress will agree to—that the Congress and the chief executive can ill afford to weaken or destroy great reforms which, during the past five years, have been effected on behalf of the American people.

In our rehabilitation of the banking structure and of agriculture, in our provisions for adequate and cheaper credit for all types of business, in our acceptance of national responsibility for unemployment relief, in our strengthening of the credit of state and local governments, in our encouragement of housing, slum clearance and home ownership, in our supervision of stock exchanges and public utility holding companies and the issuance of new securities, in our provision for social security, the electorate of America wants no backward steps taken.

No Cause for Public Alarm

We have recognized the right of labor to free organization, to collective bargaining; and machinery for the settling of labor relations is now in existence.

The principles are established even though we can all admit that through the evolution of time administration and practices can be improved. Such improvement can come about most quickly and most peacefully through sincere efforts to understand and assist on the part of labor leaders and employers alike.

The never-ceasing evolution of human society will doubtless bring forth new problems which will require new adjustments. Our immediate task is to consolidate and maintain for the gains achieved.

In this situation there is no reason and no occasion for any American to allow his fears to be aroused or his energy and enterprise to me paralyzed by doubt or uncertainty.

Our situation is vastly different from that which we faced five years ago. Let us use the tools already forged and laid out on the bench.

At this immediate time we suffer from a failure of consumer demand. The hoped for re-employment of this spring is not proceeding fast enough to create an economic upturn.

Therefore the problem calls for action both by the government and by the people.

It cannot be disputed that the national income which was thirty-eight billions in 1932, sixty-eight billions in 1937 is now running at the lesser rate of about fifty-six billions.

If it can be increased to $80,000,000,000 in the course of the next year at two the whole economic picture will be different. Hundreds of thousands more people will be employed in private industry, hundreds of thousands fewer will be in need of relief and consumer demand for goods will be greatly stimulated.

Private Funds Must Get to Work

Do not set eighty billion dollars as the national income goal. It ought to rise in the next decade to more than one hundred billion.

I want to make it clear that we do not believe that we can get an adequate rise in national income merely by investing, lending or spending Federal funds.

It is essential in our economy that private funds be put to work and that all of us recognize that such funds are entitled to a fair profit.

As citizen income rises, let us not forget that Government expenditures will go down and Government tax receipts will go up.

How and where can and should the Government help to start an upward spiral?

I propose to the Congress three groups of measures:

1—In the first category I place additional appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July, 1938. These will not put more money in the hands of the consuming public than we are spending in the current fiscal year, but they will prevent men and women from being thrown out of work on July 1. They will stop the spiral from continuing its downward course.

(A) I recommend an appropriation of one billion two hundred and fifty million dollars for the Works Progress Administration, to be used during the first seven months of the next fiscal year. Such a grant is ammunition of the highest grade for attack on unemployment. It will not greatly increase the present rate of expenditure, but ought to be sufficient to care for the additional men and women who have come or are coming to an end of their unemployment insurance payments.

Funds for CCC And Farm Aid

B—For the Farm Security Administration an appropriation of one hundred and seventy-five million dollars for the next fiscal year.

C—For the National Youth Administration the sum of seventy-five million dollars to cover the full fiscal year.

D—For the Civilian Conservation Corps the sum of fifty million dollars additional to maintain the existing number of camps now in operation.

I call your attention to the fact that these appropriations will avert the laying off of people now receiving assistance from the federal government.

In this same category of stopping the downward spiral, I also place the authorization recently given for the lending of money to business enterprises by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

I do so because the greater part of such loans will go to businesses which are in grave danger of shutting down and throwing people out of employment.

Some of the money, but, in all probability only the smaller part of the loans, will enable businesses to employ more people or start new enterprises.

Use of Nation's Sterilized Gold

2. In the second category, the administration proposes immediately to make additional bank reserves available for the credit needs of the country. This can be done without legislation.

It will be done through the desterilization of approximately one billion four hundred million dollars of Treasury gold, accompanied by action on the part of the Federal Reserve Board to reduce reserve requirements by about three-quarters of a billion dollars.

The Federal Reserve Board informs me that they are willing to do so. These measures will make more abundant the supply of funds for commerce, industry and agriculture. By themselves, however, monetary measures are insufficient to start on a sustained upward movement.

"As a part of better administration I hope that federal banking supervision can be better coordinated. In addition I am requesting that the Securities Exchange Commission consider such simplification or regulations as will assist and expedite the financing, particularly of small business enterprises.

3. I come, therefore, to the third category which I consider to be vital. The first two categories—maintenance of relief and the expansion of credit might prove sufficient—but in my judgment other measures are essential.

You and I cannot afford to equip ourselves with two rounds of ammunition where three rounds are necessary.

If we stop at relief and credit, we may find ourselves without ammunition before the army is routed. If we are fully equipped with the third round of ammunition, we stand to win the battle against adversity.

This third proposal relates solely to definite additions to the purchasing power of the nation by providing new work:

(A) As for certain amendments to the United States Housing Authority act to permit the undertaking of the immediate construction of about $200,000,000 of additional projects. The federal housing administration is prepared to increase the already mounting volume of home and apartment construction.

Asks Renewal Of Public Works

(B) I ask for a renewal of public works projects. I believe that by the expenditure of $450,000,000, and the granting of authority to loan up to $1,800,000,000 to states and their sub-divisions, a vast number of well thought out, needed and permanent public improvements can be undertaken this summer and autumn.

I believe that the aid of the federal government should be put in optional form—either the existing method of 45 per cent grant and 55 per cent loan, or the advancing of the whole sum as loans to states and their subdivisions without interest.

Under such a plan the federal government would assume the payment of the principal by amortization or rental.

Under either method the ultimate cost to the federal government and to the states and their subdivisions is approximately the same.

It is my thought that the total ultimate out of pocket cost to the federal government by either or both methods should be limited to one billion dollars, and furthermore that no loans or grants should be made on any state or local projects which cannot be started within six months of the date of the enabling legislation, and completed within a year or a year and a half from the commencement of work.

(C) I recommend the appropriation of $100,000,000 to the bureau of public roads for highways in excess of the amount I have previously recommended in the budget for the fiscal year 1939, but I request that this additional amount be used only for projects which can be definitely started this calendar year.

Flood Control Aid Asked

(D) I recommend an appropriation of $37,000,000 over and above estimates for the immediate undertaking of flood control and reclamation works to be expended on projects already authorized by this or former Congresses.

(E) I recommend the appropriation of $25,000,000 additional for federal buildings.

A summary of these recommendations falls into two categories:

1—Expenditures from the Treasury for work:

Works Progress Administration	$1,250,000,000
Farm Security Administration	75,000,000
National Youth Administration	$75,000,000
Civilian Conservation Corps	50,000,000
Public Works Administration	450,000,000
Highways	100,000,000
Flood control	37,000,000
Federal buildings	25,000,000
Total	$2,062,000,000

2—Loans from the Treasury for

Farm Security Administration	$100,000,000
Public Works Administration	550,000,000
United States Housing Administration	30,0000,000
Total	$350,000,000

It should be noted that state and local public works undertakings on a loan basis instead of a loan and grant basis will reduce the item in the first classification.

Spending Only Can Get Us Even

Let us unanimously recognize the fact that the federal debt, whether it be twenty-five billions or forty billions, can only be paid if the nation obtains a vastly increased citizen income.

I repeat that if this citizen income can be raised to 80 billion dollars a year the national government and the overwhelming majority of state and local governments will be "out of the red."

The higher the national income to supplement the normal processes and in so supplementing them to make sure that the addition is adequate.

We must start again on a long, steady upward incline in national income.

I have set my hope, my aim on stabilized prosperity through a steady mounting of our citizens' income and our citizens' wealth. And in the meantime, which I believe is ready to start, let us avoid the pitfalls of the past—the over production and the over-expectation and indeed all the extremes which we did not succeed in avoiding in 1929.

In all of this the government cannot and should not act alone.

Business must help. I am sure business will help.

We need more than the materials of recovery. We need a united national will.

We need to recognize nationally that the demands of no group, however just, can be satisfied unless that group is prepared to share in finding a way to produce the income from which they and all other groups can be paid.

Unjust claims defeat themselves. You, as the Congress, I, as the President, must by virtue of our offices, seek the national good by preserving the balance between all groups and all sections.

We have at our disposal the national resources, the money, the skill of hand and head to raise our economic level—our citizens' income. Our capacity is limited only by our ability to work together. What is needed is the will.

Must Use Every Driving Force

The time has come to bring that will into action with every driving force at our command. And I am determined to do my share.

The responsibility for making this national will effective rests on every individual whether in the government or in industry, or in finance, or in labor, or in the professional fields.

Every man and woman in the United States has the great privilege of making this will productive, and the beneficiary will be the whole of the American people.

Certain positive requirements seem to me to accompany the will—if we have that will.

There is placed on all of us the duty of self-restraint. We still rely on personal responsibility—a responsibility guided by a common conscience. That is the discipline of a democracy.

Every patriotic citizen must say to himself or herself, that immoderate statement, appeals to prejudice, the creation of unkindness, are offenses not against an individual or individuals, but offenses against the whole people of the United States.

Never Can Be Dictator Here

Use of power by any group, however stimulated, to force its interest or to use its strategic position in order to receive more from the common fund than its contribution to the common fund justifies, is an attack against and not an aid to our national life.

Self-restraint implies restraint. Articulate public opinion, trained to distinguish fact from falsehood, trained to believe that bitterness is never a useful instrument in public affairs.

There can be no dictatorship by an individual or by a group in this nation, save through division fostered by hate. Such division there must never be.

Amid the voices which now seek to divide group from group, occupation from occupation, section from section, thinking Americans must insist on common effort in a common endeavor and a common faith in each other.

Let every business man set out to use his stren~th of mind and heart and his confidence in his fellow men and the country.

Let every labor leader find not how work can be stopped but how it can be made to proceed smoothly, continuously and fairly.

Let every public official consider that his task is to use his authority so that the service he renders is adapted to curbing abuses and helping honest effort.

Plea for Tolerant Thought in U. S.

We, a successful democracy, face a troubled world. Elsewhere schools of thought contend that democracy is doomed to failure. Dictatorships find free speech and free exchange of views will destroy democracies.

My confident conviction on the contrary is that the United States retaining free speech and a free exchange of views can furnish a dynamic example of successful government, provided the nation can unite in practical measures when the times call for united action.

The driving force of a nation lies in its spiritual purpose, made effective by free, tolerant but unremitting national will.

In the Western Hemisphere the good neighbor policy has so strengthened the American republics that a spiritual unity in our relations now prevails.

Can that good neighbor message be accepted and practiced in our national life?

If we accept that high and splendid road this free democracy will give successful answer to the fears and questionings which today trouble the minds and souls of men and women the world over.

Swells Bank Credits To Over 21 Billions

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—President Roosevelt proposed today to spend around $5,000,000,000 and to increase about $2,150,000,000 the lendable funds of the nation's banks—the theoretical basis for a $21,500,000,000 expansion in private credit.

Putting his recommendation into effect will boost to a record high of about $3,730,000,000 the lendable resources of the banks. Theoretically, every dollar of lendable money can produce $10 of ultimate credit.

The President sought the increase by ordering release of $1,400,000,000 of idle Treasury gold and by announcing the Federal Reserve Board would reduce reserve requirements of banks by approximately $750,000,000.

Gold will swell the excess reserves—which constitute the lendable funds of banks—indirectly. The Treasury will put the gold to work by using it as the basis for issuing an equivalent amount of gold certificate currency with which it can get a spendable deposit credit at the Federal Reserve banks.

As the Treasury disburses the money to the public for relief and other purposes, the public—either the direct recipients or the merchants with whom they spend it—will put the money in the banks, and the banks then will have it available for loans to business men or others.

7 Billions More For Aid Asked By Roosevelt

states and cities, the principal to be repaid without interest, or on a loan and grant basis, as the borrower preferred. The net cost to the Treasury by either method would be about the same.

While the aggregate of the President's proposals is about $4,000,000,000, the net cost to the Treasury is expected to be far below that figure. Approximately half is to be on a revolving loan basis, with the Treasury expecting its return.

Administrative officials estimated the whole program would involve only $1,712,000,000 in "new money." They arrived at this by figuring the recoverable nature of the proposed loans and the use of old and unexpended funds.

(Desterilized gold is metal which the Treasury has held inactive, lest it lead to inflation, by borrowing to meet the purchase cost. Putting this gold into circulation by issuing gold certificates to the banks will increase bank resources. Member banks of the Federal Reserve System are required to keep a certain amount of funds on deposit with reserve banks as security against deposits.)

For direct relief under the WPA, the President proposed an outlay of $1,250,000,000, and for a resumption of PWA building $450,000,000.

Other direct expenditures would grant $175,000,000 for Farm Security Administration; $75,000,000 for the National Youth Administration; $50,000,000 for the CCC; $100,000,000 for highways; $37,000,000 for flood control and $25,000,000 for construction of new federal buildings.

PIT MORE TO WORK

"All the energies of the government and business," he said, "must be directed to increasing the national income; to putting more people into private jobs; to giving security and the feeling of security to all people in all walks of life."

Mr. Roosevelt salyzed at some length the causes of the 1929 depression, and asserted that "our situation (today) is vastly different from that which we faced five years ago."

He had previously reviewed the reforms accomplished since 1933 in the field of banking and business, the tools to cure the economic slump, he said, are now already forged and laid out on the bench for use.

OVERPRODUCTION

One of the primary causes of the depression which he inherited, he said, was overproduction of everything—such overproduction that the public purchasing power was unable to keep up with it.

What existed in the late twenties on a large scale, he said, has now recurred on a smaller scale—overproduction has got ahead of the ability to buy.

He mentioned cotton fabrics, automobiles and steel in this connection, although his indictment included the general field of manufacturing industries.

Roosevelt reiterated his belief that recovery and reform in government hand in hand.

NEW TAX PLANS

In this connection, he afforded a glimpse into his future policy when he declared outright for the abolition of all sorts of tax-exempt government bonds; taxation of now exempt federal and state salaries; railroad reorganization and a broad general program designed to control monopolies and their price-fixing practice more securely.

Roosevelt On Air Tonight

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP) — President Roosevelt takes to the air in a "fireside chat" from the White House tonight at 10:50 o'clock—the 11th such broadcast he has made since he took office in March, 1933.

About 400 radio stations on all the many networks will carry his words throughout the country, broadcasting officials said.

'I Fought for Stalin in Spain'

Halpern Reveals Mass Slaughters

we dug them in behind low, three-foot earth breastworks. We were supported by—or thought we were to be supported by—Jeff Fairwater's anti-tank guns, which were in our rear.

Jeff was an Englishman. The anti-tank guns fire a one-pound explosive shell. They can fire them as fast as you can fire a rifle. Incidentally, our anti-tank guns could "get" Franco's tanks, but most of his guns were ineffectual against ours. Our tanks were more heavily, or better, armored, perhaps.

MacDougal, my Number 1 man, insisted on putting his head up over our low breastworks and the shield on our gun to look around. He was the first man I saw killed—killed near enough to me to count, that is.

He put his head up once too often—and a bullet caught him squarely between the eyes.

That made me Number 1 man, the gunner. As I say, I'd never fired a machine-gun. I had to learn—fast.

We lay out there in front of those pill-boxes at Belchite for three days. Our artillery pounded them, but mostly the shells aimed at the town beyond.

There was a church in the town. To be perfectly fair, we had every reason to believe this particular church, at least, had an observation post in it. The anti-tank guns, which were supposed to be our support, concentrated their fire on the church instead. Later, Fairwater told me he had orders from Major Merriman to concentrate on the church.

Ask Safety Pledge for Surrender

This, as I say, probably was justified in this instance. But I'll say this, too: As political commissar of the motorcycle division, later, I rode all over "Loyalist" Spain. Everywhere I saw churches in ruins, even where there'd been no fighting.

Local residents of the various towns told me the "Loyalist" Red troops, particularly the Anarchists, deliberately and systematically blew them up with dynamite, or set fire to them and then dynamited what was left of the walls.

On our third day at Belchite, the Dmitroff battalion from the 11th Brigade cut through the other side's right flank, and the town was surrounded. On the night of the fifth day, a messenger from the pill-boxes came over to our lines.

They would surrender—abandon the pill-boxes and come over and give themselves up—if we would guarantee them their lives would be spared. Particularly they demanded our promise that the lives of their officers would be spared.

This was because the Red army in Spain regularly executed all captured officers, commissioned and non-commissioned alike, all who were sergeants or higher. The "reason" given for this was that the men in Franco's army didn't really want to fight, but were forced to do so by their officers—therefore the officers deserved no mercy.

Well, in this instance, anyway, they were promised they all would be spared.

Now mind you, we all knew that they were coming over. We were all waiting for them to come over—then we would advance. Orders had come all up and down our line.

At 8 o'clock, we heard them coming. They were making no pretense of stealth. You could hear them plainly—a big body of men, talking among themselves, walking quite openly, coming across to our lines in the darkness.

Ordered to Fire on Defenseless Men

And the order came—

"Open fire!"

"But they're surrendering!" I remember protesting to the runner who brought me the order.

"Maybe they're not. Maybe it's a trick.' Maybe it's an attack," was his reply. "The orders are to open fire at the signal."

Well, we did. We had to. But we didn't any of us aim too carefully, or hold our triggers down too long. There were screams and cries and curses out there in the dark, and then the whole mob of them came tumbling in on us, and we were cursing ourselves as hard as they were cursing us. Not a one of them was armed.

I never did find out how many were killed or wounded.

There were three officers with them—a captain and two sergeants. Despite the promises that were made to them, they were immediately shot. Our American and English and Canadian boys refused, flatly, to form the firing squad, so a Spanish detail was called in to do the job.

We took three more officers prisoner the next day, entering the town. The town was occupied by Moorish troops with Spanish officers. It was a hard job of house-to-house fighting. We left our machine-guns and became grenade-throwers.

This was the first time the International Brigade ever had taken a town of such size—Belchite is, or was, a town of about 25,000. Our boys had no experience. They were mowed down in the streets before they learned to take cover.

I remember two boys from New York entering one house—and stumbling out a moment later, both with gaping bayonet wounds in their chests. Henry Miller, another New York boy, from The Bronx, was with me. We threw a half dozen grenades into the place and blew it up. I don't know who was inside.

I saw Major Merriman and Steve Nelson, then political commissar for the International Brigade, running for cover. Nelson made it all right, but a bullet or grenade fragment caught Merriman across the forehead, just over the eyes. It laid him out, but he wasn't hurt seriously. I saw him later, going on, a blood-stained bandage about his head.

Franco's men made their last stand in the ruins of the church. We had them ringed all around with rifle fire, and Major Merriman had two of the machine-guns brought up, one a heavy Maxim, the other a light Dectoroff.

Likewise, a sound truck was brought up—a regular sound truck, like you see here in America, only, of course, armored.

Then the order came—

"Cease firing!"

CAPTAIN ALVIN HALPERIN

Merriman ordered the three officers, whom we had taken prisoners on our way into town, to walk forward—alone—into the center of the plaza before the church.

The sound truck began blaring.

This, the defenders of the church were told, was what would happen to all of them if they did not surrender immediately.

And—ripp-pp-pppp-ppp-p! The two machine guns opened up, and the three officers out there in the plaza stumbled and whirled around and 'round and fell.

The answer from the church was a renewed blast of rifle fire.

But they couldn't possibly win.

We brought up anti-tank guns. We ourselves were using explosive rifle bullets—oh, yes! I know that that has been denied, but we had them all right. They make a terrible mess of a man when they hit him. We used them regularly. They are worse than any "dum-dums" you ever heard of during the World War.

Finally, after two more hours, the church surrendered. There were more than 150 dead and wounded inside, and there were about 125 men and 20 officers taken prisoners.

The officers were not even questioned. They were taken out in two batches of 10 each and executed by a firing squad.

I know, because I was on that squad. I didn't want to be on it, but I'd picked up a rifle somewhere during the street firing, and they came along picking the men for the squad, and they said, "You!" and there I was.

In the second batch of officers to be executed was one Russian—a white Russian; there are a lot of them in Franco's army—who, although wounded, did not fall at the volley.

He stood there, erect, with all his mates dead around him, and he was laughing at us.

One of our officers, the commander of the English battalion, ran over to him, shoved a pistol against his head and pulled the trigger. But the gun was jammed and didn't go off.

"Ariba Espena!" ("Up with Spain!")

By this time the English commander had his gun in working condition again—and this time it went off.

That night, Belchite was lighted by huge bonfires. They collected the dead, laid them in piles like logs—I saw one pile with 200 bodies in it—doused them with gasoline and set them ablaze.

There were screams from some of those piles. It's pretty hard to make sure, sometimes, that a man is really dead.

How Belchite was looted by the Spanish Red army, and more of the horrors of war, will be revealed by Captain Halpern in the Boston Evening American TOMORROW.

A PERSONAL MESSAGE

Personal endorsement by a friend is much more effective than the written word. This explains why Father John's Medicine—for colds and body building—is so favorably known. For 83 years people have used it successfully, and then told others about it.

REDUCE LIVING COST

There is need for economy now when people are trying to save money. Colds are expensive in time and wages lost. Treat them promptly with Father John's Medicine. It not only helps to relieve colds but aids in building up the body.

Solons Divided Over Message Of President

Republicans Attack New Demand for Pump Priming

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Democrats in Congress said generally today President Roosevelt's relief program would break the backbone of the depression; Republicans assailed further pump-priming.

House Democratic Leader Rayburn (D.) of Texas called the message a "masterful portrayal" of conditions confronting the country.

House Republican Leader Snell remarked he did not "see much use in priming the pump. The resources of the country are almost running dry."

Chairman O'Connor (D.) of New York, who led the fight that killed the reorganization bill, said pump priming would do not good without water in the well.

Senator Van Nuys (D.) of Indiana, said he would "Do everything I can to help pass legislation to carry out the President's objectives."

VANDENBERG HITS PLAN

Senator Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan declared:

"When I take the President's advice 'to avoid the pitfalls of the past,' I must reject his renewal of a profligate spending program, with its deficits and debts, because that is the route, in part, which has brought us where we unhappily are."

Senator Byrd (D.) of Virginia, said:

"I'm against the proposition.

Representative Taber (R.) of New York:

"The President seems unable to learn by failure that pump priming has done nothing so far to relieve the depression."

Representative Cochran (D.) Missouri: "It is sound.'

Representative Crawford (R.) Michigan: "The message is a clear cut admission that we have only consumed five years in a round-trip from depression back to depression."

Senator Hatch (D.) New Mexico, approving desterilization of gold said:

"I have long been opposed to the policy of government 'hoarding' of gold."

Here's Why Roosevelt Asks for 7 Billions

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Statistics on President Roosevelt's recovery recommendations to Congress:

For Direct Relief to Unemployed and Hard-Pressed Business Firms:

Works Progress Administration, $1,250,000,000.
Farm Security, $175,000,000.
National Youth Administration, $75,000,000.
CCC, $50,000,000.
(Additional to $230,000,000 previously budgeted.) Reconstruction Corporation, $1,500,000,000.
(This phase of program already in operation.)

For Expansion of Bank Resources

De-sterilization of gold, $1,400,000,000.
Reducing Federal reserve requriements, $750,000,000.
Total $2,150,000,000.

For Public Works

U. S. Housing Authority, $300,000,000.

For Additional Projects

Public Works Administration, $1,450,000,000.
Mr. Roosevelt indicated he favored holding total PWA projects to $1,000,000,000.)
Public roads, $100,000,000.
(Additional to previously budgeted estimate.)
Flood control, $37,000,000.
Federal buildings, $25,000,000.
Total, $1,912,00,000.
Grand total, $7,112,000,000.
Note: If public works loans and grants are held to $100,000,000, the total involved in the program would be $6,662,000,000.

Stars to Appear At Press Frolics

Helen Chandler of the "Man From Cairo" company, to open shortly at the Wilbur Theater, will head the list of stage and screen folk appearing next Monday evening at the 5th annual "Frolics" of the oBston Newspapermen's Association at the Copley-Plaza hotel.

Also featured will be leading acts from the night clubs and hotels, and unbeatles will be a bevy of beautiful models from a school directed by Pearl Atkinson. President Edward G. Lannon has arranged an elaborate program, with Pete Fitzgerald directing the orchestra for dancing.

Chief of Police Signals Dies

Timothy A. J. Hayes, director of the Boston signal service and a member of the Boston police department since 1911, died of pneumonia today at Forest Hills Hospital.

Director Hayes, who was single and lived in Hemenway street, Back Bay, was the inventor of the flashing signal lights on Boston police boxes.

A native of Boston, he entered the department as an electrical mechanic in 1911, and became director of the signal division in 1932.

He is survived by five sisters, all living in Boston. Funeral services will be held Saturday. Burial will be in New Calvary Cemetery.

GASTON D. BLADET

Funeral services for Gaston Daniel Bladet, 59, flutist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the past 15 years, will be held tomorrow at 8 a. m. in the Waterman Chapel, 483 Commonwealth avenue. He died yesterday at his Robinwood avenue, Jamaica Plain, home after a long illness.

Betty Alden on Beacon Hill

Plan to Redecorate Jordan Hall Wins Socialites' Support

By BETTY ALDEN

EVEN the inner circle, so often referred to as "staid old Boston," is responsive to improvement . . . and the changing times . . .

For thirty-five years Jordan Hall, in the New England Conservatory of Music building, has housed concerts and recitals which have helped to maintain Boston's reputation as the cultural hub of the nation . . . Famous concert stars and earnest apprentices have enjoyed their turn on the wide, high paneled stage . . .

DESIREE ROGERS

But the public taste in architecture and design has undergone a decided change in thirty-five years . . . so Wallace Goodrich, director of the New England Conservatory, with the expert advice of William T. Aldrich, has worked out a plan to completely redecorate and repaint the hall, and install modern, indirect lighting on the stage and in the auditorium . . . at the same time retaining the unusually fine acoustics which have made Jordan Hall famous among great musical artists throughout the country . . .

The work will be done during the summer . . . so, when the concert season opens in the fall, singers and musicians may give their recitals in surroundings which add, rather than detract, from the beauty of the program . . .

Oliver Wolcott is the treasurer of the committee sponsoring the rehabilitation, and among the other committee members who are raising funds for the work are Mrs. J. D. Cameron Bradley, Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Mr. Edward Burlingame Hill, Edward H. Pickman, Mrs. Randolph Morgan Appleton and Miss Pauline Fenno . . .

Miss Fenno started the ball rolling by giving a luncheon at her Beacon street home this week to acquaint her friends with the project and the need for funds to carry it out . . . Among her guests were Mrs. Chester B. Humphrey, Mrs. Edward Boit, Mrs. Gorham Brooks, Mrs. Wallace Scudder, Jr., Mrs. George Putnam, Mrs. Louis Agassiz Shaw, Mrs. Henry P. King, Jr., Mrs. Moses Williams, Jr., Mrs. George Batcheldor, Jr., Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, Miss Anna W. Winslow, Miss Katharine Lane and Mrs. Bradley of the committee, who helped Miss Fenno describe the plans to her guests . . .

Cambridge Group to Produce Play

"STAGE DOOR," which has enjoyed both Broadway and movie success, has been chosen by the Cambridge Social Dramatic Club for its third play of the season . . .

It is a rather ambitious undertaking . . . with thirty-one players in the cast, all of whom have more or less important parts . . . with quite a few lines to speak . . . With this large cast constant rehearsals are necessary in order to bring the production up to the usual high standards maintained by the club . . . and to make it compare favorably in the eyes of those people who have recently seen either the stage or movie version of this George Kaufman and Edna Ferber comedy . . .

Rehearsals are being held every evening between now and April 28 when the show will have a dress rehearsal in Brattle Hall . . . The following evenings, April 29 and 30, it will also be presented at Brattle Hall . . .

Leading roles will be taken by Mrs. Richard Hall, Jean Goodale, Peggy Stuart, Ruth Gillerman, Mrs. Arthur P. Keddy, Richard Whiting, Henry W. Newbegin, Margaret Coolidge, Mrs. Kenneth Conant and Lois Tanner Green . . .

Latest additions to the cast include Mrs. David Young, Mary Townsend, Mrs. John D. MacDonald, Harold Perry, Raymond Mildenberger and David Moore . . . Still others who report regularly to study their cues and read their lines are: Mrs. Samuel Hazard Cross, Barbara and Anne Runkle, Faith Holden, Mrs. Doyle Northrop, Mrs. Charles D. Post, Mrs. George A. C. Holt, Esther Pickering, Desiree Rogers, Charles S. Bolster, Wayland Minot, John W. Sever and Thomas E. Jensen, Jr. . . .

Supper Parties to Follow Show

THE PERSONNEL of the production is by no means limited to the cast, however, and a group of club members have been enlisted to act as ushers and pourers at the supper parties following the regular performances on April 29 and 30 . . .

Edward K. Newbegin will usher at the dress rehearsal and the following evening Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cushman and Mrs. Henry W. Newbegin will see that the subscribers find the seats corresponding to the numbers on their tickets . . . Saturday evening's ushers will be Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Spelman, Jr., and Mary Faxon . . .

Pourers at the two after-the-show supper parties will include Mrs. Horace W. Frost, Elizabeth Stuart, Mrs. William Harris Arnold and Mrs. Hardy G. Garrett . . . Mrs. William Dennison Swan, Jr., Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. George B. Roorbach and Emily Sibley will be hostesses . . .

Mrs. Richard Hall will open her home this evening for a meeting at which final plans for the forthcoming production will be arranged . . . Among members of the active committee of the club who will be present are Mrs. Charles Almy, Jr., Mary Almy, Mrs. Stoughton Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bolster, Mrs. Philip G. Carleton, Charles N. Cogswell, president of the club; John G. Cushman, Mrs. Robert M. Darling, Mrs. Howard M. Forbes, Allen W. Jackson, Elizabeth and Pauline Jones . . .

N. H. Sawdust Makes Garden

Vegetables Growing In Judge's Plot

LACONIA, N. H., April 14 (AP)—Clients may step into the law office of Judge Frank P. Tilton any day now and instead of seeking legal advice may ask for a nice ripe tomato.

The judge reported today that tomato plants he placed in an earthless garden were showing signs of bearing fruit.

The garden consists of sawdust and shavings on a wire screen placed over a water pan containing a fertilizing chemical. The shavings and sawdust support the plants.

Sweet and hot peppers, egg plant, and flower seeds also have shown signs of blooming.

Bacon? This Cat Brings Back Cash

It took the combined efforts of Donald and his mother, Mrs. Cornelius Stack, to get possession of a $1 bill which the cat brought back from a hunting trip yesterday. They are looking for the owner.

John Hollister to Wed Tennessee Girl April 30

Here in New England brides-to-be must wait until they actually tear the May page off the calendar before they can expect those rare June days, so ideal for outdoor weddings. In the South, however, where they don't have to wait quite so long for the weather to become summery, May, and even April, may be classed as "The Month of Brides."

Frances Lathrop Chapman of Memphis, Tenn., who will be married to John Hollister of Beverly, in Memphis, and also plans to have an outdoor reception in the garden of her parents' home. She has chosen April 30 as her wedding day, with every confidence that the weather will be clear and warm.

CATHEDRAL CEREMONY

The ceremony will be performed in St. Mary's Cathedral in Memphis and will be followed by a reception in the garden of the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Burr Chapman, parents of the bride-to-be.

The Right Rev. Robert N. Spencer of Kansas City, Mo., Bishop of the Diocese of Western Missouri, will perform the ceremony, and the Right Rev. James M. Maxon of Memphis, Bishop of Tennessee, will be in the sanctuary to occupy the episcopal seat.

Mrs. William Kent of Memphis will be the matron of honor, and Lila Burr Chapman, sister of the bride-to-be, will be the maid of honor. In the procession of ten bridesmaids will be Althea Merritt of Bridgeport, Conn., Judith Coit of Pittsfield, Mary Margaret McAlpine of Detroit, Mich., Carroll Jones of St. Louis, Mo., Mrs. Peter Pack of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Andrew McBurney of New York, Lavin Ransom of Hughes, Ark., Lucia Thompson, Patte Evans and Mrs. Martin Condon, 3d, of Memphis.

Mr. Hollister, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Hollister of Oshkosh, Wis., will have his father as his best man.

JUNIOR LEAGUER

Miss Chapman is a member of the Junior League and the Girls Cotillion Club, and made her debut at a ball at the Memphis Country Club.

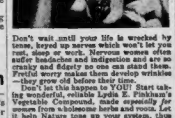
Society Notes

UNDER THE DISTINGUISHED patronage of Vice-Admiral and Mrs. Myrick, a large Marine Ball was held at the Hamilton Hotel, in Bermuda, the other evening, for the benefit of Bermuda's Soldiers' Home.

Closely identified with the success of the party was Mrs. James J. Storrow of Boston, who was another of the distinguished patronesses. Others included Lady Wallington of Bermuda, Mrs. Wendell Anderson of Detroit, Mrs. Clarence Wadsworth and Mrs. Jerome Hilborn of New York and Mrs. Leslie Howarth of Bermuda.

Warns women who are NERVOUS



Don't wait until your life is wrecked by tense, keyed up nerves which won't let you rest, sleep or work. Nervous women often suffer from pains and indigestion and are so cranky and fidgety no one can stand them. Fretful worry makes them develop wrinkles —they grow old before their time.

Don't let this happen to YOU! Start taking wonderful, reliable Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots. Let it help Nature tone up your system, thus calm overtaxed, upset nerves, lessen distress from female functional disorders and give you more energy for a happier life.

For free trial bottle tear this out and send with name and address to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., 715 Cleveland Dr., Lynn, Mass.

Drive-In Theater To Reopen

New England's first open-air auto theater, the Drive-In Theater in Weymouth, will reopen for its third season Saturday at 8 p. m. The theater is on South Shore Route 3A to Nantasket, one mile south of the new Fore River bridge.

The stage has been so constructed that a full view of the screen, the largest in the world, is afforded from any car. There are also accommodations for approximately 500 cars, and children under 10 years of age are admitted free.

A new service for doctors and others expecting telephone calls has been instituted this year.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

PREDICTIONS: Henry Parkman, Jr., to replace Sinclair Weeks as head of the Republican State Committee . . . Weeks to be treasurer of the committee . . . These are today's lead-off predictions.

Of more general interest may be this column's very private opinion (until now) that the Joe Cronin Bashers will cop the pennant in the American League . . . Already this forecast has been greeted with mirth by the odds-maker who gave 20-1 against the Red Sox . . . If Johnny Broaca comes to the Red Sox, it will be evident that another individual, Pilot Joe McCarthy of the Yankees' shares the scorn of your correspondent's favorite bookmaker in estimating the Red Sox chances . . . Bruce will be kept on the sidelines until the pennant scramble is underway, this column hears . . . Anyway—"Slaughter" to win the Derby, and the Red Sox to win the pennant.

When Dr. Paul Jakmauh's name is resubmitted to the governor's council for the appointment as health commissioner, at least two Republicans will switch in favor of confirmation . . . The strategy of such a move would be to lay the ugly rumor that the G. O. P. continues to regard with disfavor the "never recant"

Councillor Grossman "crossed the dope" when he voted against the Jakmauh confirmation . . . When Governor Hurley elevated Councillor Grossman's sister-in-law, Mrs. Jennie Lottman Barron, to the bench—and his mates of the council confirmed the appointment—it was believed that the Quincy councillor would "go along" with the governor in all his major appointments

The vote against Dr. Jakmauh's confirmation by the Democrat, Councillor Edward T. Collins of Springfield, was a surprise . . . So was that of Bayard Tuckerman, a Republican "liberal" from a Democratic viewpoint . . . Prediction: Tuckerman, Collins or Grossman—one of them, two of them, or all—will change their votes when the Jakmauh name comes up again.

THOSE DOUBLE FEATURES:

Coincidentally or not, both Greta Garbo and Leopold Stokowski appear on the same program today at University Theater, Cambridge . . . The Garbo film, "Anna Karenina," is part of the double-feature program, and Stokowski appears in "One Man and a Girl," the other picture . . . Tomorrow, at the same theater, the genius who arranges the theater's bookings has managed this unique coupling of feature films: "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "Theodora Goes Wild."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

A few hours after the hint was given in this column that Babe Ruthenstein would be signed as announcer at Suffolk Downs, the papers were signed . . . Ted Madden is building a large golf-driving range on Soldiers Field road, Brighton . . . Three tournament screens for the golfers to aim at instead of targets, will be features . . . The Hurley Tobin Furniture Company is a Trenton, N. J., firm, and Nat Sperber, the press agent, who claims to know the principals insists that the owners are "a couple of nice Jewish boys" . . .

With the baseball season at hand, one of Boston's home-grown enterprise: The Royal Rooter and Baseball Almanac, comes to mind . . . The Royal Rooter was started some 26 years ago by "Cy" Murphy, newspaper circulator. A borrowed typewriter was the assets. Now the Rooter is "official" in all 16 major league ball parks—and a real success.

Arthur Cooper, distinguished South Boston attorney, graciously followed a suggestion from Judge McLellan that he represent a defendant in a lower case who had no counsel—and won an acquittal . . . The North Dorchester Community Theater is keeping in step with the professional stage. Chekhov's "The Sea Gull" is its first production, with Gordon W. Dillon directing. "Design for Living" and "Pajama Girl" are planned for the future.

Because the Wareham golf club has been sold, Ed Kelley, the golf pro, writes that he is "left holding the bag—and I don't mean feeding it" . . . So the versatile Ed is filling in as "maitre d'" at Dinty Moore's. Kelley has played golf for 35 years and has been assistant to "Tug" McSpaden, Bobby Orr and Eddie Margan . . . A civil service measure pending in Congress would insure the continued invaluable services of Postmaster Peter Tague. Every postal employe in the Boston district is hoping that the measure is adopted.

Blanche Calloway and Buck and Bubbles made the "guest night" at Rose Chapman's Congo the liveliest session in some time . . . The Massachusetts Income Tax bowling league's party is scheduled for the Congo April 21 . . . And the Boston American bowling team members will make merry at the Hotel Essex Monday, April 25, for their annual banquet.

Film Lead Offered Coogan

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

Copyright, 1938, by International News

Hollywood, April 14—Jackie Coogan's financial troubles were lightened a little today when Charles R. Rogers of Universal made him an offer to star in "No One Man," a story authored by William Pierce.

Should Jackie find time with his pending law suit to accept the Rogers offer, he will work in company with Noah Beery, Jr., Nan Grey, as the feminine interest, Larry Blake and William Lundigan in the supporting cast.

The suit, which Jackie has filed against his mother and stepfather for an accounting of the monies he earned as a child, recalls the first time he came to New York. Alfred E. Smith was then governor and I took the famous child actor to meet the Smiths. They were observed with the little fellow and, as we loved children, kept him for over an hour asking him questions and marveling at the little boy's intelligent answers.

The latest whisper at the MGM studios is that Luise Rainer will step into "The Great Waltz" opposite Fernand Gravet, and that the singing voice of Miliza Korjus will be heard in the second lead. Miss Korjus, whose voice is superb but who is a little robust for screen romance, was rumored, after a year of preparation, as ready to return to Vienna with Jeannette MacDonald geared for the singing role. Then the studio denies.

According to those connected with the picture, Miss Korjus is very much in, and unless something unexpected happens, will make her American debut in this screen biography of the life of Johann Strauss. Franciska Gaal was also a candidate for the Kaiser role.

* * *

A Lire or Two: The appearance of Charlie Farrell at 20th Century-Fox yesterday recalled the time that he was a star on that lot, and the days when he and Janet Gaynor were filmland's top romantic team. Charlie was there testing for the male lead in Shirley Temple's next picture, "Lucky Penny" . . . The latest development of the Gene Autry-Republic deadlock is that the legal battle will be reopened in the Nashville source, where the original court action was instituted several months ago while Gene was on tour. Autry's attorneys couldn't get to first base with his contract disputes here.

H. B. Warner, who hasn't been in England in years, may return to his native country to do the sequel to "Victoria the Great," produced by Herbert Wilcox . . . And speaking of English movies—they're saying Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in vain. Doug is doing so well here he's afraid he would jeopardize his career by leaving.

Snapshots of Hollywood

NUNNALLY JOHNSON, now a free man, has been spending his leisure hours with JOAN CASTLE, formerly on the "Dead End" company; CLAIRE TREVOR and CLARK ANDREWS, radio executive, are making no secret of their matrimonial plans; the DAVID BUTLERS will watch the ponies run at the Kentucky Derby after a brief vacation in New York; JANE WITHERS' "happy birthday" from the crown at the Barney Bella Floto circus had all the other youngsters jealous. Virginia Field sat near Jane with a crowd of neighborhood youngsters.

Featured at RKO Boston

Louis Hayward and Barbara Read have a little understanding in the above scene from "Midnight Intruder," screen feature at the RKO Boston, where "French Follies of 1938," star-studded revue, is the new stage attraction.

Two additional stages and a giant revolving stage were built on the RKO Boston stage for the engagement of Count Berni Vici's lavish Continental revue, "French Follies of 1938," opening today.

There are 35 mammoth scenic novelties in the revue, including "the docking of the 30,000-ton Normandie," a "Living model unafraid in the arms of a 60-foot monster robot;" and "living jewel box."

Film Hit At Bijou

The greatest sensation in all screen history, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney's first full-length animated feature, in Multiplane Technicolor, will open at the RKO Bijou theater, next door to the Keith Memorial on Washington street, for an indefinite engagement Saturday.

Never in the history of the screen has there been anything to compare with the sensational success of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Here in Boston the feature played to over 400,000 persons in its seven-week engagement between the Keith Memorial and the RKO Boston.

The story relates the adventures of a beautiful young scullery maid whose youth and beauty arouse the envy of a wicked queen, who plots in various ways to get rid of her forever. How the queen succeeds after seeking out Snow White in the latter's refuge among seven kindly dwarfs, and how the little heroine is finally rescued by her Prince Charming is pictured with exquisite artistry and humor combined.

Goldwyn Follies' At Scollay, Modern

"Goldwyn Follies" and "Arsene Lupin Returns" will be held over for an additional day at both the Scollay and Modern Theaters this week. The new program "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" and "Mr. Moto's Gamble" will open on Saturday (instead of the regular Friday opening) and will continue for seven days.

West Epic At Hub

Martha Raye

Cooper plays the role of "Wild Bill" Hickok, most famous of the plainsmen who opened the West for immigration after many spectacular Indian battles. Jean Arthur plays "Calamity Jane," the beautiful gunfighting stage driver with whom he fell in love. The cast also includes James Ellison, Charles Bickford, Helen Burgess, Porter Hall, Victor Varconi, John Miljan and a score of others.

Madcap Martha Raye is teamed with Shirley Ross in the companion feature, "Hideaway Girl," musical mystery. Robert Cummings and Louis DaPron, noted dancer, head the assisting cast.

Last of DeCou Lectures Friday

Third and final lecture in the Branson DeCou dream pictures series will be given tomorrow at 3:15 p. m. at Tremont Temple. The lecture, "Hawaii—Our Pacific Paradise in 1937," will be repeated Saturday at 2:15 p. m.

Fear Newport 'Wilderness' With 'Soak-the-Rich' Tax

Exodus of '400' Seen From R. I. Castles On New Law

PROVIDENCE, April 14 — "Where will they go?"

That was Governor Robert E Quinn's sarcastic rejoinder not long ago when he was told that wealthy Rhode Island residents are considering "fleeing" the state if the new "soak-the-rich" law is passed.

And that, today, with the proposed new law still pending in the legislature, is exactly the question Rhode Island's rich are asking themselves—

Where WILL they go?

There is plenty of talk of abandoning Newport, long a capital of East Coast summer society. Pessimists profess to foresee Ochre Point, Bretton's Point and the banks of the Seaconnet River all deserted wildernesses, their summer estates boarded up and vacant.

Such folk as the young William Vanderbilts, Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, Mrs. Donald MacRae, the Boertas, the Goelets, Ella de Peyster, Gladys Vanderbilt Szechenyi, the Wetmores and many, many others, all long identified with Rhode Island summer society—they, too, all will move away, opponents of the bill declare.

The bill proposes a graduated income tax of two per cent on net income up to $10,000 a year; three per cent on incomes of from $10,000 to $15,000; four per cent on incomes of from $15,000 to $20,000 and five per cent on all incomes of $20,000 a year or more.

Thus, a person having an income of, say, $100,000 a year—not at all unusual even now during the "recession"—would have to pay a tax of $5000 for the privilege of spending the summer in "Little Rhody."

ISN'T WORTH IT

What with federal income taxes, and state taxes in other states in which they also have their domiciles, and all the rest of the tax burdens that have descended on the rich along with the New Deal, many of these persons say quite frankly "Little Rhody" isn't worth it.

As for Governor Quinn's question "Where will they go?" many of them say they simply won't "go" anywhere. They'll simply stay at home, in those other states where they have their town houses, and they'll give up their summer places in Rhode Island entirely. If they want to go somewhere for the summer, they'll go just as summer visitors.

When you take persons like Mrs. John Astor III., Mrs. Pierpont Johnson, who is the former Lelina Moriarty, and Mrs. Roger W. Cutler, the former Mrs. Lathrop Ames, and consider how much they spend during the summer season—well, it's easy to see, opponents of the "soak the rich" bill declare, upon whom the brunt of any general exodus will fall.

The real sufferers, opponents of the bill assert, will be Rhode Island merchants and other business men. Take away their income from the summer colony, it is pointed out and many of them will be virtually without the means of livlihood.

Governor Quinn, however, continues to insist that the threats to leave Rhode Island "flat" all are so much "bunk."

Rhode Island wonders whether the Newport mansion "Chetwode," on the stairs of which John Jacob Astor, the former Ellen Tuck French, and their son, William Henry Astor, are seated, will be opened this summer with the exodus of the "400" should the state pass the new "soak the rich" law. Among others in the summer colony who may "flee" to escape the proposed state income tax and who are now asking themselves "where they'll go," is society leader Mrs. Pierpont Johnson.

Harrington Out For Minimum Auto Rates

New Insurance Head To Seek Maximum Protection

Maximum protection at minimum cost.

That was the standard for compulsory automobile insurance rates in Massachusetts set today by Charles F. J. Harrington, new $6000-a-year insurance commissioner.

At his office in the Public Works Building, Commissioner Harrington was asked:

"How about a reduction or increase in the rates next year?"

"I have spent 21 years on the producing end in the insurance business," he replied. "My job was to get business by getting the best rates for the public. I have not been commissioner long enough to get any idea what the rates will be, but I will continue the policy of obtaining maximum protection at minimum cost."

Reminded that Massachusetts has just won a nation-wide safety prize for greatest reduction in fatal highway accidents, the commissioner said:

"Of course, those figures are never immediately reactive to insurance rates of the next year, and besides, the figures related only to fatal accidents, and there are no statistics as to the number of all accidents, fatal and non-fatal upon which claims are paid."

Replying to the criticism raised by Lieutenant Governor Kelly, who cited a speech by Harrington before an insurance convention in Virginia, that agents should get more than 12 per cent commission, the new commissioner declared:

"Companies take out 35.5 per cent of premiums to pay operating costs. Out of that, the agents get 12 per cent. What I meant was that agents should get a larger slice of that 35.5 per cent, and not that the rates should be increased."

Harrington, 45 years old and father of two children, sat at his new desk surrounded by baskets of flowers, one of which was sent to him with a congratulatory note from James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President. Harrington was a Franklin D. Roosevelt presidential elector in 1936. Harrington's first official act in taking over his office was to accept the resignation of Edward L. Ford as confidential assistant, a $2000 a year job.

Golden Rule Group Outlines 'Day' Meeting

Brotherhood Fete At Faneuil Hall On April 26

Boston's Brotherhood Day meeting will be held in historic Faneuil Hall, Tuesday evening, April 26, at 8 p.m., according to announcement made today by the Golden Rule Foundation and the National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery sponsors of the affair.

At the meeting, one of the many to be observed in various cities throughout the nation on that day a prominent Boston Catholic priest, Protestant minister and Jewish rabbi, will address the gathering.

Dr. Henry H. Meyer, dean of the school of Religious Education, will act as chairman of the meeting.

Rabbi Joseph Shubow of Brighton will speak as representative of the Jewish faith. Announcement of the Protestant representative will be made within a few days.

A request has been made by the committee to William Cardinal O'Connell asking him to appoint a priest who will speak in behalf of the Catholic faith.

Members of the American Legion, Disabled Veterans of the World War and Veterans of Foreign Wars along with other patriotic and religious groups have also been invited.

The Sons of Union Veterans, in the final day of their convention at the Hotel Bradford, endorsed the Brotherhood Day meeting.

Elias R. Sweet, department commander, said that the organization was solidly behind the movement, and that instructions to that effect would be included in the next bulletin, to be circulated among the members in Massachusetts.

Kills Herself After Holdup

Girl Witness Dies in 12-Story Leap

NEW YORK, April 14 (INS)—Norma De Marco, 22, eye-witness to the Tuesday dawn holdup of the Howdy night club in Greenwich Village, fell or jumped 12 stories to her death from the apartment of a girl friend shortly before midnight last night.

She was nude, detectives reported.

Police arrested Jacqueline Walker, rhumba dancer, as a material witness to the night club holdup in which Radio Patrolman Hubert Morusa was critically wounded before three would-be bandits were wounded and captured.

Miss De Marco, an unemployed stenographer who lives in the Bronx, was hit over the head with a gun butt when she refused to give up her cash and jewels to the bandits.

Primary Bill Killed

A bill to establish primary elections in Boston to weed out candidates for mayor and city council was referred today to the 1939 Legislature for action. The measure was killed as far as action this year is concerned, by a 120 to 97 vote in the House of Representatives.

Train Turns Over; Ambulance Called

LAS VEGAS, Nev. April 14 (AP)—Six cars of the Union Pacific "Challenger" overturned early today when the passenger train, eastbound from Los Angeles, struck a broken rail in the desert 48 miles south of Las Vegas. First reports said no one was seriously injured, but all available ambulances were rushed to the scene from here.

Circus Strike Comes to End

$45 Monthly Wage Under New Terms

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—The first major strike in American circus history ended today as 400 attendants of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus went back to work under a compromise agreement.

Performers, including midgets, the fat lady, and an 8-foot giant had refused to join in the two-day strike.

The settlement was announced by Arthur S. Meyer of the New York State mediation board, who said it provided a $45 a month wage, plus board and room, during the engagement in Madison Square Garden and the Boston Garden.

The union had demanded the men be paid the same wage for the Boston and New York engagements that they receive "under canvas" on the road—$60 a month—instead of the $30 minimum they were paid.

Experts to Direct Schenley Co. Policy

Schenley Products Company announces the formation of a Marketing Policy Committee, of which Mr. Marion Harper, one of the nation's foremost merchandising and advertising experts, is chairman.

Associated with Mr. Harper will be Messrs. Louis E. Golan, Walter R. Greenlee and J. B. Deacon, vice presidents; Milton Nauheim, western regional manager; W. S. Chesley, Jr., assistant general sales manager; Alexander Propper, manager of the state stores sales division; Jack Leban, eastern regional manager, and Colonel A. L. Wiener, southern regional manager.

Ice May Hinder Vermont Anglers

NEWPORT, Vt., April 14 (AP)—Salmon fishing opens tomorrow in Lake Memphremagog, but the prospects today were not so good—the lake is enclosed in ice except along the south shore. Other seasons have found sportsmen lined along a railroad bridge in the heart of the city landing 4 to 12-pound salmon.

GIRL About TOWN

By MARJORIE McBRIDE

Trust an old stagehand to remember the glamour and romance of old-time operas. Two such veterans worked backstage at the Boston Opera House during the recent opera cycle. Tom Callahan is seventy, Charlie Canessa sixty. Between them, they have put in seventy years at it.

Marjorie McBride

Both were "working" the Boston Opera House when the old Boston Opera Company had its memorable first night, and that was many a year ago. Lillian Nordica was singing, "La Gioconda." Canessa spoke Italian, and translated the brilliant lines for stagehands who had never worked in an operatic production.

They followed the Boston Opera Company through most of its career, and have vivid recollections of the great stars, nearly all gone now.

Caruso gave Canessa a $20 goldpiece for the realistic bit of work he did slamming doors in "Girl of the Golden West."

Caruso had an oriental generosity, and if friends admired a stickpin or a tie, he would force it on them. Once, after he and Melba had collaborated in "La Boheme" he stood beyond the wings and sang "My Wild Irish Rose", with the stagehands.

When the Boston company was playing Pittsburgh, a stagehand forgot to place the uprights under the little platform on which Terazzini made her entrance and the husky Canessa had to stand under it for the opening scene and hold the singer up.

Again, when Alice Nielsen was taking encores after "Traviata" in New Haven, a weight dropped out of the fly and knocked her unconscious . . . Mary Garden was a good trouper, but had her fits of temperament. Canessa remembers that she wasn't always prompt and didn't like to be asked to hurry!

They Were Giants In the Old Days

Being able to talk Italian, Canessa had the edge on Callahan . . . there was the night when Henry Russell was talking over changes in sets with Mascetto . . . Canessa got it and told the hands backstage . . . the fiery Russell learned of it, and for some time spoke only French in Charlie's presence!

Both men still work at the Opera House for other things than operas. They admit there's a greater appreciation of music, but "it's not like the old days." There were giants then. Well, maybe there were!

The volunteer who scouts men's styles for the column reports that in a few weeks the young male who snows up on the street in a coat of one color and pants of one color, radically different will be out of style and out of order. Those violent contrasts, popularized by collegians, are going into eclipse.

The new vogue will be pants that harmonize with the coat, but in a slightly lighter shade. The rule will extend to flannels. No more brown sports coats and gray trousers.

The boys will go in for dark gray coats, and light gray pants, or brown coats and tan trousers. The volunteer gets his information from Harvard tailors, who usually have a pretty good idea.

What to Do With Just a Normal Boy

A hard-headed Boston teacher tells a good story about one of those schools where psychological tests and such are carried to extreme lengths. A young couple had come to a suburb.

They had a healthy son of nine. They took him to the ritziest school in town. Next night the father returned to find the mother in tears.

"It's Georgie," she explained. "At that school, they have subnormal and super-normal children, and Georgie's just a normal boy, and they don't know what to do with him!"

Easter styles for children are as smartly different as adult fashions this season. Filene's present a Dirndl model for little girls from 2 to 6 years old. It is of rayon taffeta print with ribbon sash and sleeve trimmings and comes in white, aqua or rose. For small sons, Stearns has a "topper" suit. The pants of navy or dark green are topped with washable cotton jersey sweater in gay stripes. These are not priced over $3.

THIS Is LIFE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I wonder if women's organizations really like the kind of intellectual—so-called—fodder important men in public life hand out to them when invited to make addresses.

Robert E. Rogers

On the other hand, I wonder whether the important men in public life enjoy the kind of thing they do hand out. I suspect that frequently the whole thing is a draw.

The organization must get hold of an important name in order to attract the waterbood to the luncheon, and the important man has got to lay hold of a topic which sounds profound but really isn't and can serve instead of a digestive tablet for both ladies and speaker.

What the gentleman talks about does not particularly matter. I can speak from some experience, because, although not an important man in public life, I have been up against this problem of finding a topic to talk about on such occasions. Anything that is quotable will serve. Wisdom or profundity only impedes the digestive process.

I suppose that some such reflections as the above influenced Mr. Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general and "successful author," when he was speaking the other day before the National Women's Press Club in Washington. That organization was the last one in the world to be profound before.

Arnold's Speech To Women Cagy

The gals spend their time collecting important data from important men and are fed up with it. Therefore, Mr. Arnold did not speak about "implementing the monopoly legislation of the New Deal." Not a bit of it!

He chose to talk on how many women are necessary to a brilliant writing man so that he may be more brilliant. Considering that he was talking to a bunch of women writers he might better have talked about how many men a woman writer needs to keep her at her best, but Mr. Arnold was notoriously cagy and reticent on that point!

Perhaps from 20a professional experience with the ladies of the Women's Press Club he concluded that they do not need any kind of help as much as most do. The women are self starters, perhaps. They need no inspiration. In the immortal words of Mary Heaton Vorse their inspiration is only the "continuous application of the seat of the pants to the desk chair."

But Mr. Arnold suggested that men certainly need a "quasi-platonic balance of women as a possible key to great thought." Which is a fussy way of saying that a writing man needs a beautiful blonde to provide the romantic quality in life, an intellectual woman to keep the intellectual wheels running smoothly, an efficient stenographer to do the dirty work for the thinking machine, and a wife to cook his meals and keep his digestion in order.

I suppose that any one of the four might be the wife, even the blonde or the stenographer, but tradition demands that a wife do the cooking, and who is Mr. Arnold, who is a public servant, to flout any tradition of hallowed and immemorial as that one.

I wish that the Assistant Attorney General had tried to provide women writers with a similar harem.

One is reminded of Bernard Shaws spoofing play "Getting Married," about the young bride who complained that one husband wasn't enough, that she ought to have one for week-days, one for Sundays, and another (a spare) for holidays.

One Wonders What The Ladies Thought

That wasn't quite Mr. Arnold's idea in the profound dissertation with which he entertained the ladies of the National Women's Press Club after the ice cream and demi tasse. His idea was rather that three spares for the male genius would give such a perfect balance that the writer wouldn't be conscious that any women were there at all, would be able to concentrate on his writing, and his mind would be free to soar to great heights.

Probably most of them thought they were lucky to have one husband, let alone four, as a substitute for the harem which Mr. Arnold felt was so necessary to the poor man. He is not only an assistant attorney-general but he writes on the side. What he writes isn't stated. It must be something pretty snappy!

Solemn Holy Thursday Scene at St. Polycarp's

The full solemnity of today's observance of Maundy Thursday in Catholic churches of Greater Boston is brought out in this photo of two altar boys worshipping at the flower-decked altar of St. Polycarp's Church, Somerville. More than 3000 blossoms are shown on this altar, where they all but bury the candelabra. In these churches today the Blessed Sacrament lay exposed for the adoration of thousands and with the churches and altars decorated in richest vestments. Tonight, however, these will be removed in preparation for the sorrowful hours of Good Friday.

Holy Thursday Rites Attract Thousands

Many Services Held; Tenebrae Tonight And Tomorrow

Observing the holding of The Last Supper by Christ and His Disciples, Holy Thursday was observed today by thousands of Christians in Greater Boston churches.

Today services of Maundy Thursday were conducted at various hours during the day and will be continued tonight, with the second of the three Holy Week Tenebrae rites.

On this day, one of the most exalted in the Christian year services in Catholic churches begin with the procession of the Blessed Sacrament to the repository.

SERVICES AT CATHEDRAL

Cardinal O'Connell was expected to preside and to bless the oils at today's chief Catholic observance in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. Appropriate services are held in all Episcopalian churches although those in the Anglo-Catholic are more elaborate.

Also important a Maundy Thursday to Lutherans and those in the churches of the Protestant order, including Universalists and Unitarian.

TENEBRAE RITES

Services of Tenebrae in commemoration of the crucifixion begin last night in Catholic and Episcopal churches and will continue through tomorrow, to complete the three nights.

Tomorrow Good Friday the mass of the presanctified will be said in all Catholic churches and tomorrow night Passover begins in the Jewish congregations.

Find Youth Dying Bullet in Chest

Nine hours before he was due to appear in superior court to face trial on an assault charge Reginald Keefe, 22, of Lexington street, Charlestown, was found lying on the sofa in his home, a rifle bullet through his chest, early today.

Keefe was found by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Reilley, with whom he lives.

Reilley noticed blood on the youth's shirt and rushed to his side. In answer to his query over what happened Reilley told police the youth replied:

"Leave me alone. I have just shot myself."

Police rushed Keefe to City Hospital where he is reported in a dying condition. The bullet pierced the upper chest, close to the heart.

Organ Pumpers To Rally Here

Because the first pipe organ in America was installed in historic King's Chapel, the annual convention of the Guild of Former Pipe Organ Pumpers will be held in Boston, May 13.

Boston won the award, according to announcement from the convention bureau of the Chamber of Commerce despite heavy appeal for the convention in New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

The guild is made up of well known persons from all parts of the nation, men who, as youngsters, used to pump the old-time pipe organs.

The grand dignason, or head of the organization, is Chet Shafer of New York, while the grand fagatto is Ralph M. Eastman of the State Street Trust Company. Other officers being titled from organ stops in this fun-making organization.

Slain Fall River Boy Buried

FALL RIVER, April 14—With five playmates as pallbearers, William Commisky, 2, shot and killed by a policeman who had mistaken him for a bandit, was buried today after impressive funeral services.

The boy was carried from his home on Fourth street by his classmates of St. Mary's parochial school who had been playing "Stump the Leader" with him when the policeman, Frank M. Perry, fired the shot.

Floral tributes from neighbors and members of the graduating class of St. Mary's school accompanied the body to St. Mary's church.

Shoppers Again Throng Boston

Police reported especially large numbers of shoppers and heavy motor traffic. The peak, however, was not expected to be reached until tomorrow and Saturday.

X-9 Chief Spurs Egg Hunt

But Takes Day Off To Bring Gifts to Sick Children

Busy though he was with preparations for the big annual Easter Egg Hunt of the Boston Evening American Secret Agent X-9 Club, the Big Chief took one day out to visit the Children's Hospital.

He wanted to give a few presents to those children old enough to have liked to be in Saturday's fun at The Playstead in Franklin Park but against whom misfortune has been just a little circumspect this year.

The Big Chief went through wards of the hospital, accompanied by officials, and he made many childish hearts glad through the gifts he distributed.

So when these kids wake up on Saturday and realize that here is the big day—then they won't be too keenly disappointed.

MAYOR TO SEE FUN

Meanwhile, today, Boston's popular Mayor Maurice J. Tobin sent word to the Big Chief that he will be present Saturday at the Egg Hunt, and, he said in addition, that he will have with him his two cute daughters, Helen Louise and Carol Ann.

Other high officials of city, county and state, including Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly, have accepted the Big Chief's invitation to be present and watch the fun.

The Chief stated that the hunt for eggs will get under way at 10 a. m.

The finder of the gold egg will be rewarded with first prize of $15 and $10 will be paid for the one who finds the silver egg.

VALUABLE PRIZES

Many other brilliantly colored eggs will be buried for Secret Agent X-9ers to hunt for, and valuable prizes will be given the finders.

Finger print sets, suit cases, pens, roller skates, pencil sets, scooter skates, baseball mitts, bankrolls, school boxes and many other articles will make up the additional prizes.

Thousands of parents will be on hand to watch the young Secret Agent X-9ers on their hunt for the valuable eggs in the greatest Easter party.

LONDARDO BAND

The Royal Canadians, led by Guy Lombardo, nationally famous band, will be there. So will his three brothers, Carmen, Lebert and Victor.

Secret X-9ers! Remember that only members of the club are eligible to compete in the search. Each member must have his or her badge and card.

There is still time to join. WRITE NOW and send an application with five cents to the Secret Agent X-9 Club, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square. Write your name and address, your age and your school plainly on a piece of paper.

The Big Chief is here to start things humming, so hurry—only a few days left.

X-Niners—Here's your chance to meet Mayor Tobin. He'll be at the Boston Evening American's Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday ready to meet the boys who wear the badges. Get your X-9 badge now. Be ready at ten Saturday morning in Franklin Park to go on that Hunt. There are many valuable prizes.

Has Photo Taken Then Vanishes

Police were searching today for an East Boston machinist who disappeared from his home last Friday after having his pictures taken and distributed to his family with the comment, "Take a look, you aren't going to see me around here long."

The missing man, Leo Alves 37 left the home of his mother in Falcon street, East Boston, last Friday with 24 cents and a railroad pass to Lowell. He had been employed there for 15 years in a railroad shop. He never arrived at the shop.

According to his wife, now living with her parents on Maverick street, East Boston, they had been married secretly since December 31, 1936. They had planned to live together and announce their marriage as soon as his mother's health improved.

Baby's Death Defense Due

Lynn Doctor to Take Stand in Suit

A Lynn physician was scheduled to take the stand in Salem court today to defend a $35,000 damage suit brought by a Brighton mother for the loss of her baby three years ago at Lynn Hospital.

Mrs. Miriam Brauner, 29, of Gordon street, Brighton, claims that Dr. Richard J. Williams of Lynn Shore Drive knew "or should have known" that there was an epidemic at Lynn Hospital at the time. The mother charges that the disease took the life of her 11-day-old son, as well as the lives of many other infants at the hospital.

Mrs. Brauner told Judge Walter L. Collins and a jury that she had no complaint of her pre-natal and post-natal care but believes the doctor should have recommended another hospital.

New Flood Control Plans Are Assailed

The new plans of the administration for New England flood control were criticized today through a legislative resolution calling upon Congress to approve the flood control compacts which were recessed last year.

RFC Loans in N.E. $3,500,000

Authorized by Congress to lend $40,000,000 to New England industry for expansion and rehabilitation, New England Manager John J. Haggerty of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced today he has already advanced more than $3,500,000 to concerns in this district.

Under the provisions of the act, loans are possible to small and large business firms at sums ranging from $500 to $1,000,000. Haggerty declared that in the area have been co-operating with the RFC and since 1935 have sent $4,000,000 in industrial projects approved by the agency.

Workers Over 45 Are Seen 'Safest'

Discrimination against employes over 45 years of age because of the number of industrial accidents in which they are involved is foolish, Joseph A. Parks, head of the state industrial accident board, told industrial leaders in Springfield today.

"Workers of 45 and older are better risks than younger workers," Parks said. "My experience in handling and studying cases in which the board has involved in for 26 years proves beyond any doubt that men over 45 are the safest workers."

Tobin Opens Golf At Franklin Park

Mayor Tobin was to open Boston's public golf season officially at 4 o'clock this afternoon by teeing off on the course at Franklin Park.

The new George Wright municipal golf course in Hyde Park will be opened to the public next Tuesday, Patriots' Day.

Keep Chin Up High! That's Tip for Beauty

By IDA JEAN KAIN

THE continental attitude that only experience is fascinating is catching on in this country. The woman of forty is just beginning to live—and looks it! Never before have women of this age looked so young.

The youthful appearance of these women is no accident. It is the reward of a carefully planned and faithfully executed program to prevent the unlovely and unnecessary signs of age. One of the first features in such a program is the tremendous importance given to that muscle line from the chin to the base of the throat can be a dead giveaway of age.

Lax muscles are to blame for this worry. Sagging muscles pull the skin down to form folds and wrinkles. In the thin throat deep lines appear and in the fat, throat chin troubles double. Exercise is the preventive of these unlovely conditions and it is the secret of many a youthful chinline among the world's most fascinating women.

Creams and lotions are very necessary aids to beauty, but don't expect too much of them. Lubricating the skin helps to prevent the crow's feet, but it will not do a thing for your jaw muscles. Patting is another measure which is apt to be overrated, and, while fine as far as it goes, it only affords a temporary stimulation of the muscles. It takes exercise to keep the muscles full and round. The throatline gets so little exercise that it is easy to understand how firm contours fall into folds and creases or assume a heavy, pudgy appearance. You will have to twist that pretty neck and turn and screen these muscles to keep a slim, chiseled line.

You want to do everything that will increase circulation in the throat area, so begin with applications of hot and cold water, then use cream, and back these measures with exercise. First, wring a towel out of hot water and fold it about the throat. Leave for a second and repeat. Now, do the same thing with a cold towel. These preliminary measures help to stir up the circulation. Put on a warm oil, tissues or nourishing cream, massaging well into the skin from the base of the neck upward to the chin.

All this is preparatory to special chin and neck exercise. One of the simplest and most effective is to blow up a toy balloon, large size. Make a great to-do about it and really use your muscles. Keep huffing and puffing until the balloon is stretched to the breaking point. The balloon exercise not only uses the muscles of the throat but is the best eradicator we know of those parenthetical nose and mouth lines.

Another stunt is to chew like a bunny. Toss your head back, draw your chin up and turn the head from side to side slowly, chewing like a bunny. Turn the head as far to the sides as you can and chew vigorously, keeping the chin high in the air.

These muscles are delicate and two exercises will be enough for the first week, but send for the leaflet, "Let's Chin Awhile," which contains an entire set of beauty aids for the chinline. When you have completed your exercises, remove all traces of the cream and dash cold water over the throat.

Tuberculosis Cure Sought by Mission

Control of tuberculosis through preventative medicine today was the aim of the New England Grenfell Association, which cares for the sick and needy in Labrador and Newfoundland through the Grenfell Mission.

Tuberculosis is the major problem of the mission, founded by Sir Wilfred Grenfell, it was announced by Dr. Theodore L. Badger, president of the association. The mortality rate from the disease is 200 in every 100,000, he said.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Face That's Clear as Cloudless Day

ASSURANCE is doubly sure . . . poise is never lacking . . . when one presents a clear, unblemished complexion . . . free of the tainting shadows of superfluous hair . . . to the world. It's Ann Sheridan's good fortune to have one of the loveliest skins in the films. And Arline Gould will help you solve your problem through an improved method of temporary removal of superfluous hair that discourages additional growth and causes no irritation to delicate tissues.

Married Comrades

By ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 580

Lillian's quickness of brain prevented either query or hesitation from registering suspiciously. Her answer to the secret operative's question was uttered almost before the final syllable of the word fell from his lips.

"I don't think any one of us will dissent from that opinion, Allen," she said. "The more people who see you and get the impression that the brilliant if somewhat eccentric Mr. Spencer is convalescing from his illness, the better the chief will be safeguarded.

CHIEF'S PLAN SAFE

"As long as the gang represented by those men on the hill believes him to be here, made harmless to their plans by his illness, they will make no effort to trail him elsewhere, and both the person of the chief and his plans will be free from espionage. What say the rest of you?"

She looked directly at Dicky, and although her glance appeared casual, I was sure that he understood the compulsion actuating the gaze.

"So say we all of us, I'm sure," he said promptly.

"There's one thing you've got to remember, Madge—both you and Allen—when you go for these drives," she said, "and that is never to step outside your roles for an instant. It won't be necessary, of course, Madge, for you to stoop over and kiss him, as I made you do when you were out upon the balcony.

"But even though your father and you are naturally dignified and reserved in public, nobody ever seeing you together, noting the affection in the eyes and voice of both of you, would doubt that you were an unusually affectionate pair. So don't ever lower your guard for a fraction of a second."

PERFECT DISGUISE

Knowing that Dicky's eyes were furtively upon me, I pumped up from somewhere the courage to say casually, "I'll remember. It won't be hard; Allen gives so marvelous an impersonation of father I almost forget sometimes that he's nothing but an imposter."

"There'd be plenty, if you could get out of here in your own person, or under a thousand and one disguises," Mr. Underwood retorted promptly. "But, unfortunately as representing the sick chief you're tied by the leg right here. You'll have to keep the home fires burning, and defend the garrison from possible attack while the Dickybird and I flap our wings in a dozen different directions to see if we can't get a trace of those birds."

New Improved Kit of Magic Wax for Superfluous Hair

By ARLINE GOULD

LUCKY ARE the girls who only occasionally find something to evoke a little gasp of horror when they scan their reflection in a harsh light—perhaps a deepened line, or a new one, or a stray blemish. It's the girl whose loveliness is dimmed by superfluous hair who grows to dread even a chance reflection in a shop window that's been changed to mirror by slanting sunlight.

When permanent removal through electrolysis doesn't seem to be the thing to do, there is one method that seems to have more rooters than any other. And now that an improved kit of this magic wax depilatory has arrived, it will be the means of clearing up a lot of faces and complexes in time to shine on Easter Sunday!

If things like spotless red and white kitchens with crisp curtains and copper pans appeal to you, you'll be amused by the kit itself. It's bright red with a neat little double-boiler thing of chromium that holds the special formula wax and looks about big enough to boil one egg!

Explicit, careful directions on warming of the wax and its application with a clever little spatula of wood which is left attached while the wax sets—these are imprinted in the cover so you can't go wrong.

When the wax is set, the stick is pulled with a single quick jerk and presto! the skin is clear and soft as a baby's!

Scientifically compounded wax and a camphorated cream that is used directly after the treatment insure removal of the hair, discourage additional growth and cause no irritation!

If you'd like to learn more about this improved kit for the removal of superfluous hair, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4900, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Grandfather Joins 'Expectant' Class

PITTSFIELD, April 14—A Pittsfield grandfather today began classes held by the Visiting Nurse Association for expectant fathers. His wife is expecting her ninth child.

Twenty pupils enrolled in the class which is held in conjunction with those also given for expectant mothers.

Urge Observance of 'Humane Sunday'

Massachusetts citizens were urged today to observe "Humane Sunday" on April 24 and the ensuing "Be Kind to Animals Week."

In a proclamation, Governor Hurley appealed to people of the state to observe the week with special exercises in the schools.

Should Woman Desert Unfaithful Husband?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There are some questions in life that only we ourselves can answer. Such a question undeniably is the one that comes to me today from Worcester.

Connie's husband is unfaithful. The neighbors, she says, know all about his infidelities. Yet he says he loves her.

But, before I express an opinion, I'm going to let her tell her story.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

My husband claims he loves me, but he is unfaithful to me whenever he gets a chance. I have never done anything to cause this, and I'm getting sick and tired of it.

I don't want to break up my home, but I feel if he continues to be untrue to me I shall have to do so.

I've tried telling him in a nice way that he is hurting me, and I've tried in every other way to keep his affection.

He promises, but never behaves any better.

CONNIE.

DEAR CONNIE:

When a wife finds herself in the situation you describe, she has got to ask some searching questions of herself, questions that no one else can answer.

Do you get more happiness out of sharing your husband with someone else than you would if you broke up your home and left him?

It will depend, my dear, entirely on what manner of woman you are. If you are intensely jealous, the thought of a rival would be an gall and wormwood, and you would probably be unable to endure what is known as the triangle.

If you are not jealous, temperamentally, and can fill your life with many interests, hobbies, clubs, work of all sorts, you could perhaps persuade yourself that half a loaf is better than no bread.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm inquiring for a couple who want advice in regard to a common law marriage contract. They wish to continue their life together and want to have the security of marriage without the publicity.

NORA

DEAR NORA:

As laws concerning common-law marriage differ in different states, it would be well for you to consult the Legal Aid Society or a good lawyer about this question.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

ME OR MY MONEY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It seems to me, after 28 years of single-blessedness, that I have at last met the girl of my dreams. But I'm harboring doubts as to whether she loves me or my money.

Then again, it may be merely the idle gossip of well-meaning friends who are trying to part us, as in their eyes she is not equal socially.

What's the best way to ascertain her true feelings in regard to me?

NONE-TOO-SURE.

MY DEAR BOY,

Does she try to make you spend money? Does she suggest going to expensive restaurants, when you take her to dinner? Does she intimate that she prefers orchestra seats at the theater rather than the gallery?

These are so many material straws which show how the wind blows.

Do her eyes brighten when you come? Can she tell your footsteps? Genuine affection is hard to disguise, but if you continue to have her doubts, better watch your step and wait.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Family Dinner Easter Old, Gracious Custom

By MARTHA LEE

THE family Easter dinner party is a gracious springtime custom almost as traditional as the Christmas dinner. Relatives gather from far and near to reverently celebrate this important day within the family circle.

Elaborate decorations are not in harmony with the simplicity of this ancient holiday, but everyone welcomes spring flowers that breathe a promise of warmer days to come.

The dining table is complete with smooth linen, simple china, shining silver, sparkling glassware and a low bowl of spring flowers. Daffodils and jonquils lend a warm glow softly echoed by slim yellow tapers in low candle holders.

The dinner should form a satisfying background for the simple joy of families and old friends in this pleasant annual reunion. Let a plan this Easter dinner well in advance of the day and choose foods that are easily prepared.

Why not purchase a shoulder for baking—one in the red and white checked wrapper. These shoulder are very lightly cured and have had more than two pounds of waste fat and bone removed. They are easily prepared and require no parboiling or scoring.

Remember when it comes time to serve, to turn the knuckle (round end side) up and carve parallel to the bone, loosening the slices with the point of the carving knife. You'll have uniform slices and they will be cut against the grain of the meat.

EASTER DINNERS

Rainy Shoulder
Baked Potatoes
Baked Buttered Carrots
Broccoli with Hollandaise Sauce
Pineapple and Watercress Salad
French Dressing
Parkerhouse Rolls Butter
Vanilla Ice Cream with Crushed Strawberries
Coffee

BAKED SHOULDER

Parsley-Buttered New Potatoes
String Beans
Cabbage, Celery, Radish and Carrot Salad
Rye Rolls Butter
Fruit Bavarian Cream

BAKED SHOULDER

Carrot Flaked Stuffed Potatoes
Buttered Yellow Wax Beans
Dandelion and Beet Greens
Corn Sticks Butter
Festive Salad Bowl
Daffodil cake Mint Ice
Coffee

BAKED SHOULDER

Place shoulder in open roasting pan in an oven of 300 deg. F. and bake for 2 hours. Remove from oven, score fat deeply toward the shank and rub well with prepared mustard and brown sugar. Insert strips of angelica in the slits for the stems. Arrange pineapple for the flowers with maraschino cherries for flower centers. (It will be convenient to hold the flowers in place while baking with tooth picks inserted in shoulder.) Return to over of 350 deg. F. for 1 hour. Baste with syrup of pineapple juice, sugar and fat dripping from shoulder. Garnish platter with Easter eggs which have been hard cooked, shelled and tinted with vegetable coloring and Easter lilies made of thin, raw, white turnip slices and carrot sticks.

Fat may be scored in a petal like arrangement by using a cookie cutter and outlining with thin stripes of maraschino cherries. Or you may wish to score fat in diamond shapes and insert a flower-like piece of orange peel in each diamond with a whole clove.

Or perhaps you'll prefer to serve the baked shoulder with glazed pineapple slices and serve new potatoes and asparagus for the vegetables.

SUPPER MENU

Cold Sliced Meat Loaf
Sliced Baked Shoulder
Assorted Cheese, Mustard, Relish
Rye Bread and Butter for Sandwiches
Brick Ice Cream Pound Cake or Lemon Chiffon Pie
Coffee

INDIVIDUAL SANDWICH LOAVES

18 slices bread (remove crusts)
2 small tomatoes
1 small cucumber
1 cup ground shoulder
¼ cup India relish
1 jar sandwich spread
2 packages soft cream cheese
2 tablespoons tomato ketchup

Remove crusts from the bread and cut the bread into 9 slices. Use 4 half slices for each sandwich loaf. Spread the first with very thick layer of ground shoulder, add the second slice and spread with the ground shoulder blended with the India relish, add third slice and spread with cream cheese, add fourth slice and spread with tomato ketchup, add fifth slice and spread with cream cheese, add sixth slice and spread with ground shoulder blended with the India relish, add seventh slice and spread with cream cheese, add eighth slice and spread with tomato ketchup, add ninth slice and spread with cream cheese. Shape loaf and frost the top, sides of loaf with cream cheese. Place in automatic refrigerator to chill.

Listen, World!

A Holy Week Thought

By ELSIE ROBINSON

This white mystery of Lent! A young God dying for the world He loved—I remember the first time they told me of it.

Those who told me were old. So old that the story had lost its reality. The Cross was a vague picture—the words were only pious sounds. Nothing happened in them any more when they heard those sounds.

But I was young.

Everything was sharply new and true to me. And, with their muttering, the horrid came alive. I saw it all—the white young body sagging from the nails, the dripping blood, the poor head lolling under awful thorns.

Suddenly I was screaming, sobbing, crying out that they must'n't—must'n't—do writ dreadful thing!

No! No! And then the old people were leading me out, clucking compassionately, their kindly, stupid eyes half smiling at my "childishness."

I wish I had some of that childishness now.

I wish I could see that picture as I saw it then, as those terrified watchers on Golgotha saw it, not blurred by time or tradition, but piercing plain.

For I need the lesson of that courage.

The whole world needs it.

We have forgotten that part of the story.

Perhaps we have been so absorbed in the divine miracle of sacrifice and resurrection. But, whatever the reason, that vision of a plain workingman's sheer courage has become dimmed. AND NEVER WAS THAT VISION SO IMPORTANT.

That a man should do that! Chose to die by such ghastly torture, deliberately—when he could, with a word, have freed himself.

A young man who hankered for the lusty, simple things of life. The feel of warm green grass beneath his naked feet. The sting of cold, salt spray along his hard, brown arms. The taste of fine, fat fish, just taken from the net, "broiled in a little fire on the Beach."

A man who liked good work and hearty play. A wedding supper, bright with happiness. The fit of straight hewn timbers, or a well hung door.

A man who laughed and wept like other men. Loved babies. Maybe had a dog! And felt the comfort of a friendly tree—

A man like that, who must have hated sickness, dreaded pain—and yet He chose the ghastly torture of the cross!

To die by crucifixion—even the smallest child knew what that ordeal meant.

Golgotha was a place of public spectacle. Thieves died up there, and common murderers. Most shameful and most hideous of deaths'

Doubtless, at some time, he had caught a sickening glimpse. Seen men hang, screeching through long, sagging hours. Watched joints yanked from their sockets, muscles ripped from bone—heard the slow drip of blood from sword-pierced sides. Remembered, for black nights, the last, long rattling gasp.

He must have known. And yet—HE CHOSE TO DIE!

Hating, as men must hate, the very thought of pain, his sick flesh fighting furiously against his ruthless will.

"Let this cup pass . . . if it be possible; let this cup pass!" So he had cried, in black Gethsemane—until his sweat went red in agony.

Such courage—NOW WE NEED IT NOW. Life has been made so soft, too soft and safe. Torture's no longer something to be sought, or even honored. Pain, to the modern, is the penalty of ignorance. Wipe men escape all "stupid suffering" and seek some "saner" way to prove their bravery.

So—in this twentieth century—bravery goes unproved. And something passed from our heritage. Some stout essential of both flesh and soul for which smart words and clever deeds cannot be substituted.

He, too, could easily have found a "saner" way. Good reasons—plenty!—why a young man should not die. Old Joseph's need—or gentle Mary's love. Or his own value in the ranks of Israel.

And yet he walked unflinching to his doom. Uncringing, bared His young back to the lash . . . and bowed His forehead to the crown of thorns.

Definition of Your Figure

IN SPRING your fancy should lightly turn to thoughts of sheers . . . for though they're a weightless froth on your shoulders . . . they're weighty with fashion honors. We like the tailored twin print numbers that can be worn around town throughout the day . . . perhaps because we're running around town all summer long. But there definitely is something refreshing about wearing a long, sheer coat or a short, full jacket that wisps along in the breeze you create . . . almost as comforting as stepping into a dark, cool place with shining tables and dallying with clinking liquid in a tall, frosted glass. There are variations on this theme—but whether you choose an ensemble with a shirtmaker type frock or one that's slightlier dressier, like this pleated-skirt number, you'll find the tendency is to define your figure in smooth, lithe planes. This in spite of the fact that "looser" lines are the trend. Ernestine Ross models this twin print ensemble—a budget find for something like sixteen dollars—that emphasizes the loose, airy effect with definite figure-defining propensities. It's a flare-pleated silk print frock with snowdrops and valley lilies on a lighter-than-navy ground, and the grosgrain-edged coat is chiffon. Flung off the face and tied with a silk cord is the big navy felt hat. For shopping information on this ensemble, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

MY LOVE IS NEW" by IRIS BENNETT

What Has Happened

On a sunny day in June, lovely CONSTANCE DARBY is driving to her home in Northwood with a song in her heart. TERRY CANNON, whom she had loved as long as one could remember, was returning today after an absence of six months. He was assistant athletic coach in an upstate college and would not ask Constance to marry him until he was well established.

As she drove along, Constance hoped he would forget all that, remembering only that he loved her, and propose now. Stopping for gas, Constance meets suave, sophisticated GORDON KEITH, Northwood's favorite son, who won fame as a newspaper correspondent and radio commentator in the big city. His car has broken down and she gives him a lift to the home of the wealthy, aristocratic Howards.

Ostensibly, Gordon was returning home to write a book. What he returned from mentioning was that he had been involved in a scandal in New York and was also broke. Upon learning Constance is in need of work, Gordon hires her as his secretary. This beautiful, blond girl attracted him greatly.

That night Terry arrives. He and Constance would have preferred being by themselves but they agree to go dancing with Rosalind, Constance's younger sister, and her beau, BILL STANTON. Otherwise MATTHEW DARBY would have objected to Constance going.

The latter, a rebellious 18-year-old, envies rich girls like AVIS BAILEY who live in "The Hills." She vows to get them some day. Standing with her hand in Terry's, Constance thought, "This is my whole world, my family and Terry. They are all I ever wanted."

Now Continue

CHAPTER 4

Bill and Rosalind rode in the rumble seat of Terry's roadster. Up front Terry leaned forward and kissed Constance's cool forehead lightly. "My sweet girl," he said. "My girl."

He wished that he could tell her all that he felt for her. But how could a lanky young man of six feet one speak of his strong feelings and not sound ridiculously sentimental?

Some men could, men practiced in making pretty speeches for every pretty girl, men who had many girls. But the pretty speeches that came to him stuck in his throat.

Constance deserved them. She deserved much more than he would ever be able to give her.

Driving home today the motor in his car had seemed to say her name, "Constance—Constance" all the way home. For he had loved her for as long as he remembered, had loved the little girl with pigtails the color of corn flowers, and then the shy girl of 16 who had whispered her love that night on the river and now the radiant Constance of twenty.

At the university and on trips to New York he had met many girls whom he had found chic and amusing. But, nevertheless, he'd often thought, "Constance is prettier than any girl here, a better dancer, and more fun. She can run rings around these girls."

Often when alone he spoke to it. Strangers always asked, "Who is that beautiful girl, Terry?"

He always said, "That's my girl."

* * *

Cars were parked outside the Red Slipper in every conceivable parking position.

Inside a villainous-looking waiter in a none-too-clean white coat led the four to a table through the dancing throng.

ROSALIND'S FRIEND

Terry, frowning, looked across the table at Constance. "Why did I let her talk me into bringing you here? This is no place for us my first night home. We'll slink around awhile and see if Rosalind behaves herself and then go for a ride."

A few minutes later she saw Rosalind "cut in" by Van Howard. Frowning, she leaned forward. Why was Van Howard at the Red Slipper on Saturday night? Why wasn't he at the club with Avis Bailey and the Hills crowd?

She saw Rosalind's pretty face bewitched as she looked up at him. Tall and blonde and conspicuously well dressed, he was probably the best dancer on the crowded floor.

Terry asked, "That's Van Howard, isn't it?"

Constance felt a prick of anger. "Yes. Look how thrilled Rosalind is to be dancing with him. And he knows it! He knows that every girl here will be thrilled if he asks her to dance. Every girl except me."

When the music ended, she saw Rosalind tuck her arm through Van's and lead him to the table. Introductions followed. Terry shook Van's hand vigorously, thinking, "The last time we met, old boy, I pushed your face in. That was the day the public high school played football against the private school. There was a general row but we won."

The music began again and Van and Rosalind drifted again into the dancing throng.

Terry said, "Let's go. Constance, I won't ask you to dance in this mob."

"I don't know whether or not I should leave Rosalind. I don't like it, Terry, her and Van Howard."

TERRY PROPOSES

But she left with him and soon the roadster was headed through the moonlight to the beach.

Hand in hand they walked down the bank to the sand. Constance saw their shadows on the sand, Terry's tall and straight, hers with her hair blowing.

A deep happiness that obliterated the worried thought of Rosalind with Van Howard and the two-night encounter with Gordon Keith filled her.

In a moment he had extricated for weeks—he and Constance on the lonely white beach with silver moonlight around them, her face tilted up, her eyes in love with him.

"I've waited a long time for this," he said.

"Every time I see you, it's new, Constance. It never gets stale, it never will. But you won't like what I've got to tell you."

"You thought I was coming home for the summer. I'd planned to but a fellow from school opened a camp for boys and offered me the job of teaching about 75 kids how to swim. I accepted because the money looked good. Money is the only obstacle in our way. You hate it. So do I. But it's important. I won't offer you less than what you've been accustomed to."

"I won't ask you to marry me now because that would mean you'd have no fun all summer and stop seeing other boys. But in October . . ."

"You know it'll be 'yes' in October," Terry finished. "I don't want to go at all. I'd like to stay right here until October. But Rosalind gets me a little out all the time."

She and father quarrel terribly when we're alone with anything he and mother do for her. And Van Howard is the one boy she should never have met."

Many Causes Known for Neuritis

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

NEURITIS IS one of the most common of human ailments. Yet, it is probable that many of the cases of so-called neuritis are actually something else.

The pain of neuritis, for example, so closely resembles that of rheumatism or of arthritis that it is difficult to be sure about the diagnosis.

Neuritis is the name given the inflammation of a nerve. The pain it causes is the result of that. This varies in degree, depending upon the nerve involved. One often complains of mild pain, while another has pain so severe that to quiet it requires the administration of an opiate. To make matters even worse, it sometimes happens that more than one nerve is involved.

The victim usually describes the pain as burning and tingling. It may be along the course of the nerve. For example, if the facial nerve is affected the pain is located in the side of the face where the affected nerve. Accompanying this form there is likely to be excruciating pain on chewing, swallowing or talking.

If the sciatic nerve is involved the pain will be confined to the thigh or leg. Sometimes there may be severe backache with the pain extending down the leg along the course of the sciatic nerve. This form of neuritis medically known as sciatica may be so severe as to interfere with walking.

There are many causes of neuritis. As a rule it is traced to some focus or center of infection. Diseases of the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder or intestinal tract may produce toxins or poisons which attack the nerve.

Mrs. Beeckman on Manners

BRIDE'S ATTIRE

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

1—Would it be permissable for the bride to wear a "Sunday evening" dress of white, providing the groom is attired in a dark business suit?

2—If so, would it be correct for the maid of honor to wear the same type of dress? The wedding is to be somewhat informal and will take place in the evening—at seven o'clock.

3—Should those attending the ceremony, both friends and relatives, be dressed in street or evening clothes?

—Please give me the correct form of invitation for a ceremony of this description. E.

1—Yes, but keep the style of dress as simple as possible, and perhaps wear a short matching jacket. Also consider that a dress of this type, but of a becoming shade (such as a rich burgundy) rather than of white, would undoubtedly lose emphasize the informality of the groom's attire.

2 Yes

3—The women guests would probably wear dressy afternoon dresses or long "Sunday evening" ensembles.

4—A wedding at which the bride is to wear the type of dress you describe is definitely an informal wedding, and so the type of invitations should be informal notes written, if possible, by the bride's mother. Somewhat like this:

Dear Dorothy,

Jane and Jack are to be married in our home on Tuesday, the first of March, at seven o'clock, and we all very much would like to have you and Tom with us for the ceremony, and then to stay afterward for a little informal gathering of relatives and close friends. You will come . . . won't you?

Dearest love to you both.

Affectionately,

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Max West Shapes Up as Hitter | Moore, DiMaggio Also Improved

By JACK CONWAY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER
16 BOSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1938

CASEY STENGEL has his fingers crossed, but down deep in his heart he has the hope that Max West will furnish the batting punch the Bees need to help Jim Turner, Lou Fette and Danny MacFayden win close ball games.

Mr. Boston

Stengel has given West every possible break this year to give him the necessary encouragement. Casey is a great believer in baseball psychology, and contends that when a player gets a notion into his head he is a top hitter that he is likely to step into the .300 class over night.

Stengel has the advantage of having been a good hitter when he played ball himself. He knows what it is necessary to do to give one of his players the batting spark.

Great hitters are as rare as governments which do not have to borrow money. This is why one is always skeptical when a youngster bobs up in the Spring and starts on a batting spree. Veteran baseball observers are likely to sit back and wait until they see what the newcomer does under fire in July when the pitchers are bearing down.

Personally I like to be optimistic even if my hopes are going to fade under a boiling July sun. On the form West has shown in the South and in the practice games on the way North, he is a hitter. If Max can continue his slugging, he will be of tremendous value to the Bees.

Gene Moore has also displayed improved batting form this year. Moore always could hit the old agate a mile, but has had a weakness on slow balls. Throw Gene a fast ball, and he will knock it out of the ball park, but he is likely to pop out to the infield if given a slow ball.

Stengel has changed Moore's batting style. He has had Gene dragging some of his hits along the ground, and beating out the throw to first. Pitchers will not keep throwing Moore slow balls if he drags some of his hits.

Stengel has felt the pitchers have had a great deal of fun working on Moore. Casey now wants to see Gene work on the pitchers.

The recent run of home runs by Vince DiMaggio were not just accidents. Stengel has harnessed up some of DiMaggio's natural power when at the bat. Casey has changed DiMaggio's stance a bit, and has showed him how to time his swings better.

DiMaggio always could field. He is the greatest ball hawk Boston has had since Tris Speaker was with the Red Sox. If DiMaggio can also develop batting power, he will become one of the top stars in the National League.

* * *

Al Lopez and Tony Cuccinello are not exceptional hitters, but they are dangerous men to have at bat when there are players on the bases.

There is little doubt about the Bees pitchers doing their part, and if some of the hoped-for batting power comes through Casey Stengel will have cause for cutting loose with a few extra whoops before the pennant season closes.

Casey Signs Under Fire

I NEVER knew of an Irishman to quit when under fire, and so it was probably natural that big Steve Casey, who claims the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, should sign to battle Yvon Robert, who also sets himself up as champion, when the pressure was put on by the public and by the American Wrestling Association. The title match will take place at the Garden on April 29 under the direction of Paul Bowser, and should clear up definitely the dispute as to who is the real world's champion.

Bowser and Robert each made large concessions to sign the championship match.

Casey, like a smart poker player with a winning hand, sat back and picked up the money pot. The Irishman will receive a guarantee of $30,000 with the privilege of accepting 37½ per cent of the receipts.

For years a 37½ per cent cut has gone to champions in wrestling and in boxing.

Robert also insisted he was a champion, and turned down the challenger's share of 12½ per cent of the gate. Bowser raised his offer to Robert to 15 per cent, then to 17½ per cent and finally closed at 20 per cent.

This makes 57½ per cent for the wrestlers which sets a new high. When Bowser gets through paying his rent and promotional expenses, he will only have a small profit.

Bowser made the concessions to Casey and to Robert to end the dispute over who is wrestling champion. The promoter feels that with an undisputed champion interest in the mat game will increase everywhere, and that the attendance at his future shows will be greater.

The Casey-Robert tussle is a "natural." It is the only heavyweight bout that could be arranged that has a national appeal. Under ordinary conditions it would have been held for an outdoor show at one of the ball parks, but with horse and dog track opposition during the Summer it was Bowser's opinion that it was better to drop the tussle in at the Garden on April 29. The Garden can accommodate 20,000 persons which should give all who wish to do so an opportunity to witness the battle.

Random Shots At the Target

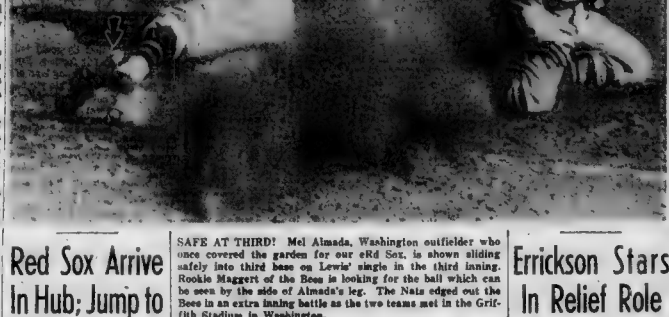
CONGRATULATIONS Bill Stewart! . . . You and your Chicago Black Hawks were marvelous as you defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs for the Stanley Cup, the highest honor in hockey . . . The whole town will turn out to welcome you home . . . The reception to Bill at the Bradford on Saturday night will be a huge affair.

Representative Francis X. Coyne of Dorchester will be honored at a dinner which will be held at the Touraine Hotel on Monday night . . . Governor Charles F. Hurley and Bayard Tuckerman, a member of the Governor's Council, will be among the notable array of speakers . . . I have known Representative Coyne for several years, and have admired him for his interest in public affairs . . . He has been on the side of constructive legislation.

Paul Bowser was at the ringside in the Chicago Stadium when Steve Casey defeated Ed Don George in a strenuous tussle . . . The wrestling game is picking up in interest in Chicago . . . Bowser said Bill Stewart is the most popular man in the State of Illinois as a result of his sensational success with the Black Hawks.

There is much interest in the pre-season baseball games, and if the weather man produces suitable weather the contests will attract large crowds.

Sox Arrive in Town, Jump to Holy Cross



SAFE AT THIRD! Mel Almada, Washington outfielder who once covered the garden for our eRd Sox, is shown sliding safely into third base on Lewis' single in the third inning. Rookie Maggert of the Bees is looking for the ball which can be seen by the side of Almada's leg. The Nats edged out the Bees in an extra inning battle as the two teams met in the Griffith Stadium in Washington.

Red Sox Arrive In Hub; Jump to Holy Cross

Cronin Says Squad Best He's Ever Brought to Hub

By JOE CASHMAN

A bevy of Boston baseball beauties, who cost a million dollars and entertain high hopes of this season furnishing belated proof that they're worth every cent of it, raced the sun into town this morning, just six weeks to the day from the time they started training at Sarasota, Fla.

They didn't remain long, these Red Sox, moving on to Worcester for a game with Holy Cross, as soon as they had parked their parcels and grabbed a bite to eat.

But they'll return this evening to stay awhile; meaning long enough to complete the six-game city series with the Bees in Saturday and Sunday tilts and to open the local American League season in a four-game engagement with the world champion New York Yankees, starting next Monday.

IN TIP TOP SHAPE

The Croninmen were delighted to reach their own back yard again, not only because it meant the end of a tiresome ten-day barnstorming tour, but also because it mgant they were on the scene of and one day nearer to the opening of their pennant race.

They're confident they're going places in the flag hunt this year, and they can hardly wait for the bell to ring.

When they'll eventually land remains to be seen, but they really have cause to aim high.

They're in the best shape of any squad Manager Cronin has brought back to Boston in the pilot's opinion, and those of us who have been privileged to observe the development of Prince Joe's four Fenway flocks must agree.

They've worked, and worked hard, on all but three days of the past six weeks. They have 26 exhibitions under their belts. They're razor sharp both physically and mentally.

MORALE HIGH

Moreover, their punch has reached a new high through the acquisition of Joe Vosmik, who's been walloping the walls at a .500 clip all spring, as well as playing left field as it hasn't been played for the Sox since the days of Duffy Lewis.

And what with Bobby Doerr performing miracles around second Joe Cronin playing the best shortstop of his Boston career, Jimmy Foxx and "Pinky" Higgins as steady as ever at first and third and Ben Chapman and "Doc" Cramer completing the classiest local outfield in over 20 years, their defense was never stouter.

The most marked and encouraging improvement, however, is in the esprit de corps in the ranks, as we've reported more than once in recent weeks.

There's been little change in personnel but an amazing change in the morale of the club as compared with last year's outfit.

Manager Joe Cronin will start his regular supporting cast against the Crusaders this afternoon. He hasn't definitely decided who his pitchers but it would seem that he must call on rookies unless he elects to use Grove and keep Moss out of the city series.

All the other veteran fingers, including Jack Wilson, who returned to action to get slapped as the Sox were losing to the Orioles yesterday, have tallied in the past three days.

John "Footsie" Marcum is warmly received by his wife as he arrives at the Back Bay station with the Red Sox squad. John has shown a startling reversal of form this season, and his added strength in the box will aid the Sox in their climb toward the top. The team will travel to Worcester today to play Holy Cross.

Closing In On Local Big League Baseball Season

Errickson Stars In Relief Role Against Nats

Almost Saves Day After Niggeling Totters

By BILL GRIMES

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14—Dick Errickson, the rawest rookie on the Bees roster, further established himself in the good graces of Manager Casey Stengel by his fine tenth inning relief work in the mid-week game with the Senators when he replaced Johnny Niggeling with a man on second and third and nobody down.

Errickson was ordered to walk Zeke Bonura, which filled the bases. He worked cleverly on "Rocky" Stone, and finally the Senator hit one on the ground, which looked like a double play ball.

The sun was going down in the West, which is behind the stands, and the rays were shining directly in Errickson's eyes.

He attempted to spear the ball with his glove hand out, blinded by "Old Sol," he missed the intended connection and the agate smacked him on the meat hand, rebounded off and into Eddie Mayo's glove. Mayo threw home and forced Buddy Lewis.

WRIGHT SCORES

Dick got Travis in a hole and, when the count got down to three and two, he curved three balls over, all of which Travis fouled. One of these fouls drifted into the lower boxes along the third base line. Hal Maggert made a very courageous attempt to make the out by reaching over the low concrete wall but the ball bit on the fingers of glove and broke loose.

Had that foul been an inch or two closer to the playing field, there is every reason to believe Errickson would have pitched himself out of the inning.

Finally, Travis golfed a low ball, which was badly sliced. Bobby Reis, after a long run into left centre, made the catch, but Taft Wright scored the deciding run after the catch, for Bobby was in no position to make the throw to the plate. So the Senators won, 6-5.

Lou Fette was in rare form for the six innings he was on the hill-top.

Eddie Mayo put him out on a limb by booting one in the 3d, and the Senators scored their first run. And in the 5th, Bonura crossed up everyone including himself, with a long drive to right field, which went for three bases, with nobody out.

HEAD HOME TONIGHT

Lou got the next two hitters but Buddy Myer, who got "four for four" hit safely and pushed big Zeke over the plate.

Johnny Niggeling was in trouble constantly. He didn't have his control, and the Senators took him for seven hits and three runs in three innings. He was very lucky that the House of Harris didn't take him into camp without going extra innings.

Johnny Lanning and Billy Weir will divide the pitching assignment in the seventh and final game with the Senators this afternoon, and tonight the Bees will pull out for home, after seven weeks preparation for the 1938 National League campaign.

Cup Triumph Big Moment For Stewart

Greatest Thrill of Thrill-Filled Career, Says Hawk Pilot

(This is the first of a series of two articles by Bill Stewart, the sports hero of his day. Bill, in an exclusive long distance telephone conversation, tells of the thrills in directing the Chicago Black Hawks to the Stanley Cup and the real story of the Toronto series.)

By BILL STEWART
As Told to Murray Kramer

My first big league tryout, my first major league umpiring assignment, my first world series as an umpire, all stand out as never-to-be-forgotten moments in a sports-filled career — but the greatest thrill of my life came this week in directing the Black Hawks to the Stanley Cup.

Taking over what many considered a hopeless situation plus the skepticism of many fans as to what a former college hockey coach and referee could do in major league hockey and bringing the club through to the championship, is something I can never forget.

Very few had any real confidence in the Black Hawks as a team. They were looked upon as a bunch of misfits most of that could not possibly be welded into a winning machine.

INJURY JINX

And to make matters worse we just were not clicking during the early months and even into midseason with the result that the "I told you so" boys were right in their glory. But, those lapses were due largely to one factor—injuries.

At no time did I have my three lines intact. I had to shift right wingers over to left and vice versa. The situation was so bad during one stretch that I had to move defensemen up to the forward lines. During most of the season I had only one right wing but we just struggled along.

Today all past now, and we are sitting on top of the world. Wires have been pouring from all over the country and from Canada. I never realized I had so many friends. In fact I am somewhat confused and battered myself from the congratulations and back slapping I took after we won that fourth game.

Those bruises, though were gladly received for I feel them as more than proved that a college coach and an official can be a big league hockey coach.

And speaking along those lines perhaps this is no good a time as any to really tell why I gave up hockey officiating for the supposedly impossible job of guiding the Black Hawks.

Truthfully, I got mighty tired of those long hockey hops every other night. Last year I worked 79 games, and the year before I had 85. It was just too much. I'm getting on another and I had just about decided that something else might interfere.

CHICAGO EXULTANT

When the offer came from Major McLaughlin I demanded a two year iron clad contract. The reason for this was not so much that I wanted two years of security but rather to prove I had the ability to make the grade.

I wanted to bring up new kids and help develop them. One year seemed much too short. Personally, I wouldn't have taken a real short and bet that we would even reach the play-offs, let alone win the Stanley Cup but that's sports for you.

Once the season got rolling and I saw one thing that seemed to me apparently missed I had a group of real competitive athletes with courage galore, and it was the skilful and intestinal fortitude that carried them right through the Stanley Cup finals.

Now that I've proved those kids of mine are going somewhere I'm due. In fact the Chicago papers have come bearing gifts and are saying a return to the World City but seeming to the Blackhawks supporters is getting as much as the result of the championship. I'm not saying a word either.

This recognition of the team plus the generous contract offer are makes it for me basis of a vacation which I have been planning for

Training Camp Gossip

By Associated Press

BALTIMORE, April 14—Frankie Crosetti, the holler guy of the New York Yankees, last three championship teams is doing his best at the old stand at the Yards. Out of action for most of the training season with a severe charley horse, Crosetti has recovered just in time to start his seventh major league season.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—Sammy Hale, Indiana third baseman, turned a neat trick yesterday. He made both teams groan with a wild throw. The Tribs groaning because a man reached first safely, the New York Giants because Joe Moore, crack left fielder, was hit behind the ear with the ball Moore wasn't batting.

BROOKLYN—Back in Ebbets field, the Dodgers are beginning to believe that Burleigh Grimes is something of a psychologist. Said Grimes when the club was in the middle of a slump, "This is a seven plane team." Since then the Dodgers haven't lost a game and other Flatbush with five straight triumphs. They meet the Yankees Friday.

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo.—The St. Louis Cardinals minus the Mat-wick, arrived here today for an exhibition game. Medwick suffered a slightly sprained ankle in the first inning of yesterday's game and Frankie Frisch ordered him to St. Louis where he will meet the ex-pert specialist, Dr. Joseph Mathes. Medwick, Jr., for the first time.

JOPLIN, Mo.—Manager Gabby Street and the St. Louis Browns came "home" today for an exhibition game with the Cardinals. Catcher Ernie Lombardi reported he had heard from the anti-holdout on the team and that Hafey had written, "I am not through yet." Hafey expressed his willingness to rejoin the team if General Manager Giles will boost the clubs pay offer.

PHILADELPHIA—The Athletics are back with one spot, shortstop, apparently plugged. Russ Peters is filling in brilliantly for the injured shorter Newsome. He got three for four, one a double, against the Dodgers yesterday and was steady in the field.

THOMASVILLE, N. C.—Chuck Klein, the Phillies slugging outfielder, has ended his batting slump. The Big Home run drive came yesterday when Chuck hit a pair including a double and a home run.

KANSAS CITY—Cy Blanton, who probably will start the Pittsburgh Pirates' opening game against the Cubs at Chicago, was selected to pitch seven innings against the White Sox the longest any Bucs hurler has gone this year. Hurler Jim Tobin led Rookie Manager Rowan on to the four-hit victory over the A's season, according to Pie Traynor.

Yvon Robert, challenger, shakes hands with Heavyweight Wrestling Champion Steve "Crusher" Casey after they signed for a title bout at the Boston Garden, April 29. Casey was forced into the bout by a ruling of the American Wrestling Association which declared that if the Irishman failed to agree to the bout he would be forced to abdicate his throne.

World Championship Bout at Garden April 29

Steve (Crusher) Casey of Sneem County Kerry, Ireland, will defend his world heavyweight wrestling championship against Yvon Robert, handsome young Canadian, at Boston Garden on Friday night, April 29.

Casey will receive the champion a customary 37½ per cent, or he can take a guarantee of $10,000, if that amount should surpass his percentage.

Robert will be paid 20 per cent, instead of his challenger's customary 12½ per cent. He will not receive a guarantee nor will his training expenses be paid.

That the match will be held, and Casey will not draw out as he did when they were supposed to wrestle April 8, is guaranteed in that each will put up a forfeit of $5000.

CASEY A DODGER

Robert, to get the match, agreed to put his world's championship belt, given him by the Montreal Wrestling Commission when he dethroned Danno O'Mahony in 1936, at stake.

The French-Canadian refused to relinquish it when his title was taken away from him by the American Wrestling Association, for refusing to meet Louie Thesz of St. Louis.

Besides, the American Wrestling Association and Midwest Wrestling Association belts, now held by Casey, will be at stake. The three belts will go to the winner of this world championship struggle.

When Robert, as American Wrestling Association champion, refused to wrestle Louis Thesz, Casey, who then was recognized as No. 1 challenger, stepped in and got the match, defeated Thesz and won the world's championship, which had been taken away from Robert.

Casey then was recognized both by the American and Midwest Wrestling Associations and the two organizations control the sport nearly over the entire United States and in Canada.

WORCESTER INCIDENT

Upon winning the title, and after announcing he would be a champion who would dodge no opponent, Casey refused to wrestle Robert because he declared, Robert would not give him a chance at the title and not because he feared the French-Canadian youth.

Casey was champion but a few weeks when he accepted a match with Marvin Westenberg at Worcester. That night, instead of Westenberg, a masked batman appeared in the opposite corner. Steve went to the center of the ring, yanked off the mask and discovered it was Robert.

The following day Bowser signed and announced a Casey - Robert battle for the world's title at Boston Garden on April 8. And a day after that came a telegram from Casey, in New York, to Bowser, reading:

When Casey pulled out of the April 8 battle, Robert sent a fiery letter to the American Wrestling Association, asking that it show him the fairness he deserved by forcing Casey to go through with the match or forfeit the title.

The American Wrestling Association, backed by the Midwest Wrestling Association, last Tuesday ordered Casey to meet Robert at Boston Garden and under Bowser's promotion, and threatened him with dethronement and suspension in nearly every state in the unica if he refused. He was given seven day is which to accept the match.

Bowser contacted both Casey and Robert, and their managers, and made the match

Cue Champion Faces Gregory

Johnny Mills, New England pocket billiard champion, faces Joe Gregory of New Haven at 8 30 tonight in a vital game in the current New England championship play being conducted at the Olympia Billiard Academy.

The men are tied for second place in the tournament.

Mills must win to stay in the running for Al McDonald of Portland, Me., is leading him, having won eight games and lost none. Mills has won seven and lost one.

Write American for Ball Games

Independent baseball teams of New England are again offered a fine opportunity by the Boston Evening American to arrange their schedules for the coming season.

Beginning Monday, April 25, the "Games Wanted" column will again appear in the sports pages. Managers, desirous of arranging games, may have their notices published by forwarding full information about their teams to the Games Wanted Editor, Sports Department, Boston American, 5 Winthrop square.

Stanley Cup Win Biggest Thrill For Stewart

years but have never been able to take

I worked during the last World

Series and on October 10, the day it ended, I headed North immediately to start wielding the Black Hawks machine I then figured that right after the season my wife and I would get South for a week or two to relax before the baseball season started

Then when we hit the play-offs, I had doubts whether we would get through beyond the first round, and that Florida trip was still on.

Fates decided otherwise, and I m just as pleased, I am going to leave Chicago today and will arrive home tomorow. Saturday I start work on the Red Sox-Bees city series, and next Tuesday the National League seasons get underway

(Tomorrow Bill Stewart will tell of his Stanley Cup strategy, and he will give the readers the true story of the muddled goalie situation and the inside on the Red Horner - Doc Romnes feud.)

500 to Honor Bruins Manager

Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, will come down from Montreal to attend the dinner being tendered Arthur H. Ross, manager of the Boston Bruins, next Thursday at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

The three straight defeats at the hands of Toronto have taken very little moment from the plans for the dinner which was projected on a win, tie or lose basis to begin with.

More than three hundred tickets for the affair have already been arranged up by Ross' many hockey and golf acquaintances, and it seems likely that five hundred will attend the affair.

Mayor Tobin to Present Bowling Prizes In Huntington Club Ceremonies Saturday

Elsie Hollis Gets All Events Prize In American-Advertiser Classic

By WALTER KILEY

A last final strolling finish left to the third annual Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser New England bowling championships before the event is relegated to memory.

On Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Lenox Alleys, the prizes are to be rewarded with the fine array of prizes, come to 440 front finishers to receive their hand-some awards in the grand finale at Jack Stafford's Huntington Club alleys, championship scene.

Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, donor of the trophy won by Mrs. Grace Cann of Quincy singles champion will be present to present the charming members of the Gabolets with the prized silver.

While Charles Harrington Portland kingpin, inadvertently was entering something of a romp in annexing the men's singles at the Lenox Alleys tonight with a 3-string total of 380, Elsie Hollis of Lawrence, women's singles champion a year back, was hard pressed to lift the ladies' all-events title this year.

Miss Hollis with 328 in the doubles, 286 in the singles and 265 in the team competition, amassing a total of 879, won the all-events championships by only a single pin over Mary Daly of Roxbury, 880, who in like had only four pins advantage over her teammate, Sally McNeil, fellow member on the Dedham 10's team champions from the Ruggles Street alleys, Roxbury. Miss McNeil had an 878 total.

Nick Pave capable Providence roller lifted open a seventh honors with a 3-string total of 1426 and Alice Dyer of Norwood gained the women's open all events title with 1,3.

ONLY FOUR BITS

Football gets an above the average draw of tennis players; golf, golfers; polo, people who like a horse or want to be seen. Baseball gets them all, because it is our oldest sports habit and forever remains the best bargain in sport.

Baseball is the only good game where you can get a load of the real men in the business, for only four bits

The game has a tough job on its hands this season, for the lands is troubled with a headache. But if anything can help the ache, baseball can. It's the only sedditis powder of its kind

Baseball Tonic For Nation's Ills

By BOB CONSIDINE

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 14 (INS)—Baseball will be embarked next week on its hundredth year of life with the promise of better competition in each league.

That the game has become an integral part of the American scene is of course patent, but more and more its role as a national sedative is being appreciated.

This season, with war, labor troubles, deficits and dictators blowing their collective halitoses in the American people, baseball's new role will be put to a gruelling test.

When the history of the "great depression" is written a searching student may give baseball a dig on the belief for having contributed much to its eventual riddance.

It isn't safe to state that baseball did much to take the public's mind off the shocks of the early 1930's.

Attendances tend to increase in ballyards when the factory fires burn, and baseball audiences are too busy to listen to the fellow on the soap box who wants to throw the rich out of power.

The game has given five American generations an opportunity to divert their mind in public and rid their systems of an assortment of inhibitions and yells which, left unpropounced and unyelled would have erupted and changed the face of the land.

POLITICAL INDEX

It's going on 5 years since the Americans dug themselves a hole in the ground and exchanged their buckshot and assorted spikes and knucks.

It's been about the same length of time since the old Cincinnati Red Stockings made the game worth watching.

Baseball has long been called a business barometer. But it isn't.

It thrives during a depression, because more men are on the street and the golf clubs, tennis racquets and cat boats are in hock but like a nose certainly is a paragraph that is as accurate as the recordings of any of the public opinion institutes.

The defeat of Herbert Hoover in 1933 was eloquently foreshadowed at the 1932 games, a month after the grandstanders gave the President a rasping basoo that shook the White House to its foundations in Washington with cheers when Roosevelt pitched out the first ball of the 1933 season, a month after getting the job.

One has to take into account, of course, that a lot of the boys at that time were clapping indirectly for Hoover. Because the same type of bloke is still around the ballyard at Washington—but the noise has been reduced to a whisper. (In fact it's an quiet now when the President winds up that you can hear a pin drop

Tufts, Winner Over Lowell, Faces B. U.

Tufts won over Lowell Textile 13-2 to open its 1938 baseball season at the Tufts Oval. The Jumbos played well except in the fourth inning when two errors allowed the Weavers to make the most of a walk and a single to score their only two runs.

Jack Hughes pitched six innings, fanning seven and allowing but one walk and three hits. Tony Wolf, relieving him to start the seventh also showed fine form, allowing two hits and fanning two, giving no walks at all.

Ted Sheehan starting his first game for the Jumbos was the heavy stickmen of the day, making three singles in five times at bat. Wolf's were one of four times at bat while Captain Bennie Collier and Steve Geary got the only other singles for the Tufts team.

With an auspicious start, the Jumbos are pointing for the Boston University game tomorrow at Weston. Coach Ken Nash is expected to start sophomore Al Hatch on the mound.

'We'll Mow 'Em All Down,' English Mentor Predicts

Yes, True Blue

Rawson Chases Mellody for Title Go

Back from a successful ring campaign in New York and New Jersey, where he won decisions over many of the best lightweights in the country, Tommy Rawson seeks a return battle with Charlestown's popular fighter, Honey Mellody, who holds the New England championship.

The East Boston lightweight started his long string of victories outside of Boston after his last fight with Mellody in November, 1936, by taking a 10-round decision over Vic Garcia in the Valley Arena, Holyoke.

After the Garcia fight, Rawson won decisions over Frankie Covelli of New York, Maxie Berger, Canadian lightweight champion, and Johnny Rhoads, the New Jersey champion.

He lost a close decision to Enrico Venturi, European lightweight champion, who holds a decision over Lou Ambers and who recently fought Jenny Armstrong.

In view of the good record which the East Boston youngster has made during the past year, he feels he is now entitled to another crack at the New England title with Mellody.

Local fight fans can recall in the fall of 1936 the two sensational battles between these two favorite local boxers.

Rubenstein Named Suffolk Announcer

Ralph "Babe" Rubenstein, radio announcer and race caller, will be the official announcer at Suffolk Downs this season. Rubenstein has established a wide reputation in announcing and has broadcast daily from various New England tracks.

During the winter season he has for several years broadcast on nation-wide hookups from Florida and California tracks.

Fordham Blasts Princeton, 18-1

PRINCETON, N. J., April 14—Fordham handed Princeton its third straight defeat here under the humiliating score of 18 to 1.

On a bicycle built for two and determined to keep pedaling until they finish out a successful baseball season are Warren Healey (front) and Ed Costello (rear), Boston English No-1 battery. Healey is a veteran hurler while Costello is rated one of the Blue and Blue's heaviest-hitting catchers in years.

English's Costello Big Time Timber

O'Malley, Maloney, Doherty Other Standouts on Ohrenberger Nine

ALTHOUGH PATRIOTS' DAY is still some five days off, Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English's personable baseball impresario, is already in holiday humor, especially as it pertains to his 1938 nine.

For with the Blue and Blue horsehiders scheduled to face South Boston Saturday and Roslindale Monday, Coach Ohrenberger is already telling the world that his charges will have two games won by the time the holiday arrives.

In a word, he is informing the City Point baseballers that they are in for a walloping when they visit the English club's home grounds at Billings field in West Roxbury the day after tomorrow.

Second, he's quite confident his nine will hoodwink Roslindale, last spring's championship outfit in Boston circles, when they stack up against each other the day before the holiday.

Let him tell you.

"I sincerely believe English has four of the top schoolboy diamond performers in the state in Ed Costello, catcher; Johnny O'Malley, second; Captain Tom Maloney, shortstop, and John Doherty, left field.

"Furthermore, the Blue and Blue has a neat little cluster in Warren Healey, who played no small part in last spring's nine that captured 16 contests out of 17 played.

"The other members of the club, Paul Halloran, first; Jim Walsh or Walter Cassells, third; Dom Scavongelli, centerfield, and Abe Winograd, rightfield, are hustling players, the kind that could break into any high school league.

ROSLINDALE BEWARE

Breaking away from the roster of his team for a moment, Ohrenberger rubbing his hands together and grinning, commenced to talk about Saturday and Monday's games.

"Our nine is all set to tip over both South Boston and Roslindale. I have a hunch that English won't find too much trouble turning the trick, either.

"About that Roslindale tilt"

"We've been waiting for a long time to meet those gentlemen. Remember, they were awarded the championship of Boston last year without even having to face English.

"Why, the 1938 English nine would have knocked them off the map.

"However, we were never able to arrange a game with Roslindale, although we tried several times."

All the while Coach Ohrenberger was giving utterance, his forces were standing by, sporting broad smiles that seemed to spell out "YES" to everything he said.

In addition to the players mentioned by Ohrenberger in his earlier remarks, Gerard Darling, a first baseman; John McCue, a freshman candidate for catcher; Dom Weaver, a shortstop; John Chisholm, another catching prospect, and Seymore Epstein, Gerald McGarry and Leo Murray, all pitchers, displayed some sparkling ball in their respective berths.

COSTELLO THE CLASS

While Healey has the first string hurling task all knotted up, he'll have good assistance from Epstein, a veteran and fast southpaw, and Murray, a 200-pound right-hander.

The four lads Ohrenberger spoke so highly about, Captain Maloney, O'Malley, Ed Costello and Doherty, really lived up to everything said about them during the practice drill.

All four were lashing the agate all over the Billings field lot, and their fielding was flawless and positive.

Costello, the biggest boy of the four, and the club's No. 1 catcher, has the makings of a big leaguer. He swings a powerful mallow, has a fast and accurate throw to second, and knows all the tricks of the catching trade.

Costello and Second Baseman O'Malley, by the bye, played for the champ St. Catherine's Club in the Boston Twi League last summer.

After watching the outfit go through its animated one-hour workout, one couldn't help but agree with all Ohrenberger had to say about the contingent.

The Blue and Blue boys have class, hustle, confidence and experience. What else could a high school nine have?

De Mar's Entry For Marathon Received

By WALTER KILEY

Clarence De Mar is rated a graybeard now. But for all his close to 50 years, the Marathon wonder finally comes in with his entry for next Tuesday's B. A. A. run.

No other runner ever came close to De Mar's seven times Unicorn title record.

Many of the Patriots' Day field were not members of this earthy fold when the Keene, N. H., schoolmaster first tried the Hopkinton run back in 1910 and turned in a highly creditable runner-up effort.

But many have since trailed in his dust-wake. For De Mar will be making his 20th B. A. A. start this coming week, and seldom has he been far off the winning pace. Ever since 1922, the hoary headed veteran has been shuffling the long, backbreaking trail. His titles were won in 1911, '22, '23, '24, '27, '28 and '30.

KOMONEN IN AGAIN

Dave Komonen of Sudbury, Ontario, winner of the 1934 run, filed his entry blank with Manager Tom Kanaly today, which, with those previously received from Johnny Kelley of Arlington, Leslie Pawson of Pawtucket and De Mar, assures a 1938 field with four former victors.

Komonen failed to prove much of a factor last year. After getting up and staying out with the leaders through all the early racing, the former champion wilted and fell back to 21st place.

But he writes he is ready this year, and feels confident he'll be in the thick of the battle the entire 26-mile route. He was seventh in 1931 and second in 1933.

From Toronto comes a particularly strong group of Don Mills A. C. runners who won the Canadian Marathon team championship in 1936, and the United States team championship at the Washington marathon.

In this group are Percy Wyer, Pete Gaugh and Lloyd Longman, who were the first three Toronto team finishers in the Washington title event. Gordon Powell also accompanies them.

Wyer is the only one with B.A.A. experience. A mere chit of a fellow weighing but 96 pounds, he first came into the Unicorn fold back in the pre-war days of 1915 when he took seventh honors. He was sixth in 1931 and eighth in 1933.

118 ENTRIES IN

The slim Canadian was winner of the Detroit marathon three times and the Canadian marathon once. He was twice a member of the Canadian Olympic marathon team, in 1928 and 1936, and twice a member of the Canadian British Empire team.

Longman, while he has yet to compete from Hopkinton to Boston, has an impressive record.

There were 115 B. A. A. entries filed away with Manager Kanaly this morning.

Unknown Ousts Star at Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., April 14—Frank Farrell, an unknown from University of North Carolina, defeated George Dunn of Philadelphia, 6—3, 2—6, 6—3, in the North and South tennis here.

Yea-Saying Plan Of Los Angeles Aids Sales

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service
Financial Writer

LOS ANGELES, April 14—Business leaders out here in years of depression and recession have taken inspiration from Napoleon, who once disdainfully remarked: "Circumstances—why, I make circumstances."

Faced eight years ago with the common experience of shrinking buying power, the business interests organized a co-operative campaign to increase the economic base on which the city depends for its income.

Aided by a $200,000 annual grant by the county, local business interests employed five domestic and four foreign trade commissioners to roam afar from this center and sing the praises of products created in Los Angeles. It was civic boosting with a practical purpose, and between 1929 and 1937 Los Angeles increased its ratio of sales in the group of ten western states from 21 per cent of their total buying power to 45 per cent. Last year there was a twenty per cent gain over the previous year in total domestic sales outside this immediate territory. In ten years Los Angeles industrial exports, starting from small beginnings, rose 1000 per cent.

BALLYHOO FACILITIES

Employed by the business interests of the city generally, the trade commissioners dont solicit orders. They merely ballyhoo the facilities of the city's industries and establish contacts between buyers and sellers. Moreover, through an annual trade week, the Chamber of Commerce, operating on a budget of half a million dollars a year, brings buyers from all parts of the country to this place, where, partly as a result of the movie colony, has become a style-setting center. Hollywood now rivals Paris as a point of origin of women's fashions.

As a phase of this development program, the chamber has encouraged the bringing of new industries to southern California, and has undertaken to act as a clearing house to advise business men what new facilities are needed. The fostering of local industries has been accompanied by an increasing tendency to patronize national corporations to open branches here.

The chamber has waged an incessant campaign to induce local merchants to buy home-made products, and stores are asked like to brag of the amount of locally produced merchandise handled.

The whole trend in the last decade has been in the direction of increasing diversification of economic activities. This empire of the Southwest has attempted to develop a balanced economic life, producing as much as possible of what is consumed here. Los Angeles now produces oil, movies, airplanes and other products for the whole nation. Moreover, Pasadena is second only to oil in annual dollar revenue, and industry is supplemented by a rich backlog from the country's agriculture.

Accordingly, in a slump such as we are now in, this city, with its support from retired residents of wealth, is better hedged against depression and unemployment than ons-industry cities.

OPEN SHOP TRADITIONS

In the migration here of national organizations, the interest is not simply avoidance of expensive freight hauls and accessibility to this consuming market. Some are drawn here by the open shop traditions of the city, and the organization for comparative harmony in industrial relationships.

Hollywood local boosters tell me that Los Angeles County leads the nation in agriculture and stands in the following rank nationally: second in movies; first in aircraft manufacture; first in oil refining; second in automobile assembling, and second in rubber tire manufacture; third in furniture making; fourth in general apparel, and ninth in value of all manufactured products.

Its people are rarin' to go under conditions of full national prosperity in order to cash in on its improved relative position during the next eight years or so.

Boosting may be distasteful during a boom, but at the moment the country happens to be suffering from under-confidence and moral defeatism. Accordingly, other gents might well examine the yea-saying attitude which characterizes Los Angeles.

Studios Rehire Many Workers

HOLLYWOOD, April 14 (INS)—End of the recession so far as Hollywood is concerned is within sight, according to reports and trade figures disclosed by representative film executives.

A heavy film production schedule involving all major studios will be in full swing before the end of the month, it was declared. Re-employment of several thousand persons including artists, technicians and laborers within the next two weeks is indicated in production plans outlined by producers.

The payroll at Universal studio already has reached its highest peak of the past two years, according to reports. More than 1200 men—mostly painters, carpenters and technicians—have returned to work there during the past four weeks, and the total number of employes now is near 2500, studio officials said.

No network competition for the Presidential airing at 10:30 this evening. America will be all ears (WEEI-WBZ-WNAC-WAAB-WMEX) when the "Fireside Chat" goes coast to coasting. Dial decks have all been cleared by the broadcasters.

It's to be wafted from the White House and designed to do with the proposed pursuit of the sorely needed business "lift" which President Roosevelt feels can be achieved by more spending by Uncle Sam, despite protests on the point as voiced vigorously in all corners of the country.

Clipping of the Bing Crosby hour made necessary, so that Bing and Bob with "Music Hall" doings have only 10 to 10:30 for "mike" time. . . . THIS EAR—THAT AIR

The recent daring rescue by 16-year-old John Walsh of West Medford of two youngsters from the "bottomless" hog-hole of Little Fresh Pond in Cambridge, will highlight the drama program hereabouts (WNAC) this evening from 7.30 to 7.45 p. m.

Frank Gelinas, youthful local song stylist, has been heard (WMEX) for the past two months. His program is heard on Friday afternoons from 2 to 2.15 p. m.

As an added attraction, Frank plans to bring guests to the microphone from time to time.

The first star to appear on his program will be Ella Fitzgerald featured soloist with Chick Webb's orchestra. Ella is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Kate Smith who unfailingly pays tribute to Christmas and Easter Sunday in unforgetable fashion, plans to observe Easter this year by singing Ethelbert Nevin's traditional Easter selection, "The Rosary," and the popular "Easter Parade" in her broadcast (WEEI) this evening at 8.00 p. m.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise is scheduled to broadcast (WEEI) between 10 and 10.30 tonight in behalf of the United Palestine Appeal. This is a special Passover program planned in behalf of the campaign to give relief and rehabilitation to refugees of Germany and Austria, and help settle them in Palestine.

Annette Kellerman, famous athletic beauty of three decades ago who made headlines in introducing the one-piece bathing suit, will head the list of guests during "We, the People" this evening (WEEI) at 7.30 p. m.

HAIFA, Palestine, April 14—Arturo Toscanini, conducting the Palestine Symphony Orchestra at the opening of its second season, was given an ovation by an audience of more than 2000, including high government officials and leaders of Jewish communal life.

The maestro, who earlier this year declined to conduct at the Salzburg festival, paid tribute in turn to his so-called "refugee orchestra." In a modest speech, he said wholly of musicians who have fled Europe.

WHO ?? WHERE ?? NO--NO !!! DON'T COME UP!! "I'LL BE RIGHT DOWN···
WHUT'S ALL TH FURSE ERBOUT ?? IS IT THAT SHIFLESS SKONK, STACKPOLE, YORE SLATTIN' TO ??
TUT-TUT, GOOGLE--- THERE'S NOTHING TO GET EXCITED ABOUT--- MY WIFE'S EXPLAINED EVERYTHING---IT WAS ALL MY FAULT AND I'M HERE TO APOLOGIZE TO SNUFFY
GEE-- YOU GAVE ME AN AWFUL SCARE, STACKPOLE--- THOUGHT YOU WERE STILL OUT GUNNING FOR SNUFFY..

MANDRAKE, THE MAGICIAN

Signs of Temperament

SONNY, I WANT YOU TO MEET MANDRAKE.
TELL HIM TO WAIT UNTIL I'M READY TO SEE HIM. CAN'T YOU SEE I'M DRESSING?
GEORGE! I TOLD YOU TO SHINE THESE SHOES! CAN'T YOU REMEMBER ANYTHING?
YES, SIR.
I FIRED MY CHAUFFEUR, OUCH! DRIVE THE CAR FROM NOW ON-- OUCH! YOU'RE PULLING MY HAIR! GET OUT!

Roy Can't Figure It Out

THIS IS A VERY SERIOUS THING SO LIM'S CONSIDERS EVERY ANGLE OF IT. COULD THAT CAR HAVE BEEN LOOPED ON TO ANOTHER FREIGHT THAN BY MISTAKE?
EVEN GRANTING THAT SUCH A MISTAKE COULD BE MADE THERE AINT BEEN ANOTHER CAR THROUGH SINCE THEN CARS WAS PASSED ON WELL, I GUESS THERE'S NOTHING WE CAN DO AN IT MIGHT AS WELL BE GETTING HOME. NOTHIN' THE MATTER WITH MY OFFICE AND I'LL CALL YOU UP LATER!
I'VE DONE THAT, SIR. THE TRAIN DETECTIVES ARE ON THEIR WAY HERE. NOW
I CAN HARDLY GET THIS THING THROUGH MY HEAD--IT'S SO FANTASTIC--SO MYSTERIOUS--AND SEEM SO TREMENDOUSLY SERIOUS TO ME--I NEED THAT MACHINERY BUSY--WITH IT I WON'T BE ABLE TO FULFILL MY CONTRACTS
UNCLE DON'T NO-THAT SOUNDS LIKE ONE OF THOSE THAT MAKES IT MORE THER SERIOUS
WHAT I MEAN IS THAT THERE ISN'T ANY SWITCH NEAR WHERE THOSE CARS ARE--THE ONLY SWITCH TO THAT SIDING IS A HALF A MILE UP THE TRACK.

HOW MUCH HAVE YOU TOLD THE INTELLIGENCE SERVICE? DO THEY KNOW THE MAHARAJAH IS DEAD?
I'LL LET YOU GUESS THAT.
IT'S NOT IMPORTANT. I MIGHT HAVE KILLED YOU IN THE VAULT, BUT I WANTED TO TALK TO YOU FIRST. YOU SEE, YOU ARE A FAMOUS MAN IN THESE PARTS.
THANK YOU.
YOU ARE FAMOUS--BUT I--I AM A MAN OF DESTINY! I SHALL BE THE FIRST WHITE RULER OF BARODAR, AND AFTER THAT--- WHY NOT OTHER STATES? REBELLION--- UPRISINGS---
--AND I, COUNT BART, SHALL BE THE RULER OF ALL!
I KNEW YOU WERE HARD AND SHREWD, BUT I DIDN'T THINK YOU'D BE BALMY AS WELL.

Tax Bill Business' Big Need

Inflation Is Without Effect if Confidence Is Lacking

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The action of President Roosevelt in sending a letter to the Senate-House tax conference protesting provisions for easing the capital gains tax and eliminating the undistributed profits levy got only raised a storm of protest in political circles but dealt confidence in business and financial quarters a severe blow.

The attitude outside of Congress is that no matter what artificial steps are taken to stimulate trade, confidence must be at a high point before it will be started is to become permanent. A recovery based solely on the fear of inflation will only last while the monetary, credit or relief opiates administered are effective. The moment they start to wane the recovery—more properly the boomlet—will be fadged will lose its potency and a new downturn will begin. Then another, and usually more severe call may must be undertaken. However, if business and financial leaders could be reassured on the vital point of the worth of risking their own capital they would keep the upturn moving until a broadened out and became a natural affair.

• • •

Thus it is that most observers, without bias for or against the tax bill are hoping the Senate version is adopted in conference. For regardless of whether or not one thinks fears are overdrawn they do exist and the best way to overcome them is to remove the causes even if they should be debatable. Otherwise the spectre of progressive inflation must be recognized for what it is.

AIRCRAFT PROFITS

The year 1938 promises to be a record breaker from a profit standpoint for the aircraft industry. Unfilled orders at the beginning of the year stood some 50 per cent above total output for 1937. When it is considered that the output of the industry established sales and profits at new high levels all one needs to do is survey the new order situation for support of 1938 ideas. While some drop in sales and commercial activities is in prospect and private plane orders may suffer from the depression there are important offsetting factors. First of these are government orders for the army and navy. Second is the growing export demand now that European factories are heavily taxed for military purposes.

• • •

If the aircraft industry works out as anticipated above it may well prove to be a specialty group that for special reasons will benefit during a depression. If not, then it seems almost assured that it will be one of the early commodities to tries when general conditions are favorable to a broad recovery. We would make note of it and in the event of acute weakness in coming months start to accumulate a line of the leading stocks.

MARKET ACTION NEUTRAL

The action of the market in the first three sessions of this week has been distinctly neutral. However, the inflation message to Congress may well change the whole picture. If it proves sufficiently promising, or frightening to capital, the markets may swing in the abrupt fashion. We will make a decision, or not as to whether trading purchases are in order by the behavior of the rail and industrial averages around their recent highests. If both go through easily it would be foolish to deny the inauguration of a fairly decent upturn—one that should be followed.

Boston Stock Market

By vote of the governing committee, there will be no session of the exchange Good Friday.

Tuesday, April 19, being a state holiday, the general operations of the exchange will be suspended. Such of its facilities, however, as are required for the operations of the odd-lot dealers will be operative and business transacted by them as usual.

Deliveries due on Tuesday, April 19, 1938, will be made on Wednesday, April 20, 1938.

It's Final Call In Photogenic Contest

Brunette, blonde, or Titian; petite, full figured or average; it makes no difference—you've got a chance in the Boston American's contest to determine greater Boston's most model-perfect, truly photogenic type.

Tonight, at midnight, the search for the ideal photogenic features and figures comes to a close. Today, if you send in your photo in snap-shot, with your name and address on the back, you will be considered an entry in this interesting, thrilling contest.

NEW TYPES SOUGHT

Why all this excitement over photogenic possibilities of greater Boston's young women? Well, there's a Camera Exposition taking place at the Hotel Brunswick April 21, 22 and 23, and candid cameras enthusiasts, portrait photographers, artists, illustrators and advertising scouts are always on the look-out for new model types.

AIR TRIP IS PRIZE

The winner of the American's search for the ideal photogenic type will be awarded a free flight to and from New York City, via American Airlines; she will be made up for a screen test by Elisabeth Arden Salon, and be given an Ardan professional makeup kit; she will be posed by Roberts-Gates Studios and given a half dozen professional prints. She will then be in a position to launch a career as a model, a photographic possibility in many a profession.

More Women Autoists Win

20 Others Selected for Good Driving Awards

Twenty more courteous women drivers will read in the Boston Evening American today that their license numbers have been taken down for good driving.

Observers for the Evening American selected the women whose driving followed rules of safety in the streets and highways.

TODAY'S LIST

Those chosen daily will each receive, out of a total of 100 Easter gifts, including corsages, boxes of candy and theater tickets.

Today's new numbers are as follows: 714,469; 446,334; 110,167; 15,211; 22 and 23, and candid cameras enthusiasts, portrait photographers, artists, illustrators and advertising scouts are always on the look-out for new model types.

Divorced 5 Years He Now Sues Wife

Though his estranged wife, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wing, 38, divorced him in Reno five years ago, Robert Wing, 39, of Lynn, today had on file in Salem probate court a divorce suit of his own.

Wing, who sued his wife's uncle, Frederick W. Furbush, of Lynnfield, for $100,000 in an alienation of affection suit last year, charges Mrs. Wing abandoned him in Lynn on June 7, 1924.

STOMACH TROUBLE
Mrs. Agatha Meskunas of 58 Bow St., Somerville, Mass., writes: "I had been troubled with gas, bladder trouble and constipation. I had pain in my back, was sick at my stomach, had gas and lack of appetite and was tired and nervous. Adlerika has just one dose and I felt like a new woman. Adlerika is now my family remedy and I get one on a diet and sold out that day." Sold in Boston by Sam Dowell (mail carrier) and Sam Colwell (mail carrier) and Arthur Dr. Walker. He told me to say that Mrs. Nan Ivey mentioned him. I thank Mrs. Walsh had done for him. I took his advice and find Dr. Walker's treatment did for me just what Mr. Colwell predicted it would. I am glad to add my testimonial to the many others in favor of Dr. Walker's. I suppose that those who suffer as I did may profit by my experience." Signed for Mr. Walsh.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1938

+ These words spake Jesus, and lifted up His eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify Thy Son, that Thy Son also may glorify Thee.—St. John XVII, 1. +

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Dick, Copley Methodist Episcopal Church, Boston. The next text will be suggested by Bishop Samuel G. Babcock of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts.

The Editor Says:

EVERY great democracy in its most critical hour finds the right man.

Premier and Minister of War and National Defense Edouard Daladier has been called to the helm by President Lebrun in the nick of time.

With Daladier in command France is in as powerful hands as England is in the hands of Neville Chamberlain.

If England and France are to compete with Germany and Italy they must have strong and sound leaders.

England has balance enough, commonsense enough, stability enough to retain and support her strong man, Mr. Chamberlain.

It is very doubtful whether France has the same judicious and stable qualities.

If France has not good leadership in this emergency the situation in Europe will be bad not merely for France but for the peace of Europe, and possibly of the world.

DALADIER IS NOW France's chief reliance, perhaps the chief reliance of all Europe for order and peace and prosperity.

Last February, Daladier told a Radical Socialist Congress that France MUST end social unrest through INCREASE IN PRODUCTION, maintenance of order, respect for law and conciliation of foreign interests.

These same objectives he has now set out to achieve.

The French Parliament has voted him a three months' economic and financial "dictatorship" to stabilize a nation that was rapidly heading for complete collapse through the disorder and destructiveness of criminal Communism.

France has a firm faith in this Progressive-Conservative premier and very little faith, apparently, in the well-meaning but doctrinaire Leon Blum.

Europe—and the whole world—will breathe easier with Chamberlain and Daladier in power.

GRADUATES WILL LEARN

The Harvard seniors, like millions of other young men throughout the nation, hope for the best, but hardly expect it.

In business especially will these graduates find heartaches. If they do get in—which is by no means certain—they are sure to make the sad discovery that blind and punishing laws were there before them.

Then to them will come the slow, painful knowledge that radicalism which often provides laughs and conversation material for young men in college is an entirely different thing when, firmly entrenched in government, it confiscates business and industrial resources, leaves little or nothing for pay envelopes, and destroys every opportunity for personal achievement and advancement.

G. A. R. HEAD WARNS US

"We have never been prepared for any war which we entered. I believe in preparedness and I think the present armament program is a good thing."—Commander-in-Chief Overton H. Mennett of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Commander Mennett gives us the wisdom of a life that has been rich in experience.

As the leader of an organization which fought three-quarters of a century ago to save the Union and which has valiantly worked for its defense ever since, he makes the sensible observation that only by being strong enough to fight a war can we hope to avoid one.

America desires conflict with no nation. Our people and our government are doing their utmost to live on friendly terms with all countries.

But neither our people nor our government can act for other powers, many of which provide abundant evidence that peace is the last thing in the world they value or wish to preserve.

HOLY WEEK IN CHURCHES

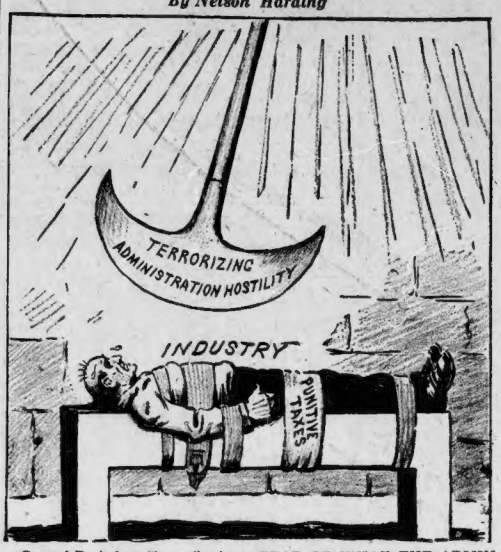
"In numbers larger than ever before, Catholics and Protestants of New England are attending the solemn services of Holy Week as their Jewish brethren prepare to celebrate the traditional Feast of the Passover."—News Item.

In a world of warfare, national, international and personal, this re-consecration of millions of souls to the eternal truths of religion is heartening.

Let us all benefit by the good example that these faithful Catholics, Protestants and Jews are setting.

"The Pit and the Pendulum"

By Nelson Harding



One of Poe's best "horror" tales was that of the victim of "The Pit and the Pendulum."

In a recent press conference Secretary of Commerce Roper said that FEAR OF WHAT THE ADMINISTRATION MAY DO NEXT is one of the things retarding recovery.

"Do you believe it is the duty of the Administration to arrest that fear?" he was asked.

"I believe it is the duty of everybody to do all that he can to develop confidence," the Secretary answered.

The Voice of New York

By Louis Sobol

HORATIO ALGER story: Abe Ellis, former candy butcher at the Manhattan Opera House and later a cloakroom emir, now owns the historic eleven-story theatrical landmark where Oscar Hammerstein's Vandyke and flat-topper quivered in defiance of the traditionstepped Metropolitan Opera company. Sandwiched in between operatic gestures, "Ben Hur" and its chariot races thrilled the masses and here, too, John Barrymore first donned the mantle of the Melancholy Dane.

Now it passes into the possession of a former East Side boy whose first move will be to rename the large banquet and convention chamber within, Gershwin Hall, in memory of another East Side boy.

I spent several winter week-ends at the B-Bar-H ranch. The B represents Charles Bender who came to this arid desolation 15 years ago, sucked water from the reluctant earth after a year's drilling, planted date trees and shade trees and created a miniature paradise. The H is for Lucian Hubbard, his partner, picture producer in full time.

It is situated in the broiling desert saucer under a low-hung sun-oven. In front, San Jack (Jacinto) thrusts its white-capped head to a pale blue sky—to the right is the sugar cake known as the Gorgonias and farther along, the snow-powdered San Bernardino range, nature's Empire State and Chrysler towers.

You would leave the ranch to ride into Palm Springs proper, 10 miles distant as a soused crow might fly. There is no way of adequately picturing for you the loveliness of those desert nights, but take a few seconds off to fancy a narrow ribbon of white-sanded road cutting across a flat-land, purplish under the moonlight.

The silence is disturbed only by the hum of your car—or the hoof-clatter of an occasional horseman. Nor does it startle your revery to watch a blazing crimson star scurry swiftly across the face of the moon. You know it's the 9 o'clock plane.

Eddie Cantor tells me that in 1937 it cost him $26,500 for autographed pictures to fans. In addition to the photographs, there was the overhead in postage, envelopes and a large staff of clerical help.

Bing Crosby's effort to please fans costs him close to $25,000, I am told and now Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy are realizing how expensive it is to have a large following.

Confrere Dinty Doyle reproves me for the coinage of "Oxfordian." "Any dictionary," he writes, "would have cautioned you—'Oxonian' is the word." Professor Donovan who flunked me each year in English always warned me I'd come to no good end.

Driving uptown the other day, I stopped for a few seconds to survey Alexander Hamilton's home at 141st and Convent avenue. An old-timer at a filling station nearby told me that originally the site was at 143d and Convent, but was moved two blocks down the street some years ago. This was the scene of the historic Battle of Harlem Heights during Revolutionary days and occasionally sanguinary activities are resumed when neighborhood boys, who doesn't like each other, meet in combat.

Direct descendants of the famed finance man of the Colonies are Alexander and Lawrence Hamilton who have figured in Manhattan's political life. There they live with their mother, Mrs. Juliette Picrpont Morgan Hamilton, sister of the late J. P. Morgan.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

This week I received three pan-letters, my highest score so far.

A pan-letter, as you may guess, is the exact opposite of a fan-letter. It is wrathful epistle, objecting to something you have written and telling you where you get off.

Of course, any columnist prefers a flattering, inspiring fan-letter to a roast. Who doesn't prefer being flattered to being panned? But an occasional pan-letter, like an occasional dose of calomel, is GOOD for you; and is welcomed by every full-minded writer.

It shows him (or her) where he is steering and warns him when he is being too cynical or too flippant. It makes him watch his step, and, best of all, it takes the swelling out of his head—temporarily.

The "gypsy's curse" was taken off of one of these letters because the writer had the courage to sign his NAME. Why not? Do the writers of pan-letters think that they will be "shot at sunrise" or something, for registering a good legitimate kick? They have their rights—and free speech is one of them.

This young man objects to my statement that "men never grow up—that they are boys, forever!" I don't know why. If anybody had written a column asserting that women are GIRLS forever, I'm sure that every normal woman would have taken it as a beautiful compliment to her sex. She would have cut it out and triumphantly shown it to her husband or her boy friend. I shudder to think how many comebacks I might have received if I had stated that men GROW OLD sooner than women. But, alas, they don't! Would that they did!

That shows the difference between men and women. A woman, like a dog, is grateful for a kind word or a pat on the head. A man, like a cat, cherishes his DIGNITY—and he wants no nonsense.

I have always maintained that people are wrong in comparing women to cats. We MAY have our "claws," but there the likeness ends.

Naturally, most men prefer dogs, because dogs are so soft-hearted and feminine. No matter how roughly you may treat them, they keep coming back for MORE. Just like a woman!

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

I WOULD not be surprised at an announcement any day from Hollywood that one of its daring producers is to film the story of the "most brilliant soldier of the Revolution." Should this happen, millions of Americans, I would say the vast majority, will be amazed to learn that the great and heroic figure is none other than a man they have looked upon, from their earliest days only as a despicable traitor, by name, Benedict Arnold.

Like others who have found the American Revolution an absorbing topic, I always have inclined to the judgment of the English historian, Knight, who wrote:

"Arnold displayed more real military genius and inspiration than all the generals put together, on both sides, engaged in the war, with the most undaunted personal courage."

For this reason it was with great interest and enthusiasm that I read a few years back Kenneth Roberts' grand novel, "Rabble in Arms," which is a vindication of Arnold. This week I note another novel from the presses called "Renown" and written by Frank O. Hough.

This, more so than Mr. Roberts' work, takes the form of a biography of Arnold, and while it is fiction it follows closely the historical facts.

Such great interests in a character by the word-painters has led me to predict that the film-makers will become Arnold-conscious.

I'm one ready to stand up and argue the point that but for Benedict Arnold there would have been no United States of America. I'll quote Creasy as an authority here, because in his list of the decisive battles of history he says that Saratoga was the turning point of the Revolutionary War.

Well, it was Arnold who beat Burgoyne. Our skimpy school books mention little, if at all, the Battle of Valcour Island. Yet it was there in Lake Champlain that Arnold changed his role of General to that of Admiral, built a shabby little fleet, outsailed, outsmarted and outfought the British men-o-war, thus holding up Burgoyne for six vital months.

None other than the same Arnold, by sheer boldness, stampeded St. Leger's Indians and Tories as they marched through the Mohawk Valley for their rendezvous with Burgoyne. And who else but Arnold, in the forefront of the battle, led the Continentals to the victories at Freeman's Farm and Bemis Heights?

Arnold was a genius, and therefore was envied by the mediocre officers in the Continental army and by the politicians in the Continental Congress. Arnold was impetuous, intolerant of blunderers and outspoken in his scorn of them.

Because of this he turned their envy into hatred of him, and but for his friend and protector, Washington, they would have cut short his career even before Saratoga. As it was they finally did provoke him into the plot to surrender West Point to Sir Henry Clinton.

Arnold was a comparatively young man at the peak of his fame, only thirty-six when his leg was shot from under him at Saratoga, the same sort of wound that he had suffered as he stormed the heights of Quebec. He was only 60 when he died in London of a broken heart.

There is the story of his calling for his old Continental uniform and putting it on at the end, which if it is not literally true, is no doubt true figuratively. His spirit has waited many years to have someone say, as Mr. Roberts does through his character, Captain Peter Merrill:

"His mistake was tragic—most tragic of all in that it blackens his memory and makes his name the very name of dishonor. I followed him in war, loved him, and saw his figure as the leaping bright sword of America—Ah, when America's swords were few'

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, April 14.

THE new coalition which is in the making in Congress will come to grips with the President on an issue which will admit of no compromise.

If Mr. Roosevelt, bankrupt of sound ideas for meeting the depression, turns to more "pump priming" a little group in Senate and House will try to stand between him and a national debt which would be forced perilously close to $50,000,000,000.

Talk of a bond issue, to finance huge loans to local communities for public works—to run for 50 years, without interest—is a pot of honey for the unsophisticated.

The American people should not delude themselves into thinking that any such advances as those contemplated would be "loans." They would be out-and-out grants.

This money would never be paid back.

It is perfectly apparent why this is so—so many States would be beneficiaries, that they could easily command majorities in Senate and House to wipe out the whole indebtedness at a single lick, in the most gorgeous pork barrel bill in the annals of a hundred pork barrel Congresses. And would they do it! Would a cat lap milk?

Conferences are under way at both ends of the Capitol to head off the orgy of spending.

But the bait is attractive. Harry Hopkins appears to have complete access to the President's ear, and Mr. Hopkins is the man who once said of those opposed to boondoggling, that they were "too darned dumb to appreciate the finer things of life."

Mr. Hopkins hasn't grown up. He is still the economic sophomore he was when he gave the world that brilliant analysis of the philosophy of thrift. The only consolation is that, by the defeat of the Reorganization Bill he did not land in the cabinet. Well, that's something!

When the Senate turned down the processing tax the other day the sound which suddenly rent the circumambient atmosphere of Washington was Secretary Wallace's heart breaking.

The next sound you will hear will be the taxpayers' composite heart cracking, and it will echo across the country like the report of a 16-inch gun.

We have, as you know, a new cockeyed farm bill, thrown together so hastily that its authors didn't even know what was in it, and had to begin amending it in less than a month.

But hang it all—the farmers are now finding out that the bill contains no appropriation for what they're after, parity prices. All the money is a mere $500,000,000 of soil reclamation funds.

So Wallace demanded the processing tax as an amendment to the Harrison Tax Bill. He didn't get it.

They told Representative Bill Lemke today that this Farm Bill—if they get the parity prices they're after—will call for an appropriation of $2,000,000,000—out of general taxes!

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

AN ASTRONOMER was recently negligently peeping through one of the giant telescopes at the Mt. Wilson, Cal., observatory when he was startled to see a huge fiery puff-cloud shoot up 970,000 miles above the sun.

At the same time he noted that the "spots," each larger than the earth we are living on, made their appearances from the molten mother of us all.

This cloud travelled away from the sun at the rate of 200 miles a second. The 970,000-mile ascension is the greatest height ever observed for a sun-cloud by a human eye.

Let us hope that cloud—filled with gas—is not travelling our way. Its death-dealing possibilities might make the Japanese and Spanish air-bombers jealous.

In 1995 Hitler (now a word like Caesar) the Third ruled over all of Europe, Asia Minor and Africa. Japan ruled the rest of the world, with the exception of the Western hemisphere, which was governed by a Pan-American Union.

Germany had one job yet to do—it was to conquer or destroy both Japan and America. So human beings were produced by the hundreds of millions by the state.

"Motherhood is a factory," said Kathleen Sullivan. "The bureaucracy sits on our necks. We live in an obscene inferno." So she destroyed the human race.

How? You must find out by reading F. L. Lucas' book, "The Woman Clothed with the Sun, and Other Stories" (Simon & Schuster), one of the most fascinating books of long short stories I have read lately.

And do you think that Lucas' story is exaggerated? Well, let me recall to you the prophecies in Bellamy's "Looking Backwards," written in 1888. A reading of it today will startle you just as some of the things in Lucas' story may startle the people of sixty years hence for its astounding gift of prophecy.

Whatever man can imagine either has been true or will be true.

Take a peek at the Maharajah of Patiala who died the other day. He went duck-shooting on Lake Patiala in a cruiser that he built in England. He hunted tigers from a Rolls-Royce. He bought 10,000 tickets for the sweepstakes in 1931 (and never won a cent). At King George's silver jubilee he wore a pearl necklace worth $5,000,000.

And where do you think all this junk came from? TAXES. TAXES. TAXES. The same old TAXES that are building up in this country political Maharajahs.
